Walker decision near on year-round racing bill

by KURT DAER

Gov. Dan Walker is expected to act today on a bill which would legalize thoroughbred racing in Illinois year-round, including Sundays. But even if the bill becomes law, communities like Arlington Heights would still have the power to deny Sunday racing.

If Walker fails to act, the bill will become law automatically at midnight today.

The sweeping new racing legislation is opposed by the Illinois Racing Board and its chairman, Anthony Scariano, principally because it repeals the ban on political contributions from race track operators.

Charles Siragusa, chairman of the Illinois Legislative Investigating Commission and a strong backer of the bill, said Wednesday municipalities would have an option on Sunday racing.

"There can be no Sunday racing unless a local ordinance is approved, permitting the track to operate," he said.

ACCORDING TO THE bill, Sunday racing can be granted either by local ordinance or referendum.

Siragusa met with Gov. Walker Wednesday in Springfield and said afterward the governor plans to act on the legislation today. But Siragusa said he did not know whether Walker would sign or veto the bill.

The bill is supported by major race tracks, because it would increase income to both track operators and horsemen and establish horse racing schedules for a three-year period.

Race track proprietors, including Arlington Park Race Track's president Jack Loomer, have complained about the annual scramble for racing dates and uncertainty over the length of the racing season.

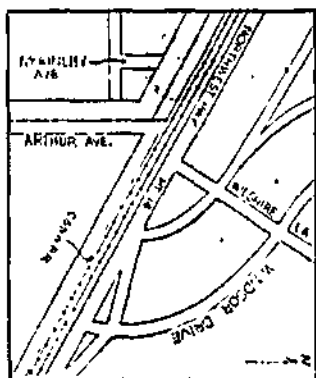

Until the dates are announced in January by the racing board, track managers do not know when they will be allowed to open or how long they will be in business, Loomer has said.

Railroad crossing OK'd on east side

The Village of Arlington Heights has received state approval to build a new railroad grade crossing at McKinley Avenue.

The Illinois Commerce Commission approved the village's 1974 application for the crossing which will improve access to eastern Arlington Heights and western Mount Prospect.

The crossing that will link Northwest Highway and Davis Street will cost nearly $70,000 to construct. The cost will be shared by the village and the state. It is unlikely the work will start before next year.

SHADED AREA shows the location of the McKinley Avenue railroad crossing. The Illinois Commerce Commission this week approved the Arlington Heights' plan for the crossing, although construction is not expected until next year.

Tied in with the new street across the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks is the resurfacing of Arthur Avenue, one block east of McKinley, north to Davis.

The question of whether the village will pay the railroad for right-of-way across the tracks still must be answered.

VILLAGE ATTY. Jack M. Siegel said he will try to reach an agreement with the North Western to put the money in an escrow account until the controversy is settled in circuit court.

An escrow agreement was made for the planned Ridge-Walnut avenues crossing where the railroad is asking for $18,000 right-of-way compensation. The village is contesting the demand in court.

A railroad spokesman said Wednesday the company still plans to build the Ridge-Walnut crossing this year, although no definite construction date has been set.

Residents of the Stonegate subdivision, north of the McKinley crossing site, have voiced concern that the new street link will cause heavier traffic in their neighborhood.

Plans call for closing Wilshire Lane at Northwest Highway when the crossing is built. But residents are worried that traffic will build up on Windsor Drive.

VILLAGE OFFICIALS expect most of the cars will use Dryden Place to get to the new crossing and there are plans to install traffic signals at Dryden and Northwest Highway and at Dryden Place and Kensington Road.

If traffic problems do turn up in Stonegate, village officials say they will consider further controls.

The McKinley crossing will be important for emergency vehicles traveling north and south on the eastern side of town. There now is no grade crossing between Central Road in Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights Road — a distance of about two miles.

The McKinley crossing also may take some traffic off of heavily-traveled Central Road.

Plans for a grade crossing in the vicinity of McKinley Avenue date back as far as 1938. Modern plans were made in 1966 when the crossing was proposed for Arthur Avenue.

The site was moved one block to McKinley because of engineering problems at the Arthur Street location.

Two men arrested in $80 drug bust

Two men were arrested Wednesday on charges they sold $80 worth of narcotics to undercover agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG).

Arrested were Robert Marturana, 20, 2710 Goebbert Rd., Arlington Heights, and David J. Stevens, 20, 1986 Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect. Both were charged in warrants alleging they sold 10 capsules of Biphelamines in an undercover deal Aug. 25.

They were freed on $7,500 bond each, pending an Oct. 14 court appearance.

STRUMMIN' ALONG. Shawna Lewis, 8, and her classmates at MacArthur Junior High School, are learning to play the guitar in regular music classes this year. The guitars were added as a result of a federal grant to the district which enabled them to purchase 24 six-string guitars.

Readin', writin', math and a little guitar pickin'

A whole new generation of Simons and Garfunkles is in the making at MacArthur Junior High School this year.

Guitar instruction has been added to the general music classes that all 700 MacArthur students take, thanks to a recent federal grant which enabled the school to purchase 25 six-string guitars.

But if C chords seem hard for preadolescent fingers to handle, teacher Paulette Hanhart will understand. She has never played the guitar.

"I elected to go through their frustration with them," Miss Hanhart said. She and former principal Gerald McGovern planned the guitar instruction last spring, but Miss Hanhart turned down the chance to take summer instruction in guitar so she and her students could begin together.

Right now, students are going "whole hog" learning chords and notes, Miss Hanhart said. Sixth graders spend three 45-minute periods per week with the instruments, and eighth graders practice two sessions per week.

Seventh graders will begin instruction second semester.

As skills improve, Miss Hanhart said individual and group selections will be chosen for everyone to learn. She would like to feature the guitarists in some sort of recital later in the year.

Miss Hanhart said the guitar grant was applied for because "our general music program lacked any instrumental instruction."

The choice apparently was a wise one. "The children just love it," Miss Hanhart said.

Probe of RTA subsidies urged

by ANNE SLAVICEK

The seven commuter railroads serving the Chicago metropolitan area urged the federal government Wednesday to investigate the Regional Transportation Authority's subsidy policies.

The railroads asked the U.S. Urban Mass Transportation Administration to "immediately commence a review of the RTA's allocations of funds among types of carriers and portions of the RTA's six-county region."

The request was contained in a letter to the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission, which gave its approval Wednesday to an RTA request for $50.5 million in operating subsidies for local transit lines.

The approval came after the commission's planning committee agreed that the RTA should be required to provide subsidies "on an equitable basis" to transit systems throughout the Chicago area.

THE RTA has been criticized by suburban officials for giving the bulk of its subsidies to the Chicago Transit Authority.

The committee also required the RTA to inform NIPIC of its subsidy policies and the amounts of any subsidies it provides to transit systems. NIPIC staff members had urged the two requirements to ensure "consistency with regional planning objectives."

The letter from the railroads, signed by D. H. King, vice president of Burlington Northern Inc., also asked the federal government to:

- Require that subsidies after July 1, 1976 be weighted in favor of the commuter railroads to make up for the "inequitable" allocation of funds during the last two years.

- Examine RTA subsidy policies to determine if they are consistent with federal policy and federal subsidies to the railroads for commuter cars and locomotives.

- Require the RTA to release promptly its railroad subsidy plan for the current fiscal year.

The letter dated Wednesday, will be forwarded to the federal mass transportation administration along with comments from suburban officials urging changes in RTA subsidy policies to give more funds to the suburbs.

The RTA will not provide funds to meet all the operating deficits of mass transit lines unless the lines can pay at least 65 per cent of their expenses through fares. Commuter railroads are reimbursed by the RTA for 75 per cent of their operating deficits.

RTA Chairman Milton Pikarsky, who is also a member of NIPIC, succeeded Wednesday in getting the planning committee to drop a section of its report to the federal agency that was critical of current RTA spending policies.

The section said in part:

"The commission is concerned with the issue of equitable funding levels and potential effects on regional planning objectives as well as the concerns expressed by many local governments of the potentially negative consequences resulting from the present RTA policy."

PIKARSKY said the $50.5 million is only one-third of the total subsidies the RTA will hand out to bus, rail and rapid transit lines during fiscal 1976.

The money is sought specifically for subsidies to bus lines, including the Chicago Transit Authority and the North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTRAN).

NORTRAN Executive Director Joseph DiJohn said the district would endorse the RTA fund request if the RTA would promise to meet 100 per cent of NORTRAN's deficits.

Pikarsky refused to make such a promise at the meeting. He said NORTRAN would be foolish to oppose the application for federal grants for its own subsidies.

The other railroads joining in the letter were the Milwaukee Road, the Chicago and North Western Ry., the Illinois Central-Gulf R.R., the Norfolk and Western Ry., The Rock Island Line and the Chicago South Shore and South Bend R.R.

Chicago teachers continue 2 strikes

Some 4,000 whistle-blowing Chicago public school teachers and another 600 city college teachers and sympathizers picketed again Wednesday with no sign of a breakthrough in either strike. The Chicago Teachers Union strike kept more than a half million children out of schools for a sixth day. A spokesman for the college teachers' union said any further negotiations with the city college's administration would have to be conducted at the House of Correction, where Cook County Teachers Union Pres. Norman Swenson is lodged after disobeying a court order to get the 1,400 striking teachers back in class. A union policy requires that "the entire negotiating team must be present at all negotiating sessions."

Meadows' manager leaving

Although The Herald has learned Rolling Meadows City Mgr. James Watson will leave his post Oct. 1, city hall sources disagree on whether he has resigned or was fired by Mayor Roland J. Meyer. Watson's departure apparently was discussed by aldermen in an executive session Tuesday night, and three council members confirmed after the closed-door session they were told by Meyer that Watson is being replaced by a professional city manager. Watson, 58, has been the city's top administrator for the last six years.

Year-round racing up to Walker

Gov. Dan Walker is expected to act today on a bill which would legalize thoroughbred racing in Illinois year-round, including Sundays. But even if the bill becomes law, communities like Arlington Heights would still have the power to deny Sunday racing. If Walker fails to act by midnight today, the bill automatically will become law. The bill states Sunday racing can be granted either by local ordinance or referendum.

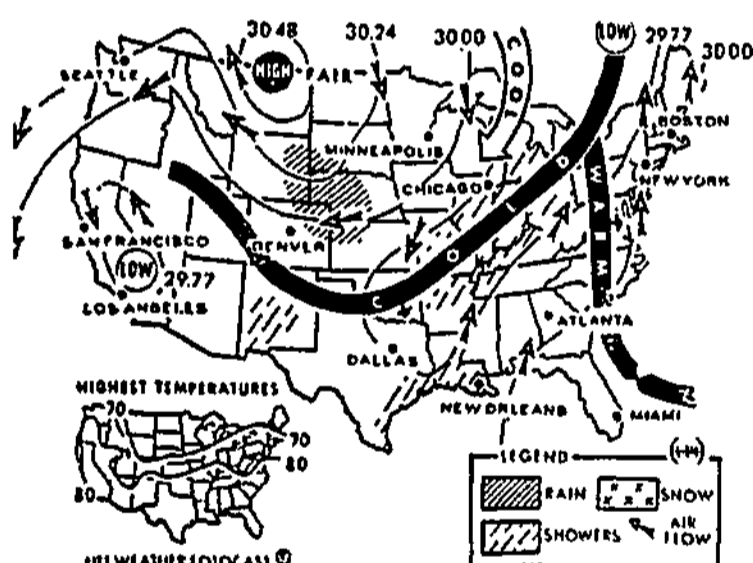

Union violating court order: Centel

Central Telephone Co. attorneys Wednesday charged striking members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 338, have violated a Circuit Court restraining order, requiring the union to adhere to certain procedures when picketing company facilities, and should be held in contempt of court. Circuit Court Judge Samuel B. Epstein has scheduled a hearing for Sept. 19 and has ordered several union officials to appear and answer the charges. Since the 900 workers went on strike July 1, there have been several incidents of vandalism and harassment of management officials, a company spokesman said.

Repairs at Central Road crossing

Repairs were under way Wednesday at the railroad crossing at Central Road and Northwest Highway after Mount Prospect officials complained loose spikes at the rough crossing were tearing off mufflers and bumpers of passing cars. But Glenn Kerbs, assistant division manager of engineering for the Chicago and North Western Ry., said the repairs are only part of routine maintenance. Last week, the village posted "rough crossing" signs at Central Road, although the state has control of that right-of-way.

Fromme indicted for attempted murder

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — A federal grand jury Wednesday indicted Manson cultist Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme on a charge of attempting to murder President Ford with a .45-caliber pistol as he shook hands with well-wishers.

If convicted, Miss Fromme, 26, described as one of the most slavish apostles of imprisoned mass murderer Charles Manson, faces a possible life term in prison under a law enacted after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Chief U.S. District Court Judge Thomas MacBride read the indictment aloud. Neither Miss Fromme nor her court-appointed defense attorney was present.

The indictment charged Miss Fromme "did knowingly and willfully attempt to kill Gerald R. Ford, President of the United States of America."

U.S. Attorney Dwayne Keyes told newsmen after the indictment that he expects to go to trial in 60 to 90 days.

Miss Fromme, held on $1 million bail, is scheduled for arraignment Thursday, when she will have the opportunity to enter a plea. She is represented by E. Richard Walker, a federal public defender.

Keyes said the indictment did not "rule out" the possibility of other arrests for conspiracy in the assassination attempt Friday against Ford as he greeted well-wishers on a sidewalk outside the California state Capitol.

But Keyes declined to comment further, citing a gag order issued by MacBride, which prohibits those involved in the case from discussing it with newsmen. Keyes previously said investigators found no evidence of a conspiracy.

The 22-member grand jury met all day amid unusually heavy security and handed up the indictment with eight other routine cases after hearing an outline of the government's case against Miss Fromme.

She was arrested Friday moments after she aimed a loaded .45-caliber pistol at the President from point blank range as he greeted and shook hands with a crowd of well-wishers outside the California State Capitol.

In 1972 Miss Fromme was charged in Stockton, Calif., with murder in the slaying of Lauren Willet, 19, whose body was found buried in the basement of a house occupied by Manson followers. She was freed later for lack of evidence.

At the Federal Building in Sacramento, corridors to the courtrooms were blocked off by security officers. Court attaches refused to confirm that the grand jury had convened despite previous announcement by U.S. Attorney Dwayne Keyes that he would submit his case against 26-year-old "Squeaky" Fromme Wednesday.

It was learned, however, that witnesses were ushered quietly into the building several hours before the scheduled 10 a.m. session through an indirect route and into elevators normally used only by judges.

The owner of the weapon was identified Tuesday as Harold Eugene Boro, 66, a retired civilian draftsman for the Air Force. State government sources said intelligence reports indicated he was a "sugar daddy" to Miss Fromme and her roommate, Sandra Good, 31, another Manson clan member.

Former neighbors of Boro, described as a loner who recently moved from Sacramento to the Gold Rush community of Jackson about 40 miles away, said Miss Fromme had visited him at least three times at his Sacramento home.

'Jaws' tops 'The Godfather' at box office

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "Jaws" has become the biggest money-making movie in cinema history, Universal Studios has announced. In the 78 days since its release, the tale of a giant shark eating his way through the swimmers of a New England beach resort has taken in $124.3 million at the box office, surpassing the record set by "The Godfather."

The box office take, measured up to last Friday represents the United States and Canada alone. Foreign showings will not begin until December.

In Seattle, meanwhile, sharks had motorists on edge this week.

There was plenty of quick stopping and a few squeals of brakes as drivers halted to gawk at a 16-foot frozen Great White shark being unloaded at a taxidermy shop.

The 3,200-pound fish, caught by a commercial fisherman in 1969, will be prepared for display as the main attraction in the shark exhibit of the Seattle Aquarium next summer.

The shark has been in a deep freeze since Ray Nelson caught it in a tangle of nets, chains and other fishing gear the fish snagged.

Senate sustains Ford's oil control veto

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate sustained President Ford's veto of continued oil price controls Wednesday despite claims by Democrats that "America's working people" would pay the price — soon — in higher energy costs.

The 61 to 39 vote killed a determined effort by Democrats to keep federal price and allocation controls in place for six more months. The vote failed by six ballots to muster the necessary two-thirds majority to override a veto.

Ford hailed the Senate action as a "first step toward curbing never-ending fuel price increases and our growing dependence on foreign oil producers."

He also pledged he would try, one way or another, to eliminate the worst economic impacts of decontrol.

Administration officials hope to reach a fast compromise with Congress on new legislation reimposing controls for 45 days, followed by another bill removing controls gradually over 39 months.

Ford said he would work with Congress to achieve that compromise "if Congress wishes to achieve decontrol more gradually."

Ford said: "In the long run it could well be a victory for homeowners who use heating oil, for drivers who buy gasoline, for factories and utilities which consume fuel to power their machinery, for farmers who use fuel to run their equipment and dry their crops — for all Americans who depend on energy for their jobs and comfort and prosperity."

In other energy matters Wednesday:

The Organization of Oil Exporting Countries will probably raise petroleum prices 10 to 15 per cent on Oct. 1, Asst. Treasury Sec. Gerald Parsky said. He said Saudi favors holding prices at current levels of about $11 per barrel, but he said moderate influences probably would not be enough to prevent increases when OPEC's self-imposed nine-month price freeze expires.

The administration sent Congress emergency legislation to ease the impact of an anticipated natural gas crisis this winter, urging passage of the bill without "a single moment's delay."

The House Ways and Means Committee, ignoring administration objections, voted to abolish 90 per cent of the tax shelters available to outside investors in oil and gas drilling.

"A large number of defenseless old men, women and children were systematically shot and killed by Calley and other American soldiers in what must be regarded as one of the most tragic chapters in the history of this nation's armed forces," the majority opinion said.

Calley has been free since last year when his 1971 Army court-martial conviction for killing 22 civilians at My Lai was overturned by a federal district judge because of massive pretrial publicity.

The Vietnamese civilians were slain in an assault by Calley's platoon March 16, 1968. Despite the latest ruling, it is virtually certain he will remain free since the Army granted Calley a parole last Nov. 19. Calley's attorney said they would appeal the decision.

The military refused to abandon its appeal to the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals because it felt the civilian court exceeded its power in overturning the military court martial. The circuit court reinstated the conviction in an 8-5 decision following nearly seven months of deliberation.

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A federal appeals court reinstated the conviction of former Army Lt. William L. Calley Wednesday, saying his platoon's assault on the Vietnamese hamlet of My Lai was "one of the most tragic chapters in the history of this nation's armed forces."

My Lai incident to his defense attorney.

But the majority held, "The testimony in question was never available to the prosecution, which not only did not benefit from the information but was not responsible for its nonproduction."

J. Houston Gordon, Calley's Covington, Tenn., attorney said, "We'll see what the Supreme Court has to say about it. We will appeal."

Gordon said Calley was working in Columbus, Ga., but declined to identify his employer.

The federal district judge who overturned Calley's court-martial conviction last Sept. 25 did so on grounds of massive pretrial publicity.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Wednesday delivered to House investigators secret American intelligence reports received just prior to the 1973 Mideast war, along with a stern warning that they must not be made public.

The documents — running some 100 pages — were delivered to a House committee investigating intelligence activities within hours after the committee voted to subpoena materials it deems vital to its probe.

"This is the most sensitive information a government can have," White House Counsel Roderick Hills told UPI. "To put it out to the public would substantially compromise the security of the United States."

Hills said the classified documents, representing daily bulletins to President Richard M. Nixon from the "intelligence community" from Sept. 23 through Oct. 7, 1973, were provided on the condition that committee chairman Otis Pike, D-N.Y., will keep them secret.

Pike could not be reached immediately for comment.

Hills said the White House was "disappointed" that Pike asked that the documents be declassified, but said "we'll do our best to respond."

Pike intends to begin public hearings Thursday on how well American intelligence agencies function, beginning with their work prior to the Arab-Israeli war two years ago.

Meanwhile, Senate investigators questioned former CIA Director Richard Helms on his knowledge of the stockpiling of two lethal bacteriological toxins despite a 1973 presidential order to destroy them. Sen. Frank Church disclosed large quantities of other dangerous chemicals and poisons have also been hoarded by the CIA.

Pike's committee voted to subpoena intelligence briefings given to the White House in the weeks prior to the 1968 Tet offensive in Vietnam, the 1973 Arab-Israeli war, the 1974 Turkish invasion of Cyprus and last year's military coup in Portugal.

President Lyndon B. Johnson was president during the Tet offensive. The other crises occurred during Nixon's administration.

In asking his committee for subpoena authority, Pike said it was his plan to "look at what our intelligence community was saying about each situation immediately before the situation took place..." Pike said. "We can't evaluate their worth without knowing the results."

U.S. teachers continue to picket

New York City teachers Wednesday defied a judge's back-to-the-classrooms order and thousands of whistle-blowing Chicago teachers picketed school board offices in the city's Loop. A band of youngsters, staging a counter-demonstration, marched around Chicago City Hall carrying signs pleading "We want an education now."

In Boston antibusing leader Louise Day Hicks led 300 praying women up Bunker Hill in a nonviolent repeat of a "mother's march" Tuesday which tested police lines. Mrs. Hicks charged court-ordered desegregation has turned the city into an armed camp.

In Kentucky, Gov. Julian Carroll said he will hold the U.S. government accountable for law enforcement costs — notably the costs of activating the Kentucky National Guard — to halt turbulent protests against school busing.

'Tony' Boyle will be sentenced today

W. A. "Tony" Boyle, once described as the "cunning originator" of the assassination of United Mine Workers union rival Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski and two members of his family, will be sentenced to life imprisonment Thursday. Boyle, 73, former president of the UMW, will appear before Delaware County Judge Francis J. Catania to be formally sentenced for the New Year's Eve, 1969 slayings of Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

Special Prosecutor Richard A. Sprague said on the eve of sentencing that Boyle deserved the death penalty for the slayings and he did not have the "slightest thought that Boyle might be innocent of ordering the killings."

Environmental row erupts over Bears stadium

Another controversy has grown up around the proposed Chicago Bears football stadium and the environmental consequences the project might have.

Arlington Heights' Environmental Control Commission is recommending a $60,000 study of the question be made by a private consulting firm, Environmental Technology Assessments, Oak Brook.

Madison Square Garden Corp., owner of Arlington Park Race Track where the stadium would be built, has restated its position that an environmental report it commissioned is valid.

THE ECC HAS criticized Madison Square Garden's report, charging that facts and conclusions are contradictory and lacking in detail. The report concluded there were no serious environmental problems connected with the stadium plan.

To remove any doubt about the validity and impartiality of the findings, the ECC says an independent consultant should be hired by the village, but paid for by Madison Square Garden.

"There is a shadow of doubt hanging over the material submitted by Madison Square Garden," says ECC Chairman Jean Hanlon. "It disturbs me to have people with a vested interest doing the report."

"It is important that the citizens believe in the results of the material that is presented," she said. "Our questions (about the Madison Square Garden report) have not been answered. And I think this is a very peculiar way to go about getting a development approved in Arlington Heights."

MRS. HANLON said Environmental Technology Assessments was chosen from among six consultants interviewed by the ECC.

The firm was recommended because of its experience with environmental studies, knowledge of state and federal pollution regulations and sophisticated air and noise monitoring techniques, she said.

But William Moore, attorney for Madison Square Garden, says the necessary environmental study already has been made.

"We feel we did adequately respond to all (the ECC's) inquiry with candor and appropriate specific detail," he said in a recent letter to the village board.

Styling Studio for men creates a stir

Though he works with water and scissors instead of paintbrushes and oils, John Pfeifer, owner of El Cid Hairstyling, 81 1/2 Broadway Ave., Des Plaines, considers the work he does an art. Like any other art, it has required a good deal of study and hard work, and a willingness to change his style to keep up with the times.

The idea of the neighborhood barber has changed over the years. "I don't cut hair to fit just a person's face, but to fit his whole structure," says Pfeifer, who, after 15 years of hair-cutting, teaching, study and competition is something of an expert. However, for the staff at El Cid, which includes, most recently Sandy Schuster, a female stylist, the individual is the key. Pfeifer, Sandy and Art Munzer who are all progressive and qualified in hairstyling, take the customer's preference into account when determining a hairstyle for him, whenever that preference is feasible.

When a man walks in El Cid, I can pretty much determine what style I would like for him," Pfeifer adds. He may say "I want a haircut like John Denver, or Tony Orlando." What he doesn't realize is that particular style might not be good for his facial structure, says Pfeifer. "In fact his hair might not be of the proper texture."

Hairstyling as opposed to "getting a haircut" has caught on, the staff believes, because of a recent emphasis in society on the whole concept of good, easy grooming for men and women. "It's like the difference between buying a suit off the rack or having it tailored for you. Practically no one is an average size, and most men are willing that an investment like a good suit be tailored just for them," says Pfeifer. A hairstyle, unlike a suit, he adds, is something a person wears every day, for every occasion.

When a customer enters El Cid's Spanish style interior, his hair is washed even before a style is discussed. "It's absolutely essential," says Pfeifer. "The days of cutting a soiled head of hair are gone." Shampooing hair allows stylists at El Cid to read the growth pattern of the hair, find out where cowlicks lie, and make sure that the hairstyle will be one the customer will be able to maintain easily at home. "It used to be the practice to cut hair as it was," he adds, "but men were finding that, though the haircut looked good in the shop, when it was washed at home, it stood up, stuck out or wouldn't be correctly."

Pfeifer recommends an acid-balanced shampoo to his clients, but insists that it be an organic variety, which the shop can supply. "The commercial brands may advertise PH balance, but the ingredients are not natural, so it does nothing for the hair. A good acid balanced shampoo is gentle and leaves the hair, after washing, in its natural state."

Pfeifer dispels the old myth that too much washing makes for early baldness. Baldness may result from too much washing with a harsh shampoo, but a natural shampoo can be used as often as the individual desires. On an active day, Pfeifer, who lives with his wife and son in Mt. Prospect, might wash his own hair three times.

Short styles are returning, Pfeifer says, because they require less care. "We used to always overdo everything," he says, "from the greasy, lacquered look to dry, flyaway styles. The happy medium doesn't suffocate the scalp, and is easy to care for."

The staff at El Cid is now equipped to cut and style women's hair also. Women, Pfeifer believes, are becoming more active and just don't want to spend long hours at home or in a beauty parlor trying to achieve an artificial style. "They want a style they can wash and dry in fifteen minutes, and be out on the tennis courts," he believes.

Total hair maintenance is also available at El Cid, in the form of permanent body waving, hair straightening, coloring and hairpieces.

El Cid is also introducing body waving for men. Pfeifer says that more and more men are asking for this service. It enables a man to wear longer styles without style collapse or constant grooming. Hair has more body and is easy to maintain. It gives thin or thinning hair more coverage and a more natural look.

With a permanent body wave a man is no longer limited to one certain style. By the nature of his hair, he can have any degree of wave he wants, even a very curly look.

The service is simple, not fussy but thorough. Five years at the same location and customers who keep coming back attest to the fact.

Civic unit files stadium opposition

The Hasbrook Civic Assn. has filed its opposition with the village to the Chicago Bears football stadium proposed for Arlington Park Race Track.

The association's position is based upon a survey of Hasbrook residents in which 58 per cent of the subdivision homeowners said they were against the stadium. According to the poll, 89 per cent of the residents opposed public financing for the project. Only 17 per cent favored the project.

"The Hasbrook Civic Assn. is strongly against the stadium. We believe there is little or no support, particularly for public financing, and the (village) board should turn down the proposal as it now stands," said Richard Connel, association president.

There are 500 homes in the Hasbrook subdivision north of Thomas Street east and west of Ridge Avenue.

Gun shop restrictions OK'd

A controversial ordinance putting new restrictions on gun dealers in Arlington Heights has been passed by the village board.

The ordinance requires dealers to keep hand guns under lock and key at all times except when showing them to customers for possible sale.

The law prohibits display of firearms in store windows. An alarm system approved by the police department also will be required in every gun store.

2 banks to cash teachers' notes

by DOROTHY OLIVER

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 teachers will be able to cash the special security notes being issued by the district at two banks Friday.

Mount Prospect State Bank, which is issuing the notes instead of regular paychecks, is working out an arrangement so teachers who are customers of the Bank of Elk Grove can cash the notes at that bank.

Dist. 59 teachers will be paid through teachers' orders, a type of promissory note, for six pay periods, beginning Friday. The Dist. 59 board approved issuing $1.5 million in teachers' orders to pay salaries because of an anticipated $1.5 million budget deficit this year.

James Lancaster, president of the Bank of Elk Grove, said Wednesday he has received a "verbal commitment" from Mount Prospect State Bank officials that they would be able to cash the notes.

"We will only be able to handle items on behalf of the customers of our bank," Lancaster said. "I would guess that right now we have in the neighborhood of 100 teachers with accounts here."

Richard Padula, president of Mount Prospect State Bank, said talks with Lancaster should be completed by Thursday so the Bank of Elk Grove can process the teachers' orders. Padula said the orders are not handled like regular paychecks by banks and therefore cannot be cashed at every bank.

"This is script in effect," Padula said. "The bank clearing system that is used for checks is not available for teachers' orders." Padula said the legal procedure for cashing the orders is to take them to the bank which originally issued them. He said special arrangements with the Bank of Elk Grove will be made, but no other bank has contacted him to become a collection point.

PADULA DISAGREED with a comment made Tuesday by the president of the Dist. 59 teachers' union that the bank is not making any special provisions to give teachers more time to cash the notes and that it is trying to get more customers by offering checking accounts to the teachers.

"The bank is taking every precaution to make sure everyone is accommodated. We are still working with our tellers on setting up how this will be handled," he said.

"The thing that I'm most concerned about is her (union president Alma Parrish) statement that the bank is insisting teachers open an account here. It's not unusual for a bank to offer its most convenient service to people. If a teacher had a checking account here, it would be most convenient for them to simply deposit the teachers' order directly into their account."

"We are not trying to capitalize on the financial situation in Dist. 59. This bank has been very responsive to the urgent financial needs of the district," Padula said.

Stock prices down sharply

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices plunged for the second straight day on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, a 12.36-point loser Tuesday, fell another 10.09 points to 817.66, bringing its two-day loss to 22.45 points. It had been off more than 15 points prior to some last-minute bargain hunting.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index dropped 0.81 to 83.79. The average price of an NYSE common share decreased by 31 cents. Declines routed advances, 1,134 to 237, among the 1,766 issues crossing the tape.

Volume totaled 14,780,000 shares, compared with 15,790,000 traded Tuesday.

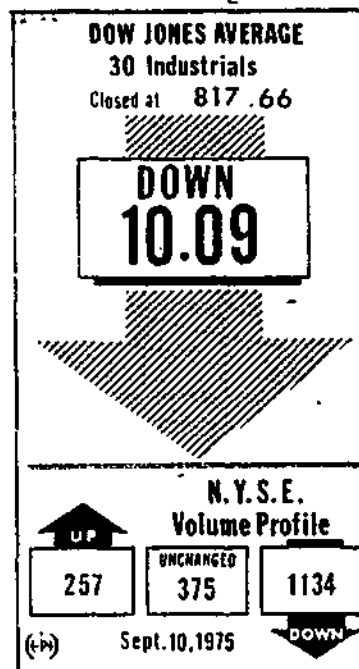

AMERICAN TELEPHONE & Telegraph lost 3/4 to 46 1/2 in active trading following a Wall Street Journal report of concern AT&T's 12 million share offering scheduled for October would dilute present shareholders' equity.

Pan American World Airways, the third most active issue, gained 3/8 to 4-1/8 on 187,200 shares. The financially ailing airline said it expected to report record third quarter earnings this year, compared with a loss a year ago.

Other airlines, however, were lower. Prospects of higher fuel prices prompted some selling, analysts said. UAL Inc., lost 1 to 19 7/8, Northwest 7/8 to 18 1/4 and Delta 7/8 to 32.

Prices closed sharply lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex market value index fell 0.97 to 84.12. Volume totaled 1,450,000 shares, compared with 1,420,000 Tuesday.

7th suspected area case of encephalitis reported

A 60-year-old Mount Prospect woman was reported in good condition Wednesday at Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, suffering from what doctors termed a "suspected" case of encephalitis.

She is the area's seventh suspected victim of the disease.

Hospital officials said the woman has symptoms of a viral infection. The Illinois Dept. of Public Health has been asked to run laboratory tests for encephalitis on the woman.

The state reported 16 new cases Wednesday, including six confirmed, from downstate Illinois, bringing the official statewide total to 199. So far the state has confirmed the diagnosis of encephalitis in 42 of the cases. No new cases were reported in Cook County.

Several of the cases listed as "suspected" by Northwest suburban hospitals have not yet been put on the state's official list because of the delay in completing laboratory tests on the patients.

STATE OFFICIALS said earlier this week the peak of the epidemic seems to have passed, though cases may continue to be reported for several weeks. Encephalitis is carried by birds and is passed to humans by mosquitoes.

Six patients previously reported by area hospitals as being suspected of having the disease were listed in improving condition Wednesday.

Harper faculty seat fight revives

By WANDALYN RICE

The long-standing controversy over a faculty seat on the Harper College Board of Trustees will be revived tonight by board member Robert Rausch.

Rausch Tuesday said he will introduce a proposal to seat a faculty member on the board at the board's regular meeting at 8 p.m. at the college. Similar proposals have been discussed and rejected by the college board in the past.

Rausch said he has agreed not to ask for a vote on the issue until the board's October meeting, but said he expects it to be discussed this week.

HAUSCH SAID he hopes the board will provide the faculty board seat whether or not the college faculty votes to affiliate with a union. He said, "Even if we had a union it would be important to have a faculty member on the board because unions tend to formalize channels of communication and make them even more rigid."

The Harper faculty is scheduled to decide whether to affiliate with a union this month. The faculty members are hearing presentations this week from the Cook County College Teachers Union, the Illinois Education Assn. and the American Assn. of University Professors.

The faculty seat on the college board was requested in 1973 and 1974 by then Faculty Senate Pres. Robert Powell, who argued that the faculty senate president should be seated at the college board table in the same position as the elected representative of the students.

In 1973, the college board refused the faculty seat on the board but agreed to allow Powell to sit with the college's vice presidents at a table near the board table.

In 1974, Powell renewed his request for a board seat, saying the position with the vice presidents was not satisfactory because he could only join board discussions by interrupting.

THE BOARD GRANTED the faculty seat by a 4-2 vote in June 1974, with one member absent, only to rescind the action at its next meeting by a 4-3 vote.

Rausch said his proposal will differ from past proposals because it calls for a faculty representative to be specially elected by the faculty, rather than seating the faculty senate president on the board.

Newly elected Faculty Senate Pres. David Macaulay said he is not sure what the faculty reaction to the new proposal will be. "I can't speak for the faculty right now," he said. "I expect this to be discussed by the faculty senate."

Cost of pollution control studied

by LIA TONKIN

A full accounting of the cost burdens imposed by Illinois pollution control regulations will be required under a new state law. The measure, Senate bill 807, is the first state law in the U.S. to require comprehensive economic impact studies of pollution cleanup requirements.

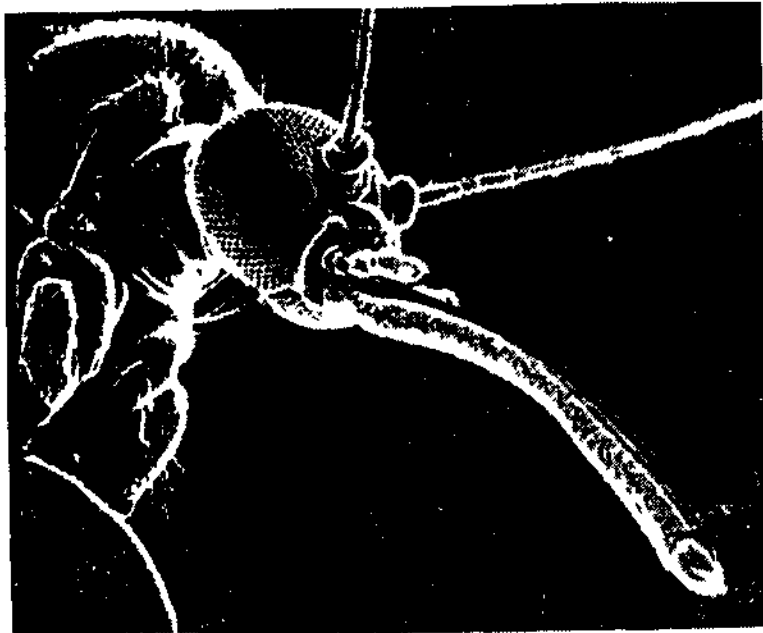

All proposed pollution control rules and selected existing regulations will be studied by the Illinois Institute for Environmental Quality. Economic impact proposals have been criticized by environmental groups as redundant legislation but S. 807 was backed by business groups such as the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce. "This new legislation will lead towards a better understanding of both the environmental benefits and economic costs of our state's pollution control regulations," said Raymond Bodnar, the chamber's environmental affairs manager. The bill was sponsored by State Sen. John Knuppel, D-Virginia and State Rep. Tom McMaster, R-Onondaga.

An Alternative Energy Symposium is slated for Sept. 13 at Starved Rock State Park near Ottawa. The conference is sponsored by the State Dept. of Conservation and Dept. of Business and Economic Development. Conservation Dept. director Tony Dean said the program will include discussion of alternatives to reliance on fossil fuels and recreational activities that cause minimal damage to the environment. Coal gasification, solar energy and methane gas production research are among the discussion topics. For additional information on the free public meeting, call 815-667-4900.

Flowers need mosquitos

The lowly mosquito has a friend, despite its role in the current encephalitis epidemic. University of Utah researcher Lewis Nielsen said the insects play an important role in wildflower survival.

Male mosquitoes, like bees, feed on the nectar of flowers. "What we're trying to show is that as the mosquitoes fly from flower to flower they also pollinate the blossoms and enable the flowers to reproduce," Nielsen, an entomologist, said mosquitos pollinate some tiny flowers that bees ignore, such as forget-me-nots.

The pesky insects play another role in nature, says the National Wildlife Federation. The mosquito is a source of food to such predators as fish, bats, birds, dragonflies and spiders.

Audubon Society to meet

The Prairie Woods Audubon Society, a chapter of the National Audubon Society, will meet Sept. 18 at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library in Arlington Heights. U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service representatives will offer a slide presentation and discussion of their work as administrators of the Upper Mississippi Wildlife Refuge. The meeting will start at 7:30 p.m.

Chicago canal system tours

Waterway cruises and environmental workshops are slated Sept. 27 and Oct. 11, said the Illinois Pollution Control Board. The seven-hour tours of the Chicago canal system will feature discussion of water, air, noise and other pollution problems. The cost is $12. For additional information, contact Eileen Johnston at 251-4386 before Sept. 18.

Animals face extinction

Some of the world's most rare and ferocious animals face extinction unless the Indian government acts to preserve their habitat, according to an article in the current issue of International Wildlife magazine. The Bengal tiger, the Asiatic lion, the one-horned rhinoceros and the snow leopard are victims of a battle between people and wildlife, said writer Hal Harrison.

The key wildlife issue is whether the needs of endangered species can be reconciled with the demand for more living space by an Indian population of 600 million persons, he said. Destruction of wildlife habitat in India's national parks, poaching and livestock grazing affect the animals.

The tourism potential of India's wildlife may convince citizens the preservation effort is worthwhile, Harrison said. Indian Cabinet Minister Karan Singh said, "If a situation arises in any country where wildlife cannot exist, ultimately human beings will not be able to exist either. People need the same ecological support that is required by wildlife."

Interpretations differ

Mideast peace plan criticized

Mail to two Northwest suburban congressmen is running 95 per cent opposed to the use of Americans to monitor the Sinai in the Israeli-Egyptian peace agreement.

But the two congressmen, Abner Mikva, D-10th, and Philip M. Crane, R-12th, interpret the opposition differently.

Crane opposes American intervention in the Mideast. He has received 20 letters about the peace proposal, and all are critical of the plan.

Mikva told The Herald he "probably" will support the peace plan negotiated by Sec. of State Henry Kissinger. Twenty-six of 28 letters to Mikva oppose the plan.

"DON'T BE misled," Mikva said. "These letters are an emotional response and are a classic example of how a small response can be misleading. Once people are made aware of the terms, they will support it."

Mikva said the 28 letters do not indicate "the response of more than 475,000 people" in the 10th Congressional District.

Crane said persons who have written to him question the cost of the plan and fear future American involvement in the internal affairs of Egypt and Israel.

"I am personally very opposed to the plan. The responsibility can be handled by the Israelis and the Egyptians on an alternating basis," Crane said. If technicians are needed to keep the peace, Crane said the two countries should hire the technical help.

Crane said he has reservations regarding the cost of putting the American technicians along boundaries of the two countries, but he said he was withholding judgment until the cost could be determined.

HE SAID HE has heard estimates that the pact could cost the United States anywhere from $200 million to $9 billion.

Mikva estimated that cost of the peace-keeping will be "less than the interest it cost to fight Vietnam for one year."

"I think this proposal will go through Congress fairly easily," Mikva said. "I think you can see that it's a good proposal because extremists on both sides are opposed to it."

Crane said he also feared the presence of American civilians in the Middle East could lead to American military intervention if war is re-nited. "We could be caught in a cross-fire," Crane said.

Letters sent to President Gerald Ford have been running 10 to 1 against the plan. But Ford has said he expects the House and Senate to approve the plan despite the opposition mail congressmen are receiving.

FORD HAS received 511 letters opposing the plan and only 54 letters that support such an American presence in the Middle East, the White House announced.

Ford met Monday for an hour in the cabinet room with the representatives of more than 30 leading Jewish organizations, and one of those present said the group expressed "overwhelming support" for the pact.

Ford asked the Jewish leaders to advise congressmen of their support for the pact and the resolution which will be submitted to the House and Senate for approval of the use of American technicians.

Scott rules for officials in slander cases

School board members and school administrators cannot be sued or slandered by teachers they criticize at public board meetings, according to an opinion from Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott.

Scott said board members and administrators acting in a public meeting have "absolute privilege" for statements they make in public meetings. The privilege protects them from liability for slanderous statements, Scott said.

Scott declined to give a formal opinion on whether members of the general public who make derogatory statements about public employees at official meetings are protected from lawsuits. However, Scott noted general statements made by the public have conditional protection if made "in good faith, without malice, to the proper officials."

Scott's opinion was issued in reply to a request from the state's attorney of Whiteside County. Opinions by the attorney general can be tested in court.

Herald opinion

Stabilize electrical rate

An unpleasant reality of the inflation-plagued 1970s is that one of our most abundant and cheapest necessities, electric power, rapidly is becoming a high-priced commodity which fewer and fewer of us can afford.

Last month, the Illinois Commerce Commission granted Commonwealth Edison a 6.87 per cent rate increase. Coupled with a February rate hike, we're paying at least 12.7 per cent more for electricity in 1975 than we did in 1974.

But Commonwealth Edison's rate spiral is only part of a national pattern of utility rates which are zooming out of control. It's a new cost problem for residents of this country, for between 1941 and 1970, rates remained stable across the United States.

But between 1970 and 1974, rates increased by one-third. Between March, 1973, and May, 1974, the cost of all utilities (including gas and telephone service) on the Consumer Price Index climbed faster than the cost of food, cars, medical care or housing.

And, despite the fact that revenues and profits have soared for electrical utilities, the cry has gone out again and again for rate increases. The increasing demand for electricity, the inflated cost of all goods and services and the need to develop new power plants are all cited as reasons. But energy costs are not the only reason; Commonwealth Edison officials contend a rate increase is needed to keep its stock attractive for investors, in order to continue to gain funds to speed capital development.

If we're ever to ease this upward rate spiral, the Illinois Commerce Commission must be the primary battleground.

REGULATION

In general, the ICC must begin by demanding proof that Commonwealth Edison is using its revenues wisely and frugally. This giant utility owes it to its inflation-wracked customers to cut all unwarranted expenses. Proof of that efficiency should be demanded when Commonwealth Edison seeks its next rate increase.

In August, when the ICC approved the 6.87 per cent rate hike, it made one solid step towards frugality. It slashed by 50 per cent the utility's $2.6 million advertising budget.

More importantly, however, it told Commonwealth Edison to investigate "time-of-day" pricing, in which use of electricity during off-peak usage hours is encouraged by lower electrical rates.

We would have preferred, however, for the ICC to conduct its own investigation. Such pricing has been mandated in Vermont, and the logic behind it is simple. Parking lots and movie theaters often offer discount rates in off-peak hours, and that principle could be extended to electricity.

The ICC, however, unwisely rejected the idea of "lifeline" rates, in which persons who use less electricity get lower rates. This plan, which could have eased the rate burden on the poor and the elderly, should be thoroughly studied by the ICC.

POWER PLANTS

The keystone of Commonwealth Edison's argument for higher rates rests with its self-proclaimed need to build more nuclear power plants.

Today, however, nuclear power isn't the shining energy source it was once believed to be. The U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration reported recently that 126 of 180 plants built or planned were deferred for at least six months in 1974. Fourteen were cancelled.

In addition, the efficiency of nuclear power plants has been questioned. According to the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, plant efficiency dropped sharply between 1973 and the first six months of 1974. Included were drops in efficiency at the three Commonwealth Edison plants at Dresden, Ill.

Finally, there's a raging controversy today over the safety of such plants. Proponents contend that the plants are almost completely safe, while critics argue that nuclear accidents are a frequent problem throughout the industry.

If added power plants are needed in Illinois — and we would hope that energy conservation could forestall them — coal-burning plants should be considered as alternatives. Statistics show that such plants are 30 per cent less expensive to build than nuclear plants.

Coal plants are prime producers of sulphur pollution. There are projects under way, however, which indicate that it may be possible eventually to meet federal air pollution standards for such plants.

Perhaps the electrical power industry should consider a trade-off; perhaps the pollution problems created by coal are preferable to the pollution hazards inherent in nuclear power. It's an issue that the ICC and other agencies should consider in the future.

OTHER ACTIONS

But solutions to the electrical rate problem must not be limited to what the ICC can do. For example, three small communities recently approved municipal control of public utilities. If the cost of building new power plants can't be reined in by private utilities, perhaps local government should be asked to do the job much as it supplies water and sewer service.

Finally, an interlocking national power-grid, capable of distributing power across the United States, should be considered. Anyone who can recall the 1965 New York City blackout is aware of this system's potential for problems, but at least it should be considered as a long-term possibility.

CONCLUSIONS

No responsible critic of Commonwealth Edison denies that this nation's electrical needs have escalated in the past few years, nor that inflation affects Commonwealth Edison as it affects every citizen's budget.

We aren't unsympathetic to Commonwealth Edison's cost problems, but since they are passed along to every consumer they must be scrutinized. A serious program of incentive-based energy conservation, coupled with a restrained construction program and buttressed by a watchful ICC, hopefully can stabilize the mounting cost of electrical energy.

Bill's need questioned

Illinois legislators were somewhat startled recently when they found organized opposition to a proposed law entitled the Freedom of Information Act, which would make it a matter of statute that public records are public records.

It would not have been so surprising if the people who keep those records, like tax collectors and village clerks and police agencies, had banded together to oppose the bill.

But instead the people who rallied in opposition to it were the people who most frequently ask to inspect public records — members of the press.

WHAT THE VARIOUS reporters and editors told the subcommittee of the House Executive Committee, in effect, was, "Leave us alone. We have a right to the information, and we will get it ourselves."

"I was surprised at first," said Rep. John Matijevich, D-North Chicago, "but as I listened to their testimony, I became less surprised."

Matijevich said that testimony by journalists citing the Open Meetings Act of 1967 brought to the attention of the committee members some dangers in formalizing the public's right to public documents which they had not previously considered.

The Open Meetings Act was passed, with the sponsorship of former Rep. Anthony Scariano of Chicago Heights, with the support and pressure of the press, which had for years argued that too many governmental bodies too often arbitrarily shut out the public from their discussions.

THE LAW, IN ITS present state, contains a few reasonable exceptions under which governmental bodies may go behind closed doors. It has been effective in opening up the deliberations of officialdom.

But as a part of the state statutes, it is subject to amendment, which could add exceptions leading government back into the closed-room style. In the last session of the legislature, no less than nine bills to restrict the provisions of the Open Meetings Act were introduced.

Unlike the open meetings concept, the theory of "freedom of information" is based in common law, and bolstered by the First Amendment of the Constitution. In Illinois, at least, the courts have been liberal in ruling in the public's favor when government has resisted disclosing documents in its possession.

WHAT THE PRESS fears is that a law specifying which public records are, indeed, public would be subject to the same kind of attempts at erosion which have been — and will continue to be — directed at the Open Meetings Act.

As C. L. Dancey, editor of the Peoria Journal-Star, told the committee, "We don't want freedom itself bureaucratized."

Matijevich said the press testimony left him and other members of the committee — who started out in near unanimity in its favor — in doubt whether they should redraft the bill or simply drop it.

All of which made Matijevich, one of the original supporters of open meetings and an advocate of open government, happy that the legislature didn't go off half-cocked.

IT IS AN adage in Springfield that the Illinois General Assembly often serves the public better when it rejects legislation than it does when it approves questionable bills.

"The least that may come out of these hearings is that we are legislating properly," said Matijevich. "It doesn't matter if we recommend nothing."

In 'new' Saigon

Recognition a big Viet goal

(Alan Dawson, UPI bureau manager in South Vietnam, left Saigon on government orders last Wednesday. He had reported on events in the country for the past five years, including the Communist takeover on April 30.)

by ALAN DAWSON

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — South Vietnam's Communist government wants American recognition badly — so badly it may be holding the 50 or so Americans still in the country as hostages to force negotiations.

"We want normal relations with the United States," government spokesmen tell anyone who asks.

The reason is simple enough: the nation's economy, battered by 30 years of war and disrupted by the sudden Communist takeover last April, needs massive transfusions of foreign aid.

And, say the leaders of the Provisional Revolutionary Government, it is the United States that must come up with the funds.

"IT IS ONLY natural, according to the history of warfare, that the loser must pay the winner for the damages," said deputy government adviser Tring Dinh Thao in a recent interview.

The U.S. government, however, doesn't see the situation in quite the same light. It has so far refused to recognize the new Communist regime and last month vetoed a move to admit South Vietnam to the United Nations.

Irritated by the brushoff, the PRG has apparently decided not to let Americans out of the country in what could be a move to put pressure on Washington.

It was the only one allowed to leave since the U.N. vote, and my departure was held up by a guard who showed me an order barring all Americans from entering the Saigon airport to board outgoing flights.

About a dozen Americans are under loose detention somewhere in the country. The others are free to roam around Saigon as they please. Intelligence officers following their movements are always friendly, and stress that Communist Vietnamese harbor no ill feelings toward the Americans.

"We know that your people have opposed your government's war on us," a Foreign Ministry official said last week.

NEVERTHELESS, the Americans are convinced they will become hostages in a diplomatic maneuver to prod Washington to change its stand on recognition.

Until that happens, however, the South Vietnamese authorities have decided to make self-sufficiency in food production their first priority, launching a campaign to move more than half of Saigon's 3.5 million people to the countryside.

"We must go backward, however regrettable that is," said Thao. "We must establish self-sufficiency as the first priority to rebuilding the economy. To do that, our people must go back to the farms and the fishing boats."

So far, about 300,000 already have been moved out. But unlike the Khmer Rouge in neighboring Cambodia, the South Vietnamese Communists so far have used persuasion, not force.

Propaganda teams visit each ward of the city often to try to convince the jobless and the poor to go back to the farms, offering them free land, transportation, food and money for the first six months.

Still, the Communists are clearly worried about the shape of the economy and are doing what they can to repair it.

OFFICIALS of the defeated Saigon regime fled with 24 tons of gold — half the nation's supply. Most foreign currency also disappeared from the banks. Imported goods are rising in price and disappearing from the marketplace.

Bank depositors can receive only the equivalent of $12 per month per family member from their accounts, because many of the plasters were looted by bank officials before the American pull-out.

The rich are unhappy, of course, and still apprehensive about the possibility of retaliation. The poor are still poor, but at least are able to sit on committees that discuss national and local policies.

A few bands of anti-Communist soldiers who fought for the former Saigon government are still roaming the Central Highlands area and parts of the Mekong Delta. But most Vietnamese have accepted the PRG victory, and resistance to the new government is dying off.

"What can those soldiers do now?" asked Thao rhetorically.

"They couldn't defeat us with half a million Americans and U.S. aid."

For those who have surrendered, the treatment has not been so harsh as expected. There certainly has been no bloodbath.

IN FACT, many of the senior officials who opposed the Viet Cong in the past are walking around Saigon free to come and go as they please. The last two presidents of the Republic of Vietnam — Tran Van Huong and Gen. Duong Van (Big) Minh — live at home and walk the streets freely.

Foreigners, however, have no place in the Vietnam of the future, except for diplomats and, probably, a handful of reporters.

"Vietnam is for the Vietnamese now," said President Huynh Tan Phat in an interview. His deputy adviser Thao agreed.

"Foreign investment is welcome, but only on the basis of the government owning 51 per cent of the investment," he said.

The U.S. embassy has neither been occupied nor desecrated. A small Viet Cong flag flutters from the main flagpole now, but the building is intact.

On the front wall is a handpainted sign: "Saigon welcomes the forces to liberate the capital city." But inside, all has been left untouched.

So far, at least 82 nations have recognized the PRG, and intend setting up diplomatic missions in Saigon when foreigners are permitted in. No one knows when that might be.

THE SAIGON I left was a sea of flags — the scarlet with yellow star of North Vietnam and the red and blue with gold star of the South. Pictures of Ho Chi Minh were on virtually every wall.

Captured U.S.-made planes and helicopters flew the skies of Vietnam. On the ground, bicycles and public buses have replaced many of the motorcycles, because gasoline costs about $6 a gallon and is getting scarcer.

Soldiers roam the Saigon streets in their pith helmets, fatigues and even those famous black pajamas. Citizens no longer find them a curiosity.

On Sundays, the zoo is busy again. Popular restaurants are filled every night, but those that serve less than the best food are dying.

Streets have been renamed. Tu Do has become "Uprising Street." Another street is now called Nguyen Van Troi for the "hero" executed for trying to kill former Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara on one of his visits to Saigon. There is little doubt that Vietnam is headed for Communism, or socialism as the government prefers to call it. But the new leaders clearly are in no hurry and want to avoid antagonizing people.

Educators play the letter game

Once upon a time students could predict with ease what grades they would get. For any given class they would get an A, B, C, D or F, depending on how well they did.

The system wasn't exactly fair when it was applied to creative subjects like art or to physical education classes where a student might lack physical ability, but the grades had the virtue of simplicity.

Then someone thought of an innovation. Instead of giving letter grades to everyone for all classes, some innovators decided to allow students to take some classes without grades. The student would get a P if he passed the course and an F or NP (for not passed) if he failed.

It was a fine change. College students in particular found they were

Gourmet Food radio topic

"Gourmet Foods," this week's "Focus: Northwest" show sponsored by Harper College, will be broadcast Sunday at 8 a.m. and 9 p.m. on WWMN radio, 92.7 FM.

Sue Sazma, gourmet cooking instructor at Harper College and a home economics teacher at Barrington High School, will talk about food with Elaine Sherman, teacher of gourmet cooking for the Main-Oakton-Niles Adult Continuing Education Program (MONACEP). Also on the show will be Donna Hooper, gourmet cooking instructor at Harper College, and home economics teacher, Barrington High School.

Education today

by Wandalyne Rice

able to take some classes outside their fields without fear of forever losing their grade averages with a D. Teachers in some artistic fields began to give nothing but pass-fail courses and said the change was an improvement.

ALAS! WORTHY innovations often take on a life of their own. Just as the telephone company took Mr. Bell's worthy invention for transmitting important messages and convinced people they needed 10 different models dyed in color to match the drapes, so the innovators who changed the grading system got carried away.

The result has been grade proliferation. A student at Harper College in Palatine, for example, can receive, in addition to the traditional marks, grades of H, N, P, W or X. At Oakton Community College in Morton Grove the possible grades are A, B, C, D, X, N, R, V, W and, since Tuesday night, T.

Oakton has, as you may notice, abolished the F grade. But in the five years of the college's life it has added six new grades. The sixth, T, will be given to students in noncredit classes offered by the college, including continuing education courses and remedial courses. T stands for "taken."

At this point a glossary is in order. At Harper, H stands for audit, N for nonattendance (meaning the teacher never saw the student and so doesn't know if he even earned an F), P for pass, W for withdrawal and X for incomplete (whatever happened to the good, old-fashioned "I" that turned to F in three weeks if work was not completed?)

At Oakton, X stands for course still in progress (a fancy name for incomplete), N means no-show (that faceless student again), R for repeat (the student must repeat the course to get credit), V for adult and W for withdrawal. T, as noted before, stands for taken.

GRADE PROLIFERATION still has new worlds to conquer, however. Between them, Harper and Oakton, for example, have only used 11 of the 26 letters of the alphabet. It remains for additional pioneers to create grades out of such neglected letters as J, Q or Z.

Possibilities abound. A J grade, for example, could mean the student's work was so messy the teacher was unable to grade it. A Z might mean the student snored so much in class he distracted a teacher. A Q could be used anytime the teacher can't think of anything else.

Eventually, however, ingenious people will use up all the letters as grades. This will result in the Great Letter Shortage.

The shortage, which will occur the day someone thinks of a grade and doesn't have a letter to attach to it, will raise the art of grade proliferation to new levels. Such devices as AA, BB, and QQ probably will be rejected as too ordinary.

The solution may be to invent a new alphabet. Perhaps it will entail using the Cyrillic alphabet favored by the Russians for grades. After all, the squiggle that represents the sound "shch" in Russian would make a dandy splash on a report card.

Now, if we can only figure out a grade to go with that letter...

Senate overrides veto of school funds bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- In a lopsided 88-to-12 vote, the Senate Wednesday overrode President Ford's veto of a $7.9 billion education appropriations bill and automatically enacted the measure into law.

The margin was 21 votes more than the two-thirds needed to make the bill a law over the President's objections after similar House action Tuesday.

It was the sixth time Congress has overridden a Ford veto out of the 37 he has cast since taking office Aug. 9, 1974. The heavy Democratic majority has been unable to override such key vetoes as the jobs and energy bills. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., joined 11 conservative Republicans voting to sustain Ford's veto. Sen. Edward Brooke, D-Mass., said Ford's budget requests for education "were inadequate to begin with," especially considering high inflation and unemployment. Ford's request, he said, "was less than realistically could be accepted."

Senators Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and Clifford Hansen, R-Wyo., criticized the bill as irresponsible spending that will feed inflation and lead to depressed economic activity, but Sen. Norris Cotton, R-N.H., replied: "If we are going to be a little generous, it should be in this field of education."

South attempts dummy reversal and wins

South looked over dummy and applied to the C of ARCH. He counted his winners and saw that, while there were 12 in theory, he ought to be satisfied with 11.

Eight trumps and three diamonds would come to 11 and he decided the way to go about this would be to attempt a sort of dummy reversal.

He rose with dummy's ace of diamonds, ruffed a heart, entered dummy with the queen of trumps, ruffed another heart, entered dummy by ruffing a spade, used his last trump to Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

ruff a third heart, got back to dummy by ruffing another spade, cashed dummy's last two trumps and the last two diamonds while conceding his last two hearts as losers.

The hand is worthy of considerable study. Note that if declarer goes after 12 tricks, he will have to lead a second diamond early. It will be ruffed by East, whereupon a trump lead will reduce South's winners from 12 to 10. Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Marcia Pahl hits $1 million

Marcia Pahl

Robert Proctor, president of Home Town Real Estate, has announced that Miss Marcia Pahl, broker and graduate of the Real Estate Institute, participated in sales surpassing the $1 million mark as of August 18, 1975. Miss Pahl has had over 4 years experience in real estate and achieved her million dollar goal mainly as a result of referrals from clients.

2 staffers hit million mark

Mrs. Earlene Chapman and Mrs. Aggie Jorgensen of Rich Port, Realtor, Mt. Prospect, have sold over one million dollars in residential real estate in the first seven months of 1975. This is the second consecutive year that both have sold over a million dollars.

Mrs. Chapman is currently residing in Des Plaines and is very active in various women's clubs and civic organizations.

Mrs. Jorgensen has been honored frequently at the annual Rich Port, Realtor Awards dinner.

Rich Port, Realtor is a 22-office firm covering 150 Chicagoland communities, and offers real estate advice and service throughout the country via Nationwide Relocation Company. Rich Port, Realtor has recently moved to 117 S. Main, thereby tripling the space in its Mt. Prospect office.

Take precautions before your trip

If you're planning on leaving your home for even a few days, your trip will be more relaxing if you take a few minutes before you leave to make sure that your home and belongings will be secure in your absence.

Whether you live in a house, condominium or apartment, following this helpful checklist of things to do before leaving home can give you greater peace of mind during your leisure trip.

The tips were prepared by Alvin Kaplan, vice president of Meister-Neiberg Company, Inc., developers of the Lake of the Winds luxury condominium community in Wheeling.

Remove all perishables from your refrigerator.

Don't leave any inflammable rags or fluids around which might cause spontaneous combustion.

Pull all plugs on appliances or electrical units, which will not be in use during your absence.

If you cannot make arrangements to have house plants watered, get your favorite plant specialty shop to explain the intricacies of setting up a self-watering system.

Such items as TV sets, radios, stereos, typewriters, bicycles, etc. should be identified and marked with your Social Security number.

Leave pets at a reputable kennel, with special care and feeding instructions, if necessary.

Give the phone number of your vacation spot as well as the date you expect to return to a trusted neighbor or relative.

Leave a duplicate housekey with a neighbor or relative who can make routine house checks for you.

Close and lock all windows and doors. Put away all tools and make sure your garage (if a homeowner) is locked.

Cancel newspapers before leaving, and if your mail cannot be picked up, alert the post office to hold for your return.

Make arrangements to have someone pick up any advertising circulars and the like from your door or yard. (Such are signals to would-be burglars that no one is at home.)

Turn off the water at the valve next to your water meter, if possible.

Purchase time switches that will automatically turn on the lights in several rooms in the house for a few hours in the evening, giving the impression someone is home.

Homeowners should make arrangements for someone to care for their lawn. Not only does an overgrown or unwatered lawn during a dry spell ruin the landscaping, but it also indicates "open season" to any would-be intruders.

Store valuables, such as stocks, bonds, irreplaceable papers and jewelry in a safe deposit box. Also, a list of your credit card numbers.

If you live in an apartment, leave a duplicate key with the building management and inform them where you can be contacted and when you will return.

Ask a neighbor to watch out for any unusual activity around your home, condominium or apartment and, if suspicious, call the police, building management or security guard.

If you are not going to use your car on vacation, it might be an opportune time to leave it at the repair shop for any needed service.

Similarly, if home appliances need repair or the carpets (but not the drapes) need cleaning, vacation is a good time to have them sent out.

Don't draw all curtains or otherwise "close up" your abode. Such is further indication that no one is at home.

"Finally," Kaplan advises, "make sure you have taken care of the mortgage payment and household insurance premiums so that neither will go unpaid while you are away."

Real estate facts

President, Northwest Suburban Board of REALTORS®

Existing homes frequently offer buyers more space for their money than new homes. In addition, older homes usually are located in established communities where schools, churches, shopping and public transportation already are at hand. And chances are the grounds surrounding an older home are better landscaped and planted than those around a new house would be.

There are potential problems, though. Just as some of us tend to "deteriorate" with age, so do houses. So, if you're planning to buy an older home, there are certain things you should check first.

The following list contains items to check outside the house. Later columns will contain indoor checklists.

Be sure the home's outside walls are in good shape. If they're made of brick or stone, test the mortar — especially near the ground — with a screwdriver to see whether it's firm or powdery. Crumbling mortar can let water in, and water might crack the masonry and damage interior walls.

Check brick walls for bulges that could indicate structural defects or brick veneer coming loose. Check non-masonry walls for a good fit at joints and in corners; gaps give water a chance to rot framing underneath. Examine paint, too — if it has blistered, flaked or peeled down to the wood, it could mean that walls were built with no vapor barrier.

Inspect the roof for loose or missing shingles that permit rain to seep in. Make sure the metal flashing at junctions — such as where the roof meets a wall or chimney — is in good shape. And, if possible, inspect the roof and chimney for loose mortar.

Find out how old the roof is and what it's made of. Some roofing materials last longer than others. For example, common asphalt shingle roofing usually lasts 15 to 20 years and sometimes equals wood and asbestos cement — which last 30 years or so — in durability. Slate and clay tile can remain in good condition 40 years or more.

Be certain wood elements of the house — supports for a deck, for example — rest on concrete to prevent rot and deter termites. And be sure to examine the foundation for mud tubes that termites build. Even if you don't see tubes, termites may be present, so ask the owner for evidence of termite inspection and control.

And, speaking of termites, check any exposed wood for holes or sawdust produced by wood-boring insects, such as carpenter ants and bees. Examine the driveway, patio or other paved surfaces for any indication of uneven settling. Don't worry about small cracks in concrete — these are common. Do worry about big ones that might recur even after repaving if the soil underneath concrete is the cause. And check for low spots — these collect water that could seep into the house. One way to find out is to visit the house right after a rain.

Finally, make sure gutters and downspouts are clean, free of rust and in good repair. Downspouts should discharge onto splash blocks directed away from the house, or into drains or an underground dry well. In addition, the ground should slope away from the house so that rain runs off in the proper direction.

BRICK & FRAME TRI-LEVEL — Only 3 years old in top condition 4 bedrooms, 2½ baths Formal living room-dining room, separate eating area in kitchen Fireplace & wet bar in family room. War between the states could cause cold homes

By JOHN MOODY
United Press International

PORTIONS OF the United States face an energy-scarce winter. It is compounded by a "war between the states" over the price of natural gas, a wildcat strike by coal miners, and the possibility the Middle East again will turn off the oil pumps that help keep American homes and cars fueled.

"Let the — freeze in the dark," proclaim bumper stickers on cars throughout the Gulf states, in response to suggestions that industries in their states shut down partially this winter so natural gas used there could be channeled to Northern states to heat homes.

"It looks increasingly — considering how little we supply of our own energy needs — that we're going to get a little cold," Dr. Robert Coughlin, chairman of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers, told the group in Boston recently.

Coughlin, a professor at Lehigh University, said cooperation between energy producing and consuming states will determine whether the Northeast shivers through the traditionally severe winter months.

Here's how it shapes up:

• Natural Gas. Cooperation may be difficult to wheedle from Southern states such as Texas, Oklahoma, Mississippi and Louisiana, unless natural gas producers there get a better price for their product, like oil, a resource that for decades has been sold cheaply and used lavishly.

"They want us to give them cheap natural gas from down here," said Sherman Hunt, an independent dealer from Texas, where 37.6 per cent of the nation's natural gas is produced. "We have enough gas to take care of ourselves," he grinned, "but any natural gas I find I'm sure going to try to sell in Texas before I ship it out of state."

THE REASON IS simple. Hunt and other producers get two dollars per thousand cubic feet of the colorless, odorless gas they sell within the state where it is produced. But an artificial 55-cent ceiling has been imposed by the federal government for the same amount transported over a state line.

THE FORD administration is proposing lifting controls on interstate gas prices, to prevent shortages and save jobs of workers in factories that may close if gas supplies run out. The President faces a tough battle getting Congressional approval.

• Coal. Coal could be in short supply because of a wildcat miner strike that cost the industry eight million tons of unmined coal and shut down coal pits in at least eight states. Most of the 60,000 miners that walked picket lines have returned to work, but the strike ate into surplus supplies and split the loyalty of rank-and-file members of the powerful United Mines Workers.

More than 65 per cent of the bituminous coal mined is sold to electric utilities, which in turn produce power for homes and industries.

"The stockpile has been reduced to about 95 days for electrical utilities," said Herb Foster, vice president, public relations for the National Coal Association. "That's less than we'd like, but it's not dangerous."

Legal advice has role in home improvements

SO YOU AIME about to hire a contractor to have some work done on your house? The Illinois State Bar Association advises there are some legal steps you should take to protect yourself against shoddy work or from paying more than the amount you agree upon.

For one thing, you should know something about the law of liens, and the best place to get advice on that point is from your lawyer. All too often, the ISBA said, people will sign a substantial home improvement contract, perhaps one running into thousands of dollars, while giving little thought to the legal aspects of real estate property improvements.

One of those legal aspects is the Mechanics' Liens Act, a law which gives any worker who makes improvements and each supplier of material used in the improvements to your property, the right to file a lien, or claim, against that property if full payment for the services or materials is not made.

If necessary, anytime within two years after the work was done, presuming that the lien was properly filed with the County Recorder, the lien holder may foreclose the lien and perhaps force the sale of the property so that the bill will be paid from the proceeds. A worker who is a subcontractor has a similar right but must notify the property owner of the non-payment within a certain time period before filing a claim for lien.

Most homeowners think of hiring a contractor and paying for the work when it is done as a rather cut and dried affair. And, since most home improvement contractors are perfectly reliable people, it is usually just that. However, there is always the exception.

TAKE THE CASE of a Chicago woman. She wrote a check to the contractor for the full amount of the remodeling and redecorating work on her home, quite honestly presuming that payment of several thousand dollars ended the matter. Much to her surprise, a short time later she received a notice from the electrical subcontractor advising her that he had not been paid for his part of the job. To keep him from filing a lien on her property, she paid the electrical subcontractor's bill, even though her check to the contractor had covered his work.

The woman sued the contractor in an effort to recover the amount of her overpayment, but she sought the advice of her lawyer in the first place she would have been spared the trouble and the extra expense.

Her lawyer would have stressed these important points:

• Require the contractor to give you an affidavit — a notarized statement — which lists the names of all of the subcontractors, their addresses and the amounts of their subcontracts.

• Before paying the contractor, ask for waivers from subcontractors waiving their rights to any liens in connection with the work that was done and containing waivers of lien from their material suppliers.

• Compare the contractor's sworn statement to the waivers to be sure that all liens have been waived as to the amounts due or requested.

This isn't the full extent of the legal advice to be had about home improvements. A lawyer also would instruct a client as to protections against shoddy workmanship work left undone, use of inferior materials or unnecessarily protracted work schedules. In most cases, adequate guarantees can and should be written into the contract, which, especially if it is a sizable one, should be examined by the lawyer if not actually prepared by a lawyer. A lawyer would also give advice as to the timing and amounts of payments as the work progresses, and of the importance of public liability insurance to cover injury to others on the work site.

Finally, one of the best guarantees of a job well done is the good name and reputation of the contractor. Make sure the contractor has an established place of business; ask for references; go to the site to examine the contractor's previous work that is similar to what you have in mind, and perhaps check with the Better Business Bureau or Chamber of Commerce to determine whether any complaints have been made against the contractor. As your lawyer would say, do this before you sign anything!

Existing home prices rise 8.9%

Prices of existing homes in the Chicago area are continuing to climb, but not by as much as they did in the past two years.

According to a survey just completed by Baird & Warner, Inc., the average house price rose 8.9 per cent for the year ended June 30, 1975. The year before that, the increase was 9.4 per cent, and a year earlier, it was 9.9 per cent.

For the year ending June 30, 1976, Baird & Warner forecasts that house prices will rise another 7.8 per cent.

The survey is based on the actual prices of 3,544 home transactions with a total dollar value of $193,784,870 participated in by Baird & Warner during the 12 month period.

Average price increases varied greatly by suburb, according to Robert G. Walters, senior vice president and general sales manager of the residential sales division.

Northwest suburban offices had average increases of 7.85 per cent, with a low of 5 per cent reported for Crystal Lake.

While the figures cover all types of homes in all price ranges, Baird & Warner managers were asked to tell what happened to the price of a typical three-bedroom, two-bath home with attached garage during the year. Their answer: A rise in median price from $50,000 to $55,000, or 10 per cent, which is higher than the overall average.

Looked at over a three-year period, the rise in home prices is even more dramatic, amounting to a 40.7 per cent increase. Prices have gone up 25.7 per cent in the past two years alone.

Despite last year's rise in existing home prices, it wasn't as much as the median 11.3 per cent price increase of a new house reported by the Senate House Joint Economic Committee earlier this year.

Still, the rise in new home prices played a major role in forcing up prices of existing homes, according to 37 per cent of Baird & Warner managers. But an even greater number, 55 per cent, put the blame on demand outstripping supply. The balance blamed a wait-and-see attitude on the buyer's part for driving up prices in an inflationary economy.

Despite the rise in existing home prices, sales are at record levels, the Baird & Warner executive said. His company had the best six months in its 120-year history.

"This is definitely a seller's market meaning that a person who has a house in good condition and in a good location can expect to sell it in a relatively short time at the market price," Walters said.

Largely responsible for bringing out buyers is the changed finance picture. Last year, home sales were curbed by interest rates averaging 9.25 per cent and demands for 30 per cent downpayments. Today, interest rates are averaging 8.5 to 8.75 per cent and downpayments have dropped to 20 per cent, in some cases 10.

As a result of more liberal financing and an excess of demand over supply, buyers are selling homes in an average of 40 days, compared with 56 days last year. One office reports average sales in 10 days.

The price and speed with which a home sells depends a lot on what kind of home it is, Walters said. Area-wide, the best seller is a four-bedroom colonial two-story or Georgian.

The demand for used homes continues strong even though sales to transferees, which accounted for 36 per cent of Baird & Warner transactions a year ago, fell to 31 per cent in the most recent 12-month period.

"Frankly, if the transferee business maintained its pace, the pressure would probably drive up prices still further," he said.

As to what all of this means, Walters drew the following conclusions:

People who bought homes several years ago probably made the best investment decision of their lives and can most likely gain hefty profits if they sell today.

While home prices will continue to rise, the rate won't be as great as before. That's because as the price of the home goes up, it becomes harder and harder to pile on further increases.

There's no assurance that the seller's market will continue, particularly if financing becomes tighter. There have been several upward moves in interest rates recently, and there are signs of more to come. If mortgage money gets tight again, this could curb buying.

"I would certainly advise a person who is thinking of selling his home to put it on the market quickly rather than wait for better conditions," Walters said. "Right now conditions are excellent, but as time goes on, the situation may deteriorate. Prices may go up as predicted, but a high price won't do much good if financing conditions make prospects unable to buy."

Surprises out of closing costs

by MERLE E. DOWD

SOMETHING NEW has been added to uncomplimentary buying a house — a standard statement of settlement costs mandated by Congress. Though it balked at setting limits on such closing costs as loan origination fees, appraisals and similar goodies, Congress enacted the next best thing, a requirement for full disclosure of those pesky, cash-gobbling charges you pay for when you sign loan documents and pick up your key to that new house.

Instead of surprises at that ritual known as the "closing," you now receive a complete listing of all settlement charges no later than 12 calendar days before the closing date. Your only warning before might have been, "Bring plenty of cash," by the real estate agent. When faced with a fixed list of charges after all other decisions had been agreed to, little, if any, room remained for bargaining.

With advance knowledge you can now negotiate two ways:

- With the potential lender over the amounts of the settlement charges;
- With the seller about which one of you pays which settlement charges.

What are settlement charges and closing costs? Settlement charges include all of the costs involved in conveying a piece of property from a seller to a buyer. Closing costs generally refer only to those costs paid by the buyer when he takes title (subject to a mortgage) in exchange for a loan commitment and additional cash. As a rough rule of thumb, the seller usually pays about two-thirds of the settlement costs and the buyer pays the remaining one-third.

Foremost among settlement charges are: adjustments to taxes as apportioned between seller and buyer, loan origination fee, appraisal fee, credit report, inspection fee, interest payable on existing loan to closing date, apportioned hazard insurance, closing fee, title search, insurance, and survey and pesticide inspection and guarantee fees if required.

DISCOUNT POINTS are usually paid by the seller but may be negotiated between buyer and seller on nongovernment assisted mortgage loans. The seller also pays any commissions to a real estate broker and a prepayment penalty if due.

While settlement costs run into hundreds of dollars, few are fixed except taxes and fees for transferring title and recording documents. Thus, you can — and should — shop for reduced settlement charges with the same intensity as for a loan at less interest or with more generous clauses — lower prepayment and late-payment penalties, for example.

The loan origination fee is limited on FHA and VA loans to 1 per cent of the mortgage loan. Higher fees are allowable when inspections are included in the package during construction of a new home. A closing fee may not be charged on FHA or VA loans if the 1-per cent loan origination fee was charged.

With only 12 days notice you will have little time to shop for lower settlement fees. To gain more maneuvering time, write into the sales or purchase agreement a clause making the deal contingent upon your approval of the settlement costs when disclosed in the statement. The Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act of 1974 that became effective June 20, 1975, prohibits a lender from charging a specific fee for preparing and submitting the disclosure and settlement costs statement or for disclosing information required for compliance with the Truth-in-Lending Act.

WHILE THE disclosure law requires lenders to provide with settlement cost information on a standard form, no law requires you to read and understand the data supplied. Reading and understanding is your responsibility. To help you understand each of the settlement costs and how you may negotiate savings, the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has prepared a booklet to explain the act's provisions.

The American Bankers Association also has published an approved version of the disclosure and statement requirements. Ask your mortgage lender for a free copy before you begin serious shopping for a home loan, or write directly to American Bankers Association, 1120 Connecticut Ave. NW, Washington, D.C. 20036.

How much allowance is enough?

by MERLE E. DOWD

Q. "We're in another round of settling allowances with our two high school students — and looking for help. Is $3-$10/week enough for a high school senior boy for entertainment and books? Our girl is a year younger and feels she should get just as much because she spends more for clothes than we allow. What is average or recommended?" — Mrs. M. P.

A. No real averages or recommendations exist because allowances cover different needs among families. I suggest setting a figure that isolates different spending needs according to the amount of control the student can exert.

Since books are required, there's little a student can do about the cost other than borrow or buy used volumes if not available. But entertainment is 100 per cent controllable. I suggest a reasonable allowance for clothing, books, school supplies and bus transportation if necessary. I also recommend an absolute minimum or no allowance at all for incidentals — soft drinks after school, dances, gasoline for the family car, movie tickets and the like.

Let the student decide whether to do without, choose from a number of alternatives or work at a part-time job to earn extra money for spending on entertainment. And don't say part-time jobs are not available, because aggressive and willing students continue to find work. In our family, allowances for incidentals stop at age 12.

-Savings to bills

Q. "Our bank offers 'Convenience Transfers' from our checking account to the mortgage company, power company and similar creditors. I have found this system saves me the trouble of writing and mailing checks, but I would prefer the bank to pay bills with money from my savings rather than my checking account. Is this possible — or legal?" — C. V.

A. Preauthorized payments directly from your bank to utilities and other regular payees represents one move toward fewer checks — and less dependence on the mails. Convenience transfers simplify and quicken the flow of funds between bank depositors and creditors via computer.

Until recently, only checking account funds could be transferred electronically. Now the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation has announced they will permit banks to transfer funds from savings accounts to pay preauthorized savings bills.

You enjoy an obvious advantage from the new system, as funds transferred to draw interest until settlement. Two limitations apply to the new plan:

- Transfers of funds cannot be authorized for third parties, as in the case of checks;
- Transfers from savings to cover overdrafts on a checking account are not permitted.

-Negotiate payment

Q. "Do we have to accept the insurance settlement offered to cover our loss when our car was stolen and later found stripped? We added nearly $100 more than the settlement to get the car back in its original condition — not counting the miles of driving, the inconvenience of riding the bus and clogging rides with neighbors. Do we have any recourse?" — Mrs. B. F.

A. Settling a claim like yours involves negotiations. An adjuster typically offers as little as he thinks might be accepted. But, if you're patient, hold out for more and haggle or bicker, he will usually raise the offer.

Adjusters operate in an area of conflict — pressure to settle the claim and pressure to keep settlements down. While a letter to the state insurance examiner with a carbon copy to the insurer may get stalled negotiations moving again, remember the tried tactic — "You can catch more flies with honey than with vinegar." Patience and persistence will generally pay off in a higher settlement.

-Deposits insured

Q. "I continue to read about banks closing their doors or buying bonds that may be defaulted — as in New York City where so many banks own piles of worthless or near-worthless bonds. How does FDIC pay off depositors in case a bank fails? What happens to deposits over the $40,000 insured limit?" — F. G.

A. FDIC, for Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, insures deposits in both member and nonmember commercial and mutual savings banks of the Federal Reserve System. If a bank closes, depositors are paid off in cash within 10 days or the deposits are shifted to another operating bank.

Deposits in excess of $40,000 caught in a bank failure are combined with claims of other creditors. These deposit claims share pro rata in the proceeds from liquidation of the bank's assets — usually after considerable delay. But, by keeping deposits in more than one bank, each with less than $40,000, these potential losses or delays can be avoided.

-Fees deductible

Q. "My broker keeps my coupon bonds in his vault because I'm out of town and I trade them occasionally. Can I deduct the fee charged my account for custodial safekeeping on my tax return?" — E. S.

A. Since coupon-bearing bonds are not registered, you are wise to assure their protection. You may deduct the broker's fee for custodial care in the same way you may deduct the cost of a safe deposit box for storing securities. Just make sure your broker breaks out the custodial fee separately.

The broker's commission and any associated charges for buying or selling the bonds may not be deducted directly. Acquisition charges are added to the cost, and selling charges decrease the sale value when computing gains or losses.

-More deductions

Q. "As a part-time writer, can I deduct travel and other expenses for research on articles I write and sell? So far, I have spent more than my writings have paid. Must I set up a separate business for my part-time job?" — E. B.

A. If you write with the intention of earning a profit, you can deduct ordinary expenses incurred whether for travel, postage, paper or office-at-home expenses. One way to help establish your profit-making intent is to keep good records, establish a separate bank account and operate your part-time activity in a businesslike manner.

You may deduct expenses in any year up to the total of your earnings from your writing. You may also deduct expenses that exceed your writing income as long as you meet the "two profit years in five" regulation. That means income from your writing must exceed your expenses in two out of five years.

Suppose you deduct expenses that exceed your earnings during the first three years and then fail to earn more than you spend on expenses the fourth and fifth years. The IRS can recapture the tax that would have been due along with penalties on the excess deductions over earnings in the early years.

-Sorry, you lose?

Q. "When I wrecked a rented travel trailer, I found out my car policy didn't cover the loss. I had to pay for the trailer. Can I deduct the loss when I file my income tax return?" — B. F.

A. Unfortunately, you lose twice. A casualty loss can only be deducted from your income tax if you own the property destroyed. If the trailer was yours, you could deduct the loss subject to the $100 deductible. But since the trailer was rented, IRS code does not permit you to recover. Next time make sure you are covered by your car policy or buy trip insurance when renting the trailer.

-Some lucky truckers

Q. "A truck driver for another company has told me that eating expenses at a terminal turnaround are now deductible even though he doesn't stay overnight. I haven't been able to charge off such expenses. Is there something new out on this?" — H. S.

A. When truck drivers hauling round-trip loads stay overnight, eating and lodging expenses may be deducted (if the company does not reimburse him for these costs). However, short turnarounds were not considered "away from home" — thus no deduction.

Now a new revenue ruling (75-168) clarifies the extremes. Nonreimbursed expenses for meals and lodging may be deducted by truck drivers if the layover is about eight hours — but not if layovers are one-half hour or less.

Whether layovers of several hours but less than the specified eight are sufficient to justify deducting meals and lodging must be determined on individual facts — possibly by court decisions. The new ruling helps by reducing the limits from "overnight" or 24 hours to "approximately eight hours" but keeps the door closed on short turnarounds.

Anniversary celebration

The Gallery of Homes Northwest, Arlington Heights, was honored at the silver anniversary convention of Gallery of Homes, Inc. as "one of the nation's top-ranked real estate broker-operations."

This recognition is for Gallery of Homes Northwest's outstanding performance in the Gallery International Relocation Service, a referral network that assisted in disposition of and acquiring homes for more than 11,000 families thus far in 1975.

Of the 530 member Gallery network, Gallery of Homes Northwest's achievement ranks in the top three per cent in effective referral activity.

Accepting the award for Gallery of Homes Northwest was June Gillilan, relocation manager. Presentations were made Aug. 20 at Convention Headquarters, the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco.

More than 600 Gallery affiliates from the North American continent and several off-shore locations attended the 25th anniversary convention which featured such personalities as attorney, F. Lee Bailey, professional super star Kyle Rote, Jr., and Louis Rukeys, noted author and host of the longest-running TV business news program "Wall Street Week."

Gallery of Homes Northwest is the exclusive Gallery of Homes representative in the Arlington Heights, Palatine, Mt. Prospect, Inverness and Barrington area. There are more than 1,500 Gallery locations throughout the continent. During 1974 total volume of residential transfers managed by Gallery affiliates exceeded $4 billion.

LET'S TALK IT OVER

JERRY BOUSCHARD

When a piece of real property, on which there is a mortgage or deed of trust, is sold, the mortgagee almost always has the option of deciding whether or not the new owner may simply assume the seller's mortgage. In making this decision, the lender will consider the credit rating of the buyer and the spread between the original interest rate and the current rate.

In a period of rising interest rates, it will be to the benefit of the lender to insist that a new mortgage be placed by the new owner at the current, higher interest rate.

When you have questions about real estate, drop in or phone and "talk it over" with us. When you want to sell or exchange your property, be sure to list it with us.

Record high sales in 1975

The May Department Stores Company has reported that sales and earnings for both the second quarter and first half of 1975 reached new record levels.

The Venture discount store at Dempster and Elmhurst, Mount Prospect, is a part of The May Department Stores Company.

Net earnings for the 13 weeks ended August 2, 1975 were $9,063,000, or 59 cents per share of common stock, up 28.2 per cent over second quarter 1974 earnings of $7,179,000, or 47 cents per share, bringing net earnings for the 26 weeks ended August 2, 1975 to $14,679,000, or 96 cents per share of common stock, up 18.3 per cent over first half 1974 earnings of $12,410,000, or 81 cents per share.

May, second largest department store chain in the United States, had total sales for the second quarter this year of $446,092,000, an increase of 14.0 per cent over second quarter 1974 sales of $391,288,000, and sales for the first half this year of $834,091,000, up 12.7 per cent over first half 1974 sales of $730,933,000. The inclusion of Consumers Distributing (U.S.) sales from June 6, 1975, the date on which May acquired full ownership of the catalog showroom business, accounted for 2.1 per cent of the second quarter sales increase and 1.1 per cent of the first half increase.

Mr. Goodman said the May company's department stores and its Venture discount stores "both contributed to the sales increase, with department store sales up over 1974 by 8.8 per cent and 8.0 per cent for the second quarter and half-year respectively and Venture sales up 40.4 per cent and 45.2 per cent for the same periods. On a store-for-store basis (including stores open in both years, and excluding the effect of new stores), sales in the May department store companies were up over the comparable 1974 periods by 5.4 per cent for the second quarter this year and 5.2 per cent for the first half, and Venture sales were up over 1974 by 25.9 per cent for the second quarter and 22.1 per cent for the first half.

Home seekers: check HVAC

When you go shopping for a new home, pay particular attention to the heating, ventilating and air conditioning system, or HVAC as it's known in the building trade.

"Of all the parts of the house, the HVAC has the most to do with your comfort and also affects your largest expense after the mortgage payment: namely, your fuel bill," notes Allen J. Davis, vice president, marketing, of Ancient Tree, a development in Northbrook.

The HVAC system includes the furnace, air conditioner, humidifier, ducts that carry the air through the house and the room outlets. Insulation of walls, ceiling, windows and doors also is a part of it.

Davis's statement on the relation of HVAC to comfort is based on a recent nationwide consumer survey which revealed that, next to lack of space, the leading cause of dissatisfaction with existing homes is bad heating.

In the same survey, the greatest number of people, 63 per cent, said the most important feature they want in a new house, is adequate heating. Other features wanted were: a house that won't be too much of a financial burden, 54 per cent; enough electric power and wiring, 46 per cent; good insulation, 33.2 per cent; and low property taxes, 33 per cent.

"Considering that good heating and good insulation go together, it's obvious that a good heating system is the number one concern of people seeking new homes," Davis said.

Since homes vary in design, the HVAC has to be tailored to each specific house plan. A home can never be comfortable unless the HVAC system and the house have been coordinated in design to maintain all-weather comfort.

What then should the wise buyer look for? To begin with, practically every new home today is heated by forced warm air. The furnace consists of a combustion chamber in which the fuel — typically gas or oil — is burned. Air is forced by a blower to flow around the combustion chamber (not through it) and then through sheet metal ducts to the rooms. The pressure of the warm air flowing into the room forces the cold air out. Special cold air return ducts bring the cold air back to the furnace to be filtered and reheated.

A good HVAC will be balanced for uniform heating and cooling. In a new house, this will be done by the builder before you move in. Later, if your family needs dictate, the balancing can be revised. Balancing is done by changing the position of dampers in ductwork. This permits more air to flow to certain rooms and less air to others.

A key factor in whether your HVAC system will be comfortable is the duct design. Heating experts say the kind that provides the most uniform temperatures is the perimeter type. The supply registers are located in the floor or at wall baseboard level around the outside walls, preferably beneath windows and sliding glass doors. With this design, you get a curtain of warm air thrown up between you and the outside cold.

But in addition to supply registers, your duct system must have cold air returns. In their book "The Complete Homeowner," authors Robert Schwartz and Hubbard H. Cobb point out that if the house doesn't have enough cold air returns, the home may suffer from cold drafts across rooms and down stairways.

The U.S. government seconds this. In "Handbook for the Home," the 1973 yearbook of agriculture, heating expert M. Conner Ahrens points out that many homes have only one return register, usually located in a hallway. But there should also be returns in individual rooms, located on the inside walls, to help balance the system and allow for more adequate circulation in each room. They also prevent cold air from massing on the floor.

Incidentally, most HVAC experts recommend that you leave your HVAC system on continuous air circulation during the heating season. By having the air in constant motion, you prevent cold air from settling to the floor and the drafts that are caused when the fan suddenly goes on. You also use the residue of the warm air that otherwise remains in the furnace when the fan goes off. The cost of running the blower continuously turns out to be less than that of on-off operation.

Is the heating system large enough to take care of the house you are considering? The larger the house, the bigger the heating system should be. If you are buying a new home, the builder's specifications should contain a section guaranteeing how warm the house will be at a given outdoor temperature.

A. M. Watkins, author of "How to Avoid the 10 Biggest Home Buying Traps," says that in Chicago, a heating system should be guaranteed to maintain 70 degrees when the outdoor temperature is 5 degrees below zero. One way you can check on the adequacy of the heating system, he says, is to figure how many BTUs (BTU is a measure of heat) are needed for the size of house you are considering.

In a northern climate, a house designed for an outdoor temperature of zero degrees will have a heat loss of about 50 BTUs per square foot of heated living area. So a 2,000 square foot home will have a total heat loss of 100,000 BTUs to maintain a 70 degree temperature.

To see if the house measures up check the specification plate on the furnace to see what the BTU output is. If it's 100,000 BTU or better, then the furnace is big enough for this particular 2,000 square foot home, according to Watkins.

While you're checking the furnace, see if the fan is connected by a pulley to the motor that drives it. This is the best kind of arrangement, the quietest, and the one with the longest guarantee. Direct drive fans, with the motor and fan on the same shaft are signs of an economy furnace, Watkins says.

Also see if there's a power humidifier connected to the furnace. It will usually be mounted on the warm air duct. A humidifier adds moisture as needed to the warm air leaving the furnace, thus helping maintain indoor relative humidity at a proper level for comfort and protection of household goods. According to the American Society of Heating, Refrigerating and Air-Conditioning Engineers, indoor relative humidity should be maintained at 25 or 30 per cent during the heating season. Otherwise the air will be too dry.

Central air conditioning is now practically a standard feature of many homes. In the Chicago area, again according to Watkins, air conditioning should be guaranteed to maintain the house at 75 degrees and 50 per cent relative humidity indoors when the temperature outdoors is 95 degrees. A house with 1,500 square foot of floor area would need two to three tons of cooling capacity to deliver this performance.

All of the HVAC experts agree on the vital importance of insulation for comfort and heating-cooling efficiency. Insulation in the walls and ceiling keeps heat from leaving the home in winter and hot air from entering in the summer. Without sufficient insulation, operating costs become prohibitively high. In the Chicago area, the experts recommend six inches of insulation in the roof and three inches in the exterior walls.

There can also be heat loss through and around windows and doors; therefore, either storm doors and windows or insulating glass must be used. Insulating glass consists of two sheets of glass spaced a fraction of an inch apart in the same frame; the air between acts as an ideal insulator.

As good as an HVAC system can be, it still needs human cooperation to perform properly, Davis added. For instance, the air registers should be unobstructed by furniture or draperies. The filter should be cleaned periodically. To cut down on heat loss in winter, draw drapes or shades over windows at night. In the summer do the same during the day to keep out the heat of the sun.

Fragman named construction manager

Fragman Construction, a division of The Capitol Companies, Inc., has been named construction manager for the Plaza Verde office building being developed at Arlington Heights and Dundee Roads, in Buffalo Grove.

The new 14,000 square-foot, one-story general office building will be built as an addition to the new Plaza Verde shopping center which Fragman recently completed.

The complex includes a 128,000 square-foot arcade, mall center, a JoJo's family restaurant, an Eagle Food Store, Osco drugs and 30 additional retail tenants.

It is adjacent to Villa Verde, a 350-unit apartment complex, across from the new Buffalo Grove high school.

Designed by Brim/Braun Associates, architects at 5301 W. Dempster St., Skokie, the Plaza Verde office building will have a steel frame structure with iron spot brick framing the entrances and in decorative panels, along with lath and plaster facades above the window lines.

The new office building will be concealed from the road by high beams and heavy plantings.

Fragman Construction has built a number of shopping centers and commercial and industrial buildings in the greater Chicagoland area.

The 1976 car lines are receiving a grand welcome at Bill Cook Buick, Northwest Hwy at Euclid Ave. in Arlington Heights, with 2,700 square feet of additional showroom and office space.

The addition has been in the planning for four years. "There's still a great need for cars as no one has come up with a better alternative. We saw the need for additional showroom space so we could display our cars as conveniently and comfortably as possible for our customers viewing," said Don Cook, sales manager of Bill Cook Buick.

The extra space can house from six to 10 cars, depending on the size of the cars being displayed.

"We're very optimistic about our car sales. Our customers are leaning toward the smaller models, especially due to the rising prices of gasoline but there is still a market for the larger car," Cook said.

Sale announced Center completed

A sale by Arthur Rubloff & Co.'s Retail Properties Department was announced this week.

The term rental is approximately $40,000. Tim Zawila of Arthur Rubloff & Co. represented the lessee in the negotiations.

Republic Realty Mortgage Corporation has announced the completion of construction of the Oakton Square Shopping Center at the southwest corner of Oakton Street and Oakton Place.

Financing in the amount of $1,175,000 for 30 years has been provided for the 50,426 square foot facility.

New drive-in facility planned

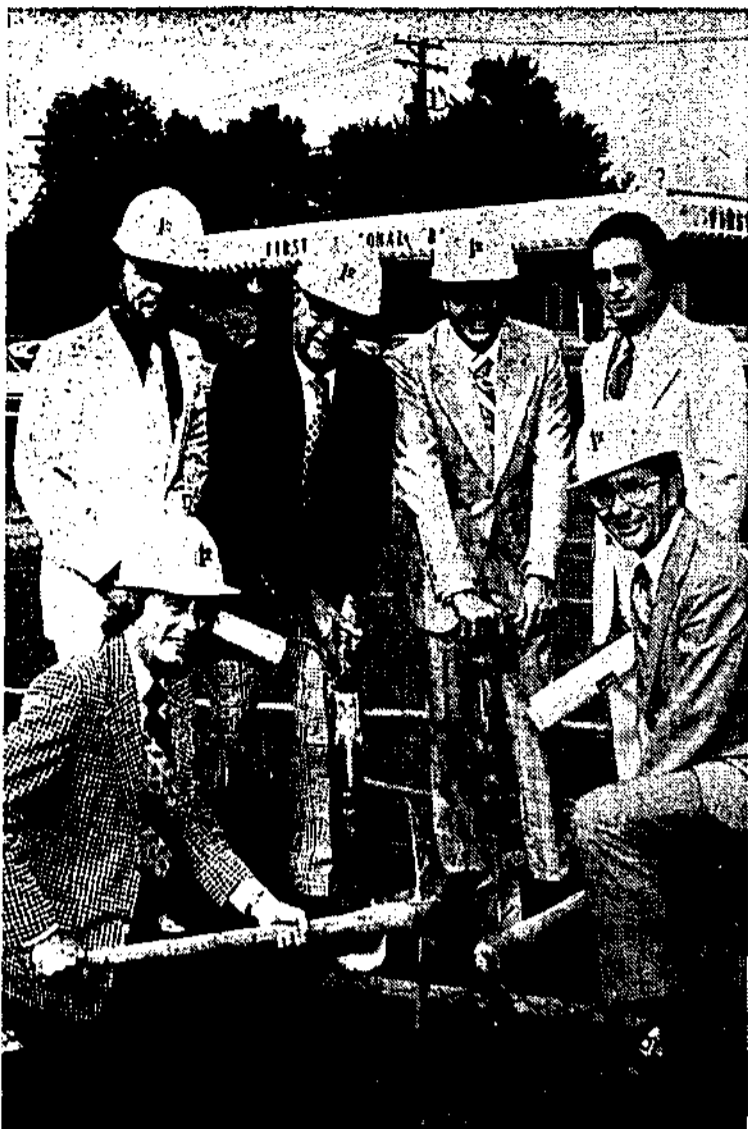

The First National Bank of Des Plaines has announced plans for a new, additional drive-in facility. According to Arthur R. Weiss, president, the new facility should be ready for business by March 1, 1976.

Almost directly adjacent to the present drive-in bank, customers will be able to enter the new drive-in from Graceland and exit on to Lee Street; or they can enter from the alley connected to Prairie Street. A by-pass lane for the present drive-in will also allow cars coming off Lee to use the new facility. Parking will be provided for those using the walk-in lobby area.

THE NEW drive-in will consist of four drive-up stations, the same as the original, four walk-in teller stations, which can be expanded to eight, four desk areas and one conference office. Included in the new drive-in will be a night depository and space for a 24-hour automated teller machine.

A one-story building, measuring 83x30, the new drive-in will have a brick exterior with porcelain enamel panels extending around the roof lines. The interior will have brick wall construction, a suspended ceiling and a fully carpeted lobby.

Paganica Countriminiums

A new concept in country living.
On Flint Creek adjoining the third fairway of the Barrington Hills Country Club.

"Countriminiums" is the word we use to describe the unique concept in country living offered at Paganica. It combines gracious Barrington Hills country living with the convenience of city living and a minimum of maintenance.

Paganica consists of 37 acres including three little lakes. When completed, there will be only 37 countriminiums. The countriminiums are grouped in sites strategically located in the community. As a result, there are acres of open "common" land between each of the clustered sites. (All common areas are maintained by the Paganica Home Owners Association.)

The actual countriminium sites resemble narrow "city" lots with a minimum of 50 feet in frontage and 165 feet in depth, accommodating a substantial home, 2-car garage, private patio and a small backyard that can be mowed in about 10 minutes or turned into a small country garden.

Each countriminium is a private, individual custom residence designed by Robert Parker Coffin, AIA — Frank J. Scherschel, AIA, Architects-Engineer — one of the Midwest's most renowned architectural firms. You enjoy complete privacy and individuality even though your next door neighbor is only ten feet away.

Paganica is within the Village of Barrington Hills and is serviced with underground utilities, water, sewer, private black-topped roads, police and fire protection. Homes, including site, range from $100,000 to $200,000.

THE PEBBLE BEACH — One of the three countriminiums under construction at Paganica. Come in or call us for an appointment. We'll be delighted to show you around and answer all your questions.

Contractors see upturn

Construction companies and construction equipment distributors, despite a very difficult first half of the year, look for a rebound in business activity during the second half that will carry over into 1976, it was reported recently by W. H. Hemker, assistant vice president of C.I.T. Corporation in charge of the company's Chicago division.

The optimistic consensus exists in the face of a combination of first-half problems — including recession, impoundment of highway construction funds, a slumping housing market, environmental restrictions and escalating costs — that will shrink 1975 earnings.

These are the conclusions of a nationwide survey conducted by C. I. T. Corporation division heads, who supervise the company's financing and leasing activities from offices in 30 cities around the country.

These are the highlights of the survey:

Sales of builders and distributors in the first half of 1975 lagged 15 per cent behind the same period of 1974.

Earnings in 1975 are expected to trail those of 1974 by 15 per cent.

Sales in the second half of 1975 are expected to increase by 7 per cent over the first half.

3 Golden Bear restaurants open

New Golden Bear restaurants have opened at three new Jack Jacobs & Company shopping centers, it was announced by Donald Kahan, president of the Chicago-based national developer.

The restaurants, each occupying a 3,400 square-foot outlet building, opened at Crystal Point Mall in Crystal Lake, Barrington Square Mall in Hoffman Estates, and Ogden Mall in Naperville.

The Golden Bear chain is a subsidiary of Montgomery Ward, division of Marcor.

At The Crossings, each day brings a new discovery.

The Crossings isn't an ordinary townhome community in an ordinary town. In fact, living there brings constant new discoveries.

Just a simple bike ride down one of the meandering, tree-lined roads will uncover a peaceful way to spend a Sunday afternoon—complete with shady country estates, cool streams, and glimpses of livestock from nearby farms.

You'll find farm-fresh vegetables and fruits all season long in the Buffalo Grove area. Roadside stands are a convenience—not a commodity.

Something as insignificant as a mushroom farm or as rustic as the nearby antique village of Long Grove makes every day a new and different experience.

But best of all, living at The Crossings means you'll discover all this and more, every day. The nearness of unspoiled country acres, yet the convenience of recreation in your own backyard. Swimming; tennis; a private country club with a health spa and townhomes built on lots that include creeksides and lakeviews.

Why not see what an out-of-the-ordinary townhome community has to offer. Come back to the country. Discover the Crossings.

Review insurance periodically

If you have not reviewed your homeowner's insurance lately, the recent surge of inflation should remind you that you could be caught in a financial squeeze by being underinsured.

Because of inflation, a house that was built in 1967 for $20,000 would cost $37,200 to replace today. If your insurance has not kept pace, the cost of repairs or replacement easily could exceed the dollar limits of your policy.

The Insurance Information Institute suggests that you and your agent review your insurance coverage — every year if possible — and keep your home insured to at least 80 per cent of its current value. Naturally this will cost more, but you probably can offset the increase by taking a higher "deductible" with your homeowner's policy.

The higher the deductible — that amount of loss the policyholder agrees to assume — the lower the premium will be. Deductibles relieve insurance companies of the need to handle minor claims (an expensive administrative process) and result in lower premiums.

With the public more cost-conscious than ever, the deductible principle is being broadened. More and more states now permit policyholders to choose deductibles of $250 and $500 under their homeowner's coverage. In the past, normal deductible amounts have been $50, $100 or $200.

Increasing the deductible from $100 to $250 could reduce your premium by 10 per cent, but not more than $30. Increasing it from $100 to $500 means a reduction of 20 per cent, up to $60.

Similar savings are available to automobile owners on their collision and comprehensive (fire and theft) insurance. If $100 deductible collision insurance costs $100, a $250 deductible policy would cost $60 and a $500 deductible policy would cost $46. If full comprehensive coverage costs $100: $50 deductible would cost $56 and $100 deductible would cost $42.

Our townhomes come two to a building, with enough architectural variety to make sure you don't mistake someone else's for yours. Willow Woods Townhomes are also built entirely of that vanishing substance—brick. And they come with attached garages, a private fenced yard, complete sodded lawn and foundation plantings.

Once inside, you'll find other home-making amenities such as carpeting, drapery, individually controlled heat and air conditioning units, Westinghouse dishwasher, refrigerator and range, disposal, dark-tone wood kitchen cabinets, 1½ baths with vinyl decorator walls, utility room, insulated windows with screens and sliding glass doors in the master bedroom.

If you're looking for other things such as great community spirit, parks, pool, recreation center, schools plus convenient shopping and transportation, you'll find that right here too, in our Village of Streamwood. But if what you really seek is value for your money, look no farther.

Watch out! York cross country team is 'hungry' in 1975 season

by ART MUGALIAN

It wasn't a good year for Joe Newton. His cross country team didn't win a state title in 1974.

Such is the status of the running program at York High School in Elmhurst that when the Ducks failed to bring home a first-place trophy, people began to doubt the existence of various other eternal truths. York teams had won three straight cross country titles and six of the last 12.

On the surface, 1975 looks just as "bleak" for Newton. He has lost to graduation two of his top three runners from last year's state runner-up team. And he will be relying on several seniors who have little or no varsity experience.

Still, York is already being touted as a sure thing to recapture the state title they lost to Bloom at Peoria's DeWeiler Park last November.

The reason? Newton is overloaded with talent, depth, and tradition.

"The guys felt — how can I say this? — they felt really let down last year," said Newton. "They really want to bring back that title. They're hungry and that's a good thing. They're self-motivated."

Ron Craker was one of those runners who had to settle for a second-place finish in 1974. Craker himself came in second for individual honors behind Tom Marino of Proviso West.

This time Craker will return as the state favorite.

"Craker's goal this year is to win the team title and the individual title, too," Newton intoned.

Newton has never had an individual champion. Craker was the first Duke runner to finish as high as second. The York coach has always preached solid team-packing.

"This is very unusual for me," the coach said. "I have one superstar and then a pack in back of him. Outside of Craker, I've got about 11 guys who switch off."

Newton will rattle off those names, too. There's Jim Driscoll, a senior, who was fourth man last year. And Bob Bradshaw, 64th in state in 1974 but only the 10th man on the York team this season.

There's Todd Peterson, a "kid who came out of the blue," according to Newton, and who is threatening to take over the No. 2 spot. Senior Don Hlickman was one of Newton's "all-time greats" as a sophomore but failed to come out as a junior. Now he's back and as good as ever.

Then there's Al Strunk, a sophomore who's "better than Craker was as a soph."

"Still adjusting to a three-mile course," Brian Bartler is another of Newton's "real fine seniors."

Where does Newton get them all?

"There are good kids always lying in the bush," he said. "There are about six or seven guys who don't make the state meet team who you don't hear about — but they're ready the next year. This is a senior-oriented team. You have to wait your turn."

The harriers at York have always been good enough to run in a tight pack — usually well in front of any other group from around the state. This year's squad is as good or better than many of Newton's previous teams.

But they aren't in the same class with Craker.

"We let Craker run up front and let everybody else pack behind him," Newton said. "I don't want him to run back with the rest because that will hurt him. And I don't want the pack to try to run with Ron because that would bring them to their knees."

"Craker is the greatest runner I've ever had," Newton added without reservation. "He's just a great kid. He's a leader by example, he's got speed, he's got stamina, he's got intelligence. I just can't say enough about him."

Craker and about a dozen other green-uniformed Ducks should make Newton's 1975 a whole lot better than 1974.

Other candidates for the Duke's top seven are Dave Klemann, sixth as a soph in the tough West Suburban Conference; Tom Gusloff, a senior who was running No. 2 until temporarily sidelined by an injury; and Mike Garcia, a junior who ran a 1:56.8 half-mile but is

'Average' Tanner deserves to join list of unemployed

Yogi Berra . . . Billy Martin . . . Bill Virdon . . . Jack McKeon . . . Preston Gomez . . .

It's a unique group — major league managers who have been fired this summer.

Another should join them — Chuck Tanner.

Next week will mark his fifth anniversary as manager of the White Sox. It would be a fitting time for him to leave.

The reason — Tanner's just an average manager who has molded an average team.

In fact, both Tanner and his team are below average record-wise. Last weekend he quietly notched his 400th loss and took a 396-401 managerial mark into Wednesday night's game. And the Sox took a disappointing 68-75 mark into the action with the Angels.

If there's not a complete reversal in the remaining 18 games, Tanner's 11th season will rack up the worst season since 1970. You all must remember the 56-106 year when the hapless Sox lost a record number of games.

Naturally there are those who will argue that Tanner needs time to develop his young team. Since this newspaper is read by youngsters, all I can say is hogwash to that!

The fans are showing their disgust with Tanner's on-the-field product by staying away by the thousands. Through August, the Sox were down 278,904 over last year — the worst attendance drop in the majors.

Each year the fans hear Tanner build up his team — how they'll be successful, how they'll be exciting, how they'll be contenders if this and that go right, ad nauseum.

Only once did this ever occur. In 1972, the Sox — led by Dick Allen — led as late as Aug. 28. But despite Allen's most valuable player season, despite Wilbur Wood's 24 victories, despite Stan Bohnsen's 21 wins, despite Tanner's manager-of-the-year and Roland Hemond's executive-of-the-year awards, the team finished 5½ games out of first.

At a glance, those other years with Tanner at the helm were uneven: 1970 — 3-13, 1971 — 79-83, 1972 — 70-83, and 1974 — 80-90. Yawn . . .

You should also take a look at all the other glorious things that Tanner's teams have given the fans — a fluke home run title by Bill Melton, several 20-game win seasons by Wood and Jim Kaat and — when he played — many super things by Allen.

Despite Allen's great ability, he cost Tanner his credibility. Bending over backwards to coddle his superstar eventually wrecked team unity. Tanner's reputation as a leader of men was damaged by being led by Allen.

Even last winter during the annual "hot stove" dinner at Joliet (to drum up fan support), Tanner still stood his ground and said he'd have handled Allen the same way if he had to do it all over again. He wasn't man enough to admit he had made a mistake. And this is a man who also had the reputation of being a man's man.

And at that same dinner meeting of suburban writers, Tanner showed his pettiness by calling the popular Volco of the White Sox — Harry Caray — names that also cannot be used in this newspaper.

You would have thought Tanner had learned his lesson with regard to giving a star player special privileges after Allen, but he hasn't. Witness these words after a "huge" crowd (7,078 is large by Sox standards) saw Kaat win his 20th:

"I know Jim is interested in getting into broadcasting, which is fine. Even though he's a shoo-in as far as I'm concerned for the Cy Young award. But if he wants to (get this — White Sox fans), and if I have any say about it, he can pitch here every fourth day next year and go up to the booth the other days."

"As long as he got his work in before the game, he could go do color on TV or radio. He could do it from the dugout . . ."

Tanner seems desperate. Without the consistency of a Kaat in '76, the Sox could sink even further below .500. But how do you figure this remark also made last weekend:

"But if we don't make any deals, I'd be satisfied to go to camp next spring with the same players."

Changes have to be made or attendance figures could drop even further. This would almost definitely cost him his job.

Hopefully, owner John Allyn won't wait until 1976 to fire Tanner. Better yet, maybe he'll sell the team soon and new management will dump Tanner and Hemond, too.

Berra was only four games under the .500 mark with the Mets when he was canned. Virdon, Martin and McKeon had records better than Tanner when the Yankees, Rangers and Royals made a change. Only Gomez was a loser with the Astros.

Owners of these teams took action when it was needed. Two years ago when the Sox were going nowhere, Tanner received a new five-year contract.

Only five managers have had their jobs longer than Tanner. And all but one — Gene Mauch — has won a pennant at least once during their tenure.

Heck, the Cubs got rid of Leo Durocher when his teams didn't produce and even he had a winning record — 535-525!

Coaches, writers make picks

Sizzling races in North, South

by KEITH REINHARD

They did away with "kissing your sister" three years ago, introducing the tie-breaker arrangement in Illinois high school football.

It doesn't apply to surveys, however, and so there is a stalemate over the projection of a Mid-Suburban League South Division grid champ for 1975. Introducing the co-champs (by prognosis, at least): Schaumburg and Prospect.

According to the annual Herald football poll of coaches and sportswriters, it will be either the Saxons or Knights joining with Arlington in marching to Class 5A playoff berths at the conclusion of the 1975 campaign.

While not necessarily noted for its accuracy — the survey pegged Pala-time and Rolling Meadows as Super Bowl rivals last year — the Herald's early season predictions do afford some insight into where the power lies in the MSL.

And this year that power would seem to clearly rest with Prospect and Schaumburg in the South along with a whole quartet of clubs in the North.

On a basis of seven points for first place, six for second and so on down, the Knights and Saxons finished up in a 123-123 draw out of 20 votes cast. The 13 league coaches abstained from predicting the finish of their own clubs.

Broken down, the writers gave coach Bob Ferguson's crew a narrow one-point heading while the pilots themselves shifted that slim difference over to favor Dave Keefe's Kensington Road gang.

The rest of the South is expected to fall pretty much into place with Forest View finishing a distant third, Rolling Meadows snagging fourth, Elk Grove following and Hoffman Estates and Conant bringing up the rear.

In the North, Arlington, Hersey, Buffalo Grove and Palatine all received a sampling of first place votes and none was picked any lower than fourth. The Huskies were the slim favorite of the coaches to annex division honors, but the writers prevailed with the Cards by a wider spread leaving a final margin of 118-114 in behalf of Arlington.

The Bison, in the meantime, will notch a third and the Pirates will capture fourth while Fremd and Wheeling battle it out for the cellar.

That's the way the prognosticators see it, at any rate. Now the players have their say . . .

Shoots under age

The oldest golfer to shoot under his age (shoot a 70 at the age of 71, for example) was C. Arthur Thompson, of British Columbia, Canada. At the age of 97 in 1966, Thompson shot a round of 96.

Another strike in pro football?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ed Garvey, executive director of the National Football League Players' Association, said Wednesday that some NFL squads would like to strike for a new contract.

Garvey made the comment following his disclosure that the latest offer from team owners was overwhelmingly rejected by the union in balloting last week and this week.

Asked how probably a strike is, Garvey said, "I don't know. We're not making any recommendations. I don't have any feeling."

"Some teams have said they'd like to strike, and there are others who would like to continue our actions in court and other similar moves."

Garvey said the only alternative to a strike "is to keep on with what we're doing. We're still in court with the (John) Mackey case" and the union is still pursuing other legal action aimed at the so-called Rozelle rule and other limitations on players.

"Once again we call on the management counsel to keep the squad size at 47 for the 1975 season and to give us an offer we can't refuse," Garvey said. "When you look at the preseason attendance and other factors, you'd think they'd want to stop all the negative talk and get on to some positive talk with the players' union."

"I don't know, I've been wrong before," he said.

Garvey said the 47-man limit "is a false economy. It's going to dilute the quality of the game."

The defeat of the latest contract offer left player representatives to begin discussing what actions to take, union officials said Wednesday.

"Of the 749 votes already cast, only six members voted to accept the offer," said Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFLPA. "Five teams are still to vote today."

"We are hopeful that this vote will convince all 26 owners to get involved in the bargaining process. We expect to commence bargaining this week."

Garvey said he hoped that the strong vote against the owners' offer would show that "it's not just the leadership but the membership. There still is really nothing on the table of any significance. The next step," Garvey said, "is for the player representatives to meet with the teams and see what action they want to take."

Garvey said he believed it would be at least a week before the player representatives meet again.

The HERALD

MICHIGAN STATE'S Spartan Marching Band takes to the practice field to polish up for Saturday's football game with Ohio State. As a form of harassment for any Ohio State alumni who may be watching, flag carrying members of the band have hung the OSU flag upside down.

Wallis, Thornton key Cubs triumph

Rookie Joe Wallis banged out two triples and Andy Thornton collected his ninth homer in his last 16 games to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 7-6 decision over St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday.

The Cubs collected 10 hits off six St. Louis pitchers, including Harry Rasmussen, who gave up seven hits and six runs in 2-1/3 innings.

The Cubs scored two runs in the first inning on a triple by Wallis, a single by Champ Summers, a single by Jose Cardenal and Reggie Smith's throwing error. Ken Reitz got a run back for the Cards with his fifth homer of the season in the third inning off Cub starter Steve Stone.

The Cubs collected four runs in their half of the third on a single by Don Kessinger, Wallis' second triple, another single by Cardenal and Thornton's 16th homer of the season.

The Cubs loaded the bases in the fifth inning off Mike Wallace and Mike Garman walked Dave Rusello for the Cubs' final run.

Buddy Schultz (2-0) gained the win with 1-1/3 innings of relief and Darold Knowles, who rescued Tom Dettore in the eighth, received credit for his 13th save.

Len Rohde retires from 49ers

Veteran offensive tackle Len Rohde, a Palatine High School product who has played in 208 consecutive regular season National Football League games, announced his retirement from the San Francisco 49ers Wednesday.

Rohde, 37, last year was voted the Len Eshmont Award by his teammates for courageous and inspirational play, but had been moved out of the starting lineup this summer by either Keith Fahnhorst or John Watson.

This apparently bothered the former Palatine football and wrestling star because 49er coach Dick Nolan noted this week that Rohde "is still capable of playing in this league. He has kept himself in splendid physical condition."

Rohde's consecutive game mark is two short of the record shared by Jim Otto, who retired this summer from the Oakland Raiders, and George Blanda, who is still with the Raiders and figures to increase his streak this season.

Angels trim White Sox, Kaat

Major league strikeout leader Frank Tanana scattered three hits and did not walk a man Wednesday night in pitching the California Angels to a 4-2 decision over the Chicago White Sox.

Tanana, winning his 18th game against just seven losses, picked up his 18th complete game while striking out nine Sox to increase his major league lead to 237.

Meanwhile, the Angels collected 14 hits to deal Jim Kaat his 12th loss against 20 wins.

Kaat was replaced in the fifth inning after giving up his fourth run on singles by Leroy Stanton, John Balaz and Winston Llenas. Dave Chalk had homered in the second.

Jorge Orta got Chicago's first hit, a double down the left field line with two out in the fourth. With one out in the fifth, Lamar Johnson, up from Denver, socked his first major league homer into the center field bullpen and Bill Melton homered in the ninth.

Kingman hits two, Luzinski one

Dave Kingman (from Mount Prospect) of the New York Mets hit two home runs, his 32nd and 33rd, and Greg Luzinski (Prospect Heights) of the Philadelphia Phillies hit his 32nd Wednesday evening in major league baseball highlights.

Kingman smashed his two home runs in a losing cause as the Pittsburgh Pirates dumped the New York Mets and 21-game winner Tom Seaver, 8-4. Kingman's homers were solo blasts in the second and ninth innings.

Luzinski's 32nd homer and first since Aug. 17 came with a man on in the first inning and powered the Phillies to a 5-1 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Mid-Suburban holds first round of league cross country action

The first round of Mid-Suburban League cross country dual meets will be hosted today at six course sites.

South division meets include Conant at Rolling Meadows at 4:30 p.m., Schaumburg at Hoffman Estates at 4:15, and Elk Grove at Prospect at 5 p.m. The Hoffman meet has been moved up from 5 p.m.

North division meets are Arlington at Hershey at 4:30 p.m., and Buffalo Grove at Fremd and Wheeling at Palatine at 5 p.m.

Prospect and Rolling Meadows home courses are located at the high schools. Fremd runs at Union Oil's grounds, Palatine runs at Palatine Hills Golf Course, Hoffman's meets are at the forest preserve near Rte. 72 and Barrington Road, and Hershey hosts at the public park on Maude St. in Arlington Heights.

This year only dual-meet results against division opponents will count toward conference standings.

Arlington Twilight ends; seeks members

The Arlington Heights Twilight Golf League concluded its 1975 season at Hilldale Golf Course with Nowack Sales taking first place and Binzel Industries and Grimm Welding tying for second.

Individual winners were Len Haines, Sr., Ted Binzel, Jack Grimm and Howard Vitok. Dick Showczyk was top in the alternate group.

The League will again play Hilldale Course in Hoffman Estates in 1976 and invites local golfers interested in Friday evening league play to call league secretary Les Wdowik at 678-2090.

Randhurst plans Ice Sports Show

A unique combination of new equipment displays for hockey, figure skating, speed skating and other winter-related sports plus a gigantic "swap and sell" used equipment exchange and fund raising game carnivals will highlight the first annual Ice Sports Show being held at Randhurst Twin Ice Arena, Mount Prospect, on Saturday, Sept. 13, from noon to 6 p.m.

Admission to the exhibits is free to members of boys' hockey associations, figure skating and speed skating clubs and other organizations and interested individuals. Those attending have a chance to win one of 50 valuable door prizes, including such items as pro-line hockey skates, warm-up suits, skating apparel, figure skating lessons and free skating passes. No purchase of any kind is necessary.

Approximately 50 sporting goods manufacturers or their sales representatives and local northwest suburban boys' hockey associations and other non-profit sports organizations are expected to take part. Exhibits will be situated on a covered ice surface in one of the two regulation hockey-size rinks and on the upper level of the arena.

In addition to the various activities related to sports equipment, clothing and accessories, visitors are invited to skate during show hours from noon to 6 p.m. for just 50 cents. Skate rentals are also available for $1.

Randhurst Twin Ice Arena assistant manager Dave Emeersen conceived the idea for the Ice Sports Show as a means of bringing together buyers and sellers in the northwest suburban area. He said, "We are donating our facilities to the participating local non-profit organizations and thereby assuring our equipment exhibits a qualified audience of sports enthusiasts they could not reach conveniently in any other way."

Emersen indicated that there were still a few remaining openings for local groups wishing to participate.

Tankersley's great game slumps into 15-14 defeat

The Niles Saints, accustomed to winning or contending for the Chicago Football League crown, opened their season this past weekend with a highly unaccustomed finish.

The Saints made a stupid last second mistake and lost.

One second showed on the clock when the Chicago Gladiators completed a touchdown pass and won, 15-14.

That snuffed out the brilliant 197 yard rushing effort by Saints' running back Ed Tankersley who scored once on a five-yard run. John Gruber tallied from 45 yards away.

Now in their fourth season at Niles, after 11 years as the Austin Bears, the Saints next entertain the CSL Lions at 8 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 13, at Notre Dame High School in Niles.

The Saints have won eight Chicago-Land Football League championships in 14 years. Admission to home games at Notre Dame is $2 for adults and $1 for children.

Harper women win debut in tennis; blank Elgin

There is big excitement on the Harper women's tennis team this fall. Starting a new season half a year earlier than usual, the Hawks and head coach Martha Bolt have 12 talented players, including seven from the state championship team last spring.

Leading the returnees is first singles player Sue Kelly, who opened the new season Tuesday with a 6-0, 6-0 victory in her match to key Harper to a 9-0 waltz past Elgin.

"I was anxious to watch the new team members in competition," Bolt said. "I was extremely pleased with not only their play but also with the members from last year's team."

"We are off to an excellent start." Three other veterans posted straight-set victories in the singles as Cathy Aldana won at second singles, Anita Jay at third and Maggie McCormack at fifth.

Freshmen Pam Edwards and Colleen Maynard coasted to wins in fourth and sixth singles respectively.

The doubles pairings for Harper were each anchored with at least one experienced player. Sophomores Dianne DeWitt and Amy Redeen handled the first doubles assignment with aplomb, dispatching Elgin's entry 6-0, 6-0.

Newcomer Karla Karaffia teamed up with second-year person Carol Hopkins for a two-set win at second doubles while sophomore Maggie McCormack backed up Karen Peter in her debut at third doubles.

Harper will host a triangular meet today at 3 p.m. with Waukegan and Illinois Valley.

Smilers hold club Fun Day

The Smilers Golf League held a Fun Day at Old Orchard Country Club as the participants were forced to negotiate the 9-hole course using only a 5-iron and a putter.

Louise Lawrenz fired a 50 to take the low gross in Flight A. Dottie Hardy captured Flight B with a 57, Mary Ann Schweigert the Flight C with 59 and Shirley Cochran the Flight D with 81.

Hardy also won the low puts of the day award as she took just 15.

Pars were recorded by Arlene Runge on No. 1, Louise Lawrenz on No. 6, Sandy Fernstrom and Flo Marzullo on No. 7.

Shirley Cochran dumped in a 60-foot chip shot on the ninth hole.

RAIDERS 24, MOUNT 0
The Raiders offense shook Mike Stathakis loose and the little back ran for two touchdowns and caught one pass from Ernie Kuehl for a third. Jon Zavadny, behind some excellent blocking, capitalized on a little hole and away he went for 43 yards and the fourth. The extra point was added by Hunt. The Raider defense was sparked by Greg Kowalczyk, Vince Halama and Jack Bernard. The Rams got off to a slow start. Outstanding game performances were by Greg Kucha, Jim Limporis, Jim Pappas, Brian Krause and Dom Boragina.

WILCOX 24, 49ERS 0
Tailback Jim Weiss scored twice on end runs. The scoring foot was added two by end Kevin Latham as he ran into the end zone with a beautifully thrown pass. The fullback Scott Burton, not to be outdone, carried the 49ers into the goal line with him as he scored the final TD for the Wilcox. Extra points were added by Ken Paisley and Jim Weiss. Excellent offensive blocking was given by Joe Dowdick, Ron Teutal and Bill Nibbelich. The defense was spearheaded by Mike O'Malley, Steve Chin, Brett Gorgol. Key defensive errors hurt the 49ers, but outstanding work was consistent from big, tough Scott Francis. Offensively John Latham tried to carry the load but the 49ers did not give him running room.

HAWKEYES 10, BULLDOGMEN 0
In the third quarter Bulldog backs Marty Doyle and Scott Pedro had big gains that brought the ball to the Bulldog goal. Steve Barker scored on a one yard plunge. The game belonged to the defense as Tom McElroy, Mike Young, John Gibbons, Bob Pelham, Jeff Walker and Kevin McElroy pushed the Bulldoggers to their own goal line. Doug Barker made a tackle in the end zone and the Bulldog defense was sounded. The defending champion Bulldoggers offensive stars Bob Gorny, Dave Lier and Pat Slonney ran and blocked with the Bulldog defense. Offensively John Latham tried to carry the load but the 49ers did not give him running room.

REARLANS 24, ILLINOIS 0
Mark Fredovich ran for four TD's as the Spartan offense led by Gary O'Drill gained 100 yards. The offensive surge was made possible by the fullback, an intercepted blocked punt by Bert Knuth, an intercepted pass by Joe Hefertree, and outstanding tackles by Dan Dekaster and Darren Hadden. The fullback, led by the strong running of Ken Garvey, Chris Boyd and Bob Matthias, threatened the Spartans time and again, but that one big break never came. The offensive blocking was crisp and sharp. The defense was led by the tackling of Paul Johnson, Steve Treche and Hank Fredericks.

WILCOX 24, GOPHERS 0
Trailing the Gophers in the fourth quarter, the defense of the Wilcox, John Jennings, Brian Mittal, Dan Carrien, Ivan Lennear, Andy Akeford and Tom Jergin, gave its offense great field position as they held the Gophers to minus yardage. Running room was never needed as quarterback Julie Carpenter and Mark Variano each scored on one yard runs. Variano added the extra point from the quarter. Quarterback Jim O'Callaghan, Tim Keller dashed for a 35 yard TD. O'Callaghan's interception and fumble recovery by Joe Johnson and John Nance, teamed with excellent tackling by Tom Gladstone and Scott Gholomo sparked the Golden Gopher defense.

BRUINS 14, HUCKEYES 0
The big Bruins put together a solid offensive ground game with a hard hitting defense that defeated a fine Buckeye team. Quarterback Doug Close galloped in with the 1st TD and added two extra points. Gary Geland, behind some good line blocking, ran 41 yards for the Bruins score. The second half was all defense as Gene Craddock recovered a fumble and Mark Larusson kicked in with six solo tackles. Bob Kelly led the Bruins in the second half with hard running and was aided by a total team effort. The hard hitting and running of Doug Close, Mike Barron and Scott Hie wasn't enough to penetrate the big Bruin defense. Many times Buckeye backs drove for good yardage. John Voligt led the Buckeyes on defense with game saving tackles. He was aided by the strong play of Mike O'Brien who had two fumble recoveries.

Scoreboard

WOLVERINES 6, TIGERS 0
An extremely strong defense led by Kozol Polachy, Caffaro, Serson, George Wilcox, with fumble recoveries by Blomquist, Steinmetz and Hesse made the going rough for the tough Tigers. Quarterback Polachy carried on a sneak and it was all the Wolverines needed as the clock ran out. A game report was not submitted by the Tigers.

HOOVER 6, HAWKEYES 0
The upset of the day came when a strong Hoover defense led by defensive ends Randy Weidner and Bill Freiberg, linebackers Dan Zender and Hugh Nickle stopped the powerful running attack of the Hawkeyes. Running backs Zender and Mike Kuller ground out stable yardage in a late drive but a penalty stopped them at the three. Although the Hawkeyes offense was bottled up most of the game, the defense never gave up defending their title as champs. Defensive standouts were Ken Keeler, Ed Cheatham, Owen Hurd and Ken Petersen. Vasek blocked a punt to give the Hawkeyes offense good field position, but the team was unable to score. Tackling punting helped the Hawkeyes keep the Hooverers from their goal.

LIONS 14, PACKERS 0
The Lions scored the first time they had the ball as back Steve Anderskov ran for a 70 yard TD behind blocking of Pat Bernard, Jeff Koenke and Mike Hagan. In the 3rd quarter, quarterback Mike Kellerman threw to end Russ Jolski who barreled 55 yards for the 2nd Lion score. Kellerman added the Lion TD on a 4 yard sneak in the 4th quarter. Defensively, Ed Sedogierak, Dave Gill and Angie Damiano played well. The Lions secondary was superb with pass interceptions by Scott Martin, John Hood, Steve Anderskov and Kellerman. Also noted for blocking were Brian Blonder and Brian Bob Roemisch and Greg Geland supplied the running power. The Packers were unable to move the ball consistently; however, Jack Hindman, Bob Fisher, Jerry Loch and Dan Lathouse were the keys to several first downs. Jim Mages, Tom Ost and Jim Miles performed well on the defensive unit.

GIANTS 6, COLTS 0
Jeff Zender grabbed a 60 yard pass from quarterback John Fruso as the Colts had the defending champion Giants down for the count. The Colt offensive line played excellent ball with blocking from Kevin Jachec, Phil Schultz, Bruce Shaffer, Tom Cronin, Tom Lomick and Theo Denard. The Colt offense was sparked with runs by Mike Koll, Mike Schmidt and Jeff Koenke. With three running out, Giant star John Nobile returned an interception pass for 100 yards as the Giants tied the Colts. Offensively the Giants with Phil Teopner, Mickey Kutzler and Tom Lomick ran the ball well. Joe Nobile, Scott Kurnat, Tom Holland, Wojtowicz and Howie Schilt anchored the defensive unit.

CARDINALS 6, BEARS 0
In a battle of the nerves and with the clock winding down to 20 seconds, reigning quarterback Ed Conlin on a sneak scored the game winning TD. Frank Apuzzo and Mike Malloy were tigers in the middle of the defensive line. Bret Blaney was outstanding on both offense and defense. Jim Reitzke and Tim Baines did a superb job of blocking on the offensive line. Glenn McGinn caught several key passes. The Bears were never able to get the offense moving with great consistency; however, the defense kept the game tight until the very end. Hard tackling by Scott Wirtz, Steve Santostefano and Frank Kavanagh was the key to the Bear defense throughout the game.

EAGLES 21, BROWNS 0
The Eagles opened their first and out flew a host of runners. Led by fleet-footed Mark Szymanski's 2 yard plunge, Doug Walt ran for a 12 yard TD, topped off with Bill Gube's weaving 32 yard end run behind the blocking of Brad Kay, Corey Douglas, Dave Miller and John Walters. The extra point was scored by Pat Ruane. On defense the Eagles kept flying with pass interceptions by Pat Ruane, Dan Kilroy and Dan Boyles, Jim Bornemann and Todd Matthias ran well for the Browns behind the blocking of Jay Grear and Bob Bornemann. Defensive standouts Tim Barrett, Jim Vile and Pete Zolocki tried valiantly to hold the Eagles down.

CHIEFS 21, REDSKINS 0
The Chiefs looked advantage of every Redskins error as Kevin Maloney scored twice on runs of 1 and 9 yards. Gus Vivorito ran 35 yards for the TD with an intercepted pass and added his second of the day with a 10 yard run behind the blocking of Brendan Burke and Dave Bleda. The word Chief score was Bob Anderson when he rammed with a 30 yard pass play. Jim Guakey scored the extra point. It was the Chief defense that stopped the Redskins. Among the leading tacklers were Darren Hinman, Bill Anderson and Jeff Sauer. Key defensive plays were turned in by Gus Vivorito, two interceptions and the teaming of Mike Gielozon and Glen Garlich in blocking a punt. The Redskins had their hand full with back Bill Schroll gained yardage behind the blocking of center Chris Dambrock and tackle Mike Baker. The defense was led by the tackling of Jeff Hinchwood.

STEELERS 21, VIKINGS 0
The Steelers opened defense of the title with an impressive win as five boys led the diversified attack. Bob Nielsen swept the ends twice to score, followed by John Payne's 40 yard pass scoring play to close the first half. The Steelers broke it open in the 3rd period with scoring pass plays by Ed Wallace and Randy McLeod. The big strong defense of Don Falcone, Jim Bledel, Jim Cowan and Steve Newsum figured in the score as they pressured the Vikings into many errors. One of which was turned into a TD when John Hurd scored with a pass interception. The Vikings did not submit a game report.

COWBOYS 6, JETS 0
The Cowboys had excellent blocking by Mike Bulow, Jim Chipchase, John Allen and Ron Renaud. The offense was led by the passing from quarterback Dave Kozell to end Bill Hahly and the running of Tom Bray and Steve Rudnick. Rudnick scampered around end with a burst of speed in the 1st quarter, from there the Cowboy defense went to work. The Cowboy sparklers on defense were Steve Rudnick, Dave Kozell and Jeff Klop. A game report was not submitted by the Jets.

Buffalo Grove

BUFFALO GROVE 6, PACKERS 0
Kevin Lutherhanshausen swept the right side for a 32-yard TD run with just seven minutes remaining for the only score of the game.

Bill's Lightweight 27, St. Mary's 0
The Bulls' defense limited the opposition to one first down and minus 23 yards rushing while the offense piled up 255 total yards. Fullback Eric Frost tallied twice, on runs of one and 23 yards. Marc Kroll and Dan Triplett scored the other TDs.

Bill's Peewee 34, Antioch Vikings 0
QB Mark Leach threw three TDs on runs of 30, 18, and 14 yards and halfback Steve Maro rushed for 81 yards and a touchdown. Bobby Solis also tallied on a 23-yarder.

Bill's Heavyweights 19, Fighting Irish 0
Dave Grant scored twice on runs of 38 and 5 yards as the Bulls came to life in the second half to break a scoreless tie. The Bulls' third TD came on a 32-yard pass from QB Mike Riba to receiver Garth Stehlik.

GOOD GROOMING is a pleasure in the gay, posy-spattered room of Shannon McGreevy, 6. Her mother picked up the dresser and chest through a classified ad, antiqued them a soft blue, and stripped the tops and knobs to their natural oak. That's Mom's baby coat hanging on the wall.

HOLLOW HOUSING for an old grandfather clock inspired Peg to create an illuminated, velvet-lined display cabinet for her white porcelain collection. It's antiqued wedgwood blue.

Peggy McGreevy gives glamour to castoffs

by ELEANOR RIVES

Marty and Peggy McGreevy's home in north Arlington Heights is elegantly appointed with furnishings that Peggy describes as "Early Garage Sale" or "Paddock Classified."

Peggy, a junk dealer by interior decorators' standards, haunts all Arlington Heights garage sales — and she gets there early. Many of her period pieces may be traced back to a "Household Furnishings" ad in the Herald — or to a Salvation Army Store — or to a junk shop in Rockford.

She both sells and buys items at The Country Store, Arlington Heights Historical Society's answer to snow-balling interest in all that is old, antique or handcrafted. "Buying or selling — it's a bargain either way," she says.

TURNING JUNK into junkie is more than a pastime for Peggy, it's a way of life.

"When I spot something at a sale I can see instantly what can be done with it. I don't think twice about it or wonder if I have a place for it. If you like something, you will find a place for it," she said as she arranged tiny strawflowers in an old porcelain salt shaker she had acquired.

She was sitting in a French Provincial barrel chair with ivory wood frame, newly reupholstered in bright-red-ribbed velvet, picked up at a garage sale. More of the fabric was used as a round tablecloth with deep white fringe, thrown over an old, "not even pretty" round table that once belonged to her mother. Laid casually on the velvet cloth was a large square of crocheted lace, producing a lush picture of Victorian elegance.

TO ONE SIDE of her chair was a graceful French end table, its wooden top stripped and refinished, its supporting scrollwork antiqued a soft shade of Wedgwood blue.

"We found it in the garbage a few blocks away," she explained, adding painfully, "It was completely painted black." Peg's husband long ago learned to drive with one foot on the brake.

Also antiqued in Wedgwood blue is the hollow housing of a grandfather clock standing against a nearby wall. Peggy lined it with blue velvet, put in six glass shelves, new hardware and, with her husband's help, illumination from within. A stunning living room piece, it now displays a collection of white porcelain figurines.

THE TOTAL PRICE — including the $10 she paid for it when she answered a Paddock ad — was $25. "I have seen a similar one displayed in a furniture company for about $300," she said.

Peggy handles ordinary objects in an extraordinary way. Anything she can't find space for on a shelf or table, she hangs on the wall. By now, you may be sure little wall space is left.

Framed and in attractive arrangements are such unexpected items as a gold backplate for a doorknob with a jeweled earring adorning its center, a large gold key, a horse brass, the various parts of her husband's old gold watch.

OTHER WALL decorations include "just a pretty box," Peggy's own little baby coat, framed placemats, old plates and saucers ("I hide center cracks by adding a little round mirror in the center and border it with circles of velvet and lace"), old sewing machine drawers attached vertically and holding candles set in insulators, an old mail sorter with its many pigeonholes, and an assortment of farm implements, as well as the more usual framed dried flower arrangements and needlepoint pictures.

Peggy admits she is attracted to old sewing machines and owns several. Not for sewing, mind you — she never learned to sew by machine. Complete, a machine is more interesting as a plant stand. The bottom half comfortably supports a television set, or fits snugly beneath the bathroom sink where guests are surprised at the unique vanity, its treadle supporting a big potted fern.

MANY OF THE McGreevy's larger furniture pieces are fugitives from the classified section. Peggy strips and refinishes them, or antiques them, or paints them a color she lacks in a particular corner.

In daughter Shannon's room are a matching dresser and chest, a roomy handsome pair that Peggy picked up for $15 apiece and antiqued in soft blue.

In son Shawn's room is a bookcase painted brick red, one of Peggy's "dollar" finds. Peggy splurged on a Drexel china cabinet, adding lighting and white shirred curtains. It's worth much more now than the $100 she paid for it.

THE BEAUTIFUL little refinished French coffee table in her living room originally cost $10 at a Salvation Army store. Adding a new cushion to a lovely wood rocker — bought through a Paddock ad for $18 — was just the decorator touch needed.

From the Queen Anne dining room table in her garage to the about-to-be-discarded, lidless sugar bowl in her neighbor's garage sale, Peggy finds a use for everything she likes and everything she touches responds to the McGreevy magic. She tells all about it in a program for women's groups, "From Junk to Junkie," and brings along a carload of elegant examples.

Program chairmen may discuss it with her at 259-8842 if they can catch her between garage sales.

A book to help women remodel their homes

by BARBARA LADD

If you haven't joined the do-it-yourself home remodeling group because you were afraid you would botch the job, a Mount Prospect author might be able to help you. Or at least her book might.

"Help! I Want to Remodel My Home," by Ann Sutherland Augustin (Nelson-Hale, $8.95), is touted as the New Woman's guide to home improvement. But she says it also wouldn't hurt men to read her book.

An avid do-it-yourself home remodeler, she begins from scratch, laying out in detail the tools needed. She then takes you through the entire house, remodeling floors, ceilings, walls and just about anything else in it except the people. And if you want to maintain long, unbroken fingernails, you'd better find another book or another person to do the work for you, because her instructions are clear, practical and elbow-deep in such things as wax stripper, spackel and grout.

MS. AUGUSTIN, who has taught sewing and sold Fuller brushes, said she believes there is an upsurge in home remodeling for several reasons. One is that with the cost of labor so high, many people who want to improve their homes are priced out of the project.

"Labor is 50 to 60 per cent of the cost of remodeling," she writes. If you can cut down on the labor expense, you might be able to really upgrade your materials, she advises.

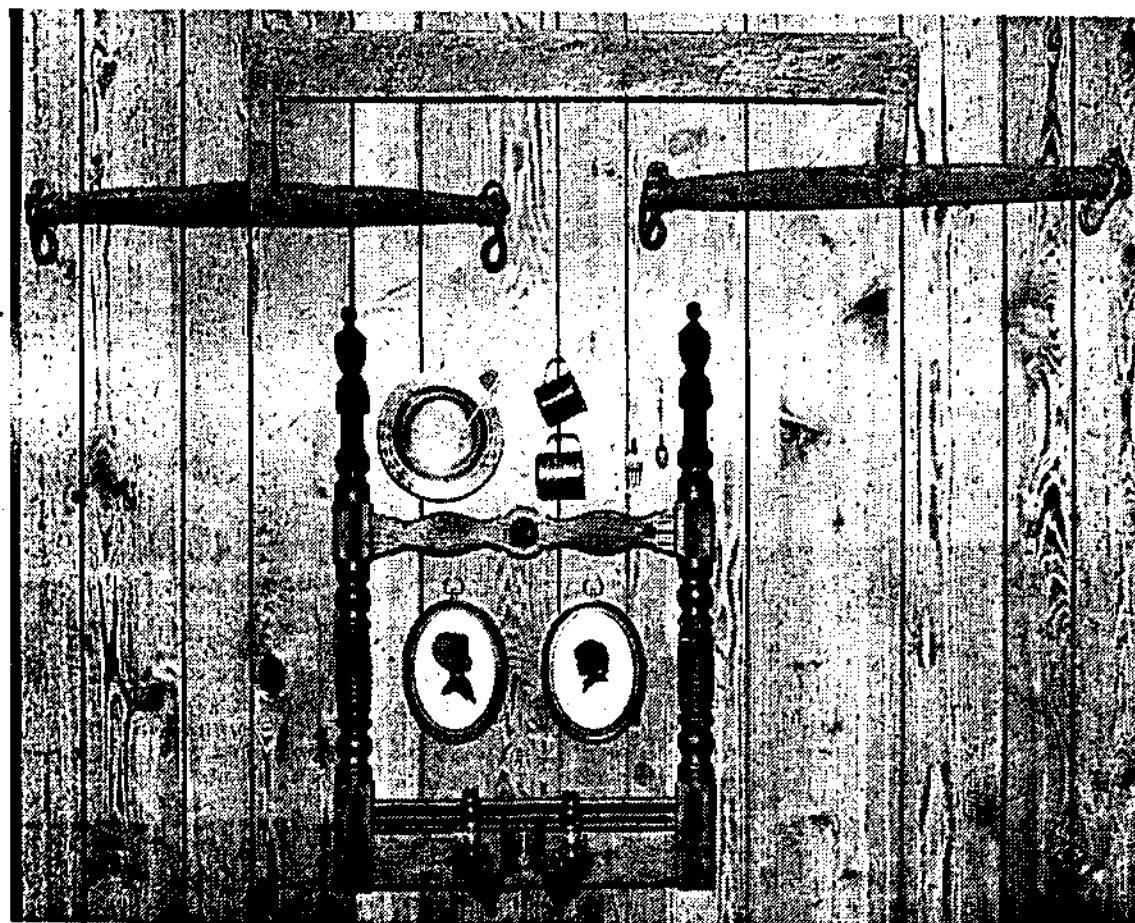

An added plus in eliminating professional wallpaper hangers, painters, carpenters or whatever is that you will be more careful than a professional, according to Ms. Augustin. "You take more time because you have pride in your own home."

Another reason for home remodeling, says Ms. Augustin, is that with the school season here women are becoming bored just staying home.

In the preface of her book she also points out "Many young women are choosing to live alone. They take pride in their independence, are freed from the old pressures to 'graduate, marry, have babies and stay home' and wish to live in a place that reflects their own personality."

Whatever the reason, the do-it-yourself remodeling outlets did a $20 billion business last year, she reports.

JUNK BECOMES junkie in the clever hands of Peggy McGreevy, who has furnished much of her Arlington Heights home with castoffs of other people. Who would guess that the unusual frame for this handsome wall arrangement is simply a table end painted black and turned upside down!

Pair takes Canada trip

Mr. and Mrs. Steven D. Jelm

Judith Marie Michels of Prospect Heights and her bridegroom, Steven Donald Jelm of Somonauk, Ill., honeymooned a week in the mountains of Canada following their marriage Aug. 9 in St. Alphonsus Church, Prospect Heights.

The couple is now back in Champaign where both are continuing their studies at the University of Illinois.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Michels, Judith and Steven, son of the Donald Jelm, Somonauk, are '75 graduates of the university. Judith, a graduate of Sacred Heart of Mary High, received her college degree in speech pathology and is now a master's candidate. Steven received his degree in accounting and is studying for his CPA.

THEIR NOONTIME wedding was double ring with Judith's sister, Mrs. Sue Hoyle, Arlington Heights, as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were three Alpha Omicron Pi sorority sisters of Judith's, Carol Conrad, Kankakee, Leslie Merrill, Hazel Crest, and Nancy Crump, Palatine; the groom's sister, Sandy; and Mrs. Kathy Sack, Buffalo Grove.

Jeff Jelm was his brother's best man, and groomsmen were Paul Orton, Lisbon; David Tolto, Newark; William Keating, Arlington Heights; and Jerry Adrian, Somonauk, all Psi Upsilon fraternity brothers of the groom; and Larry Dannewitz, Somonauk.

Ushers were John McIntosh, Clifton, and David Slack, Arlington Heights, also fraternity brothers.

A reception for 175 guests was held at the Camelot Restaurant, Des Plaines.

Western Illinois grads repeat vows Aug. 16

May graduates of Western Illinois University were married Aug. 16 in St. Emily Catholic Church, Mount Prospect, and are living in St. Charles, Ill.

The bride is the former Diane Gormalne, daughter of the Raymond Gormalne of Mount Prospect, and the groom is Mark Fanning, whose parents are the Edward Fannings of Sandwich, Ill.

Since graduation Diane is working at Clearbrook Rehabilitation Center, Elk Grove Village, and her husband is with the St. Charles Park District.

They met at WIU when the bride became a "little sister" to Mark's fraternity, Delta Tau Delta. Several of their college friends were in the wedding party, Teri Haugland as maid of honor and Jeff Galvin and Brad Bourne among the groomsmen.

THE COUPLE'S SISTERS, Nancy Fanning and Debbie Gormalne, were bridesmaids, along with Jane Jennings of Arlington Heights. Michael Bennett, Sandwich, was best man; Bob Paulson, Sandwich, was a groomsmen; Arnie Allen, Sandwich, and Joe Hann, Somonauk, were ushers.

The bride chose a white organza gown with lace trim and an elbow-length veil also edged in lace and held by a lace headpiece. She carried white spider mums, yellow roses and baby's breath.

Her attendants wore yellow halter gowns with floral bodice and yellow jackets and carried yellow mums and daisies with orange tea roses.

Diane is a '71 graduate of Hersey High School.

Freeze food right or it's not worth eating

Dear Dorothy: Six or seven months ago I bought three boxes of mushrooms and put them in the freezer. Needed some one day and took out a box. They were black and almost slimy. My neighbor and I couldn't decide whether they were usable so I threw them out. Tried another box, cutting them up and using them in a cooked dish. No one got sick or anything like that. Maybe we were lucky. But do you think the last box might be safe to eat? — Barbara A.

You probably were lucky. Now toss that last box and mark it up to experience. Next time you buy mushrooms, keep in mind there are two ways they can be prepared for freezing. They can either be sauteed or blanched. Whichever you choose, they then have to be properly packaged before going into the freezer. Quit taking chances. Frozen food incorrectly processed doesn't taste good, so why bother with it in the first place?

Dear Dorothy: Will it hurt or affect a wool or synthetic rug to put a runner rug on it? Our hall rug is starting to wear and I'd like to put something on it to absorb some of the wear. — Sara M. Hawkes

As a general thing, this doesn't work. The top rug tends to slide. What I suggest you do is experiment with a small rug before you go to the expense of getting a runner.

Dear Dorothy: A safe and secure place to store important papers — like insurance policies and so forth — within fingertip reach is the refrigerator. Wrap securely in plastic paper and tape to one side wall. It doesn't take up shelf space. Put your "info on ice." — Katey Allen

Cook enough, Katey, but it sure wouldn't work for me. Too many papers and too crowded a refrigerator. But I concede that, for those with a few papers, there's a merit to the

Consumers take beefs to board

Editor's Note: Monica Perin is on vacation. The following was written by Jeanne Lessem, UPI family living editor.)

One woman dried chicken feathers for pillows in her electric clothes dryer. The appliance conked out.

Another fired ceramics in the oven of her kitchen range, using its 800-degree self-clean cycle. She ruined the oven.

Virginia Habeeb likes to quote these rare cases as examples of the way some consumers misuse home appliances.

Mrs. Habeeb, an editor, author and consumer consultant, is the new chairman of the Major Appliance Consumer Action Panel, an appeals board for consumers with beefs about appliance manufacturers, retailers and service agencies.

It is sponsored by, but works independently of, three industry trade organizations: the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers, the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association and the National Retail Merchants Association.

MACAP HAS processed 15,000 consumer complaints since its founding five years ago, and reports 89 per cent were resolved.

Mrs. Habeeb says about 20 to 40 per cent of the service calls consumers initiate could be eliminated if they first checked the plugs and fuses involved, and read appliance instruction books.

Many have genuine complaints, she added, and the panel was established to help settle them. When necessary, a third party opinion is sought.

"An Extension agent or home economist sometimes is sent to test an appliance," she said. "We've even had third parties sent to a consumer's home to bake pies in an oven that the owner claimed was faulty."

HATE CONSUMERS have sent the panel burned cookies and clothes with holes allegedly caused by a washer or dryer. MACAP once sent a third party to bake biscuits in an oven the owner said was warmer at the back than at the front.

Even a minor complaint can become major. Take the case of a consumer seeking replacement of a broken temperature control knob on her oven. A new one cost only 95 cents, but the dealer who had sold her the range blamed the manufacturer, and tried to sell her a new stove instead. She wrote the panel, which resolved the dispute.

Mrs. Habeeb said 93.8 per cent of the complaints received last year were settled by sponsoring trade groups in the communications phase. Unresolved ones go to MACAP.

REFRIGERATORS DRAW the most fire. Many warranties for freezers have food loss clauses, but few refrigerator-freezer warranties do, she said. Only about 5.3 per cent of the complaints involve food losses, but this figure is increasing, she added. Some want replacement of an appliance because of excessive repair charges or a heavy service history.

"Consumers are increasingly aware that they had a major expenditure in buying the item originally," she said. "They are becoming more aware that they have recourse."

"There is a growing awareness of the total cost of an appliance: its purchase price, operating costs, regular maintenance and service history."

The consumer

by Monica Wilch Perin

"Consumers sometimes have unreasonable expectations," Mrs. Habeeb said. Some make no provision for salvaging food when a refrigerator or freezer breaks down. Some overload a refrigerator shelf with heavy containers, cracking the shelf liner.

OTHERS MAY NOT clean the refrigerator condenser regularly, or may use the wrong detergent or excessive bleach in a washing machine.

Mrs. Habeeb said the panel looks for complaint patterns: "If there is a series of compressor failures from a particular manufacturer . . . we ask representatives to meet with us to discuss the problem. We may recommend a design change."

"We have asked manufacturers to provide customers with receipts for in-warranty service, and we urge consumers to ask for them." This provides a service history as a basis for further claims.

A book on remodeling

Before beginning your home improvements, Ms. Augustin recommends in her book that you ask yourself the following questions:

• Would you be improving your house beyond its resale value? "Any real estate agent will tell you that the most expensive home on the block is the hardest to sell."

• Are improvements necessary for the sale of your home? "No prospective buyer is impressed by a house with peeling paint, ripped wallpaper or marred floor tiles. He would assume that if the surface of the house shows wear and tear, then the nonvisible components (such as plumbing, hot water heater, furnace, etc.) have really been 'let go.'"

"It is in your best financial interest to keep the house, no matter what its age, as up-to-date as possible," says the author.

The basic tools needed include a claw hammer, a tack hammer, at least four screwdrivers, two saws, a slip-joint and a needle-nose pliers, a set of wrenches, a chisel and a carpenter's level.

"Never purchase cheap tools," she writes. "Not only will they give an inferior performance, but they will wear out or break much sooner than the more expensive ones."

She recommends buying a name brand tool. "And don't buy the cheapest of the line."

Ms. Augustin says her favorite remodeling project is laying ceramic tile. She devotes an entire chapter to her pitfalls and successes in that area. She tells you how to remove the old floor covering, what to look for when buying tile, how to plan the amount needed and how to actually put on the new flooring.

"THE FIRST TILE IS the hardest," she says.

After the floor is done, she suggests doing the ceiling, trim and then starting on the walls. "Just remember to cover your new floor with a drop sheet (paint cloth)," she advises.

She then lays out the how-to's of wallpaper hanging — the types of wallpaper available on the market, the steps needed to remove old paper from the walls, and the procedures to be taken in putting the new paper up.

And that is the format of Ms. Augustin's book. She also includes chapters on resilient flooring, ceilings and stair treatment, remodeling kitchen, bathroom and basement, and concludes with a miscellaneous chapter entitled "Finishing Touches and Other Ideas." The "other ideas" include things like spindles, shelves, glass-block windows, patios and shutters. And the entire book is filled with hints, logic and hard work.

"Some of the procedures I learned the hard way," she writes. "Hopefully, this book will spare you the mistakes I made."

Couple wed in same church where they met 4 years ago

Virginia Marie Lehto and Walter Hans (Terry) Bennis III became man and wife Aug. 18 in the same church where they first met more than four years ago.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Lehto, former Buffalo Grove residents now living in Cicero, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bennis Jr. were wed in a double ring ceremony in Living Christ Lutheran Church of Buffalo Grove at 3:30 in the afternoon.

Ginny was dressed in an antique ivory satin lace gown sewn by her friend, Peggy Lester. A lace headpiece held her elbow-length veil and she carried a bouquet of roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Loreen Kuhl of Palatine, her matron of honor, wore yellow satin and the bridesmaids, Ginny's sister, Patricia, and Terry's sister, Barbara, were dressed in green, their gowns sewn by Cindy Barry, a friend of the groom's family. All three carried yellow and white daisies.

GINNY'S 4-YEAR-OLD niece, Anne Illiger of Wheaton, was flower girl, wearing yellow satin, and her 4-year-old cousin, Andrew Lehto of Kenosha, Wis., was ring bearer.

Charles Kuhl of Palatine served Terry as his best man. His brother, David, and a friend, Wayne Malarski of Wheeling, ushered.

A reception for 90 guests at the

After a week's honeymoon in St. Louis, the newlyweds are living in Prospect Heights. Ginny, a '73 graduate of Wheeling High School, works at Irving Federal Savings and Loan in Buffalo Grove, while her bridegroom, a '72 Wheeling graduate, is employed by Wayne Bush Masonry, Palatine.

Why not a clamp to store potatoes?

Have you ever heard of a potato clamp? It's a method of storing potatoes that's used a lot in England.

It involves keeping the potatoes outside during winter, in the dark, dry, and ventilated.

For this, a well-drained shady spot in the garden area is chosen. If the spot isn't well drained, a platform can be built on which the clamp will be set.

The clamp is started with a thick layer of straw. Dry, disease-free potatoes are then packed in a neat pile atop the heavy straw. A layer of straw is then heaped over the potatoes at least 12 inches thick, as frost protection.

ON TOP OF the straw, about nine inches of soil is added like pie crust on a pie, but only after the potatoes have been pulled out of the ground for about four weeks. This will allow for transpiration in the potatoes, which gives off considerable heat (you don't want hot potatoes). Actually, the bugs will attack if the potatoes are wet and the clamp may go bad if you shut them up too quickly.

After you do add the soil, tamp it down. Allow some straw to project out of the soil as a ventilator. This is very important.

The ideal size is about four feet high and five feet wide. After this size, the clamp gets too hard to work with. The sides of the clamp should be as steep as possible to aid drainage.

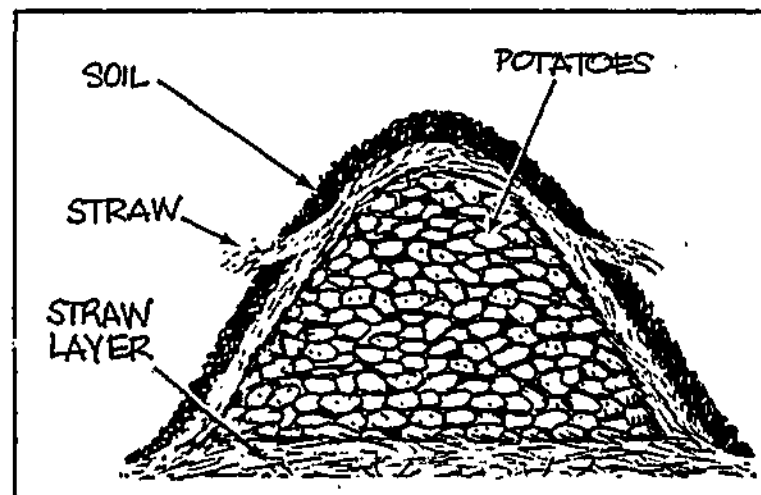

The English clamp also works well with carrots. Carrots are a wee bit different in that they are stored sideways, with the foliage end projecting outward.

ONCE A CLAMP is opened for reaching some stored potatoes or carrots, pains should be taken to seal it up securely to prevent frost damage.

Helen Meier of Sigwalt Street in Rolling Meadows couldn't mail me one of her giant burpless cucumbers so she cut out a long, long piece of a brown paper bag the size of the whopper.

You can imagine my surprise when I opened her letter and 18½ inches of brown paper bag fell out shaped like a cucumber. Helen is one of the most successful organic gardeners in the area. And her giant cucumber, if not a record, certainly a saladful, attests to it.

If you have a whopper, why not drop me a line, too, and tell me about it?

Newlyweds spend 3 weeks in Mex.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Bianchi

Three weeks in Acapulco, Taxco and Mexico City was the honeymoon choice of Edith Halch and Raymond E. Bianchi. The newlyweds, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Halch, Elk Grove Village, and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bianchi, Chicago, are now at home in their Chicago apartment.

Edith, a graduate of Elk Grove High School, is employed in Des Plaines by the Federal Aviation Administration. Ray studies at Mundelein College, Chicago, and is employed as a school custodian in Chicago.

The couple's wedding took place Aug. 2 in Queen of the Rosary Church, Elk Grove Village, with a reception for 300 guests following in the Aerospace Machinists Union Hall in Des Plaines.

Edith chose a nylon and lace gown and a Juliet headpiece to hold her cathedral-length veil. Her flowers were purple-throated white orchids with stephanotis and baby's breath.

HER SISTER, Cynthia, was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were her sister, Ann; the groom's sister, Julie; Sheila Hartman and Brigitte Manske, Chicago; and the bride's cousin, Debbie Lothspeich, Fairfield, N. D. Their floral gowns were in blue and lavender print and they carried baskets of blue-tinted carnations with purple statice and baby's breath.

Four-year-old Rebecca Jessie, Rosemont, flower girl, was also in a blue and lavender print gown, and her basket contained the same flowers as the maids'. Kenneth Leikas, 4, Arlington Heights, was ring bearer. Both Rebecca and Kenneth are cousins of the bride.

Best man was Danny Bianchi, brother of the groom, and ushers were the couple's brothers, Tom Bianchi, Chicago, and Dana Halch, McHenry, and Paul Tracy, Bill Markwell and Tom Gleece, all of Chicago.

Pair living in Arizona

A Palatine couple, Debra A. Szczepaniak and Keith W. Bayer are living in Flagstaff, Ariz., while the bridegroom attends Northern Arizona University.

They were married Aug. 2 in Palatine United Methodist Church at 2:30 in the afternoon and greeted guests that evening at the Millionaires Club in Niles.

Debra, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Szczepaniak, and Keith, son of the Richard F. Bayers, both graduated from Fremd High School. She has been working for Kemper Insurance in Long Grove, and Keith previously attended DePaul University in Greencastle, Ind.

PATRICIA MURPHY of Hoffman Estates was maid of honor and Phil McFarland, Greencastle, best man for the double ring rites.

Bridesmaids included Paulette Bilek, cousin of the bride from Chicago; Delores Meyer, Grayslake; Cathy Doss, Palatine; and Barbara von Frantzius, Arlington Heights, with Laura Szczepaniak, the bride's sister, as junior bridesmaid.

Groomsmen were John Brading, Indianapolis; Martin Blumberg, Great Neck, N. Y.; and Brandon Larsson and John DeMarco, both of Palatine.

Mothers to honor state officer

Dan Rhodes

A formal reception will follow in the Arlington Heights Masonic Temple, 1104 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Dan, a resident of Arlington Heights, has been a member of the chapter for seven years and is a past master counselor of the chapter.

Golden-baked breads your family will treasure

The bread baking revival has taken the country by storm in recent years. Some people get bit by the bug when they try their hand at kneading yeast dough. Others catch the fever when they bite into their very first loaf of basic white bread.

Because the flavor and texture of homemade bread surpass all, family and friends convince the amateur baker to make it again and again. Whether you have mastered the basic techniques of white bread or not, now's the time to stretch your creative talents with these variations.

Surprise Bubble Loaf

|--|---|
| 5½ to 6 cups sifted all-purpose flour | 1½ cups quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked |
| 2 packages dry yeast | 10 dried apricot halves, uncooked |
| ½ cup granulated sugar | 10 pitted prunes, uncooked and cut in half |
| 2 teaspoons salt | 10 walnut halves |
| ½ cup shortening, soft | ½ cup butter or margarine, melted |
| 1½ cups hot water (120 to 130 degrees) | ½ cup firmly packed brown sugar |
| 2 eggs | |

Combine 2 cups flour, yeast, sugar and salt in a large bowl. Add shortening and hot water. Beat at medium speed of electric mixer for 2 minutes, scraping sides of bowl occasionally. Add eggs and 1 cup of the flour. Beat at high speed of electric mixer for 1 minute, scraping sides of bowl occasionally. Stir in oats and enough additional flour to make a soft dough.

Turn out dough on a lightly floured board or canvas. Knead until smooth and elastic, 8 to 10 minutes. Cover with plastic wrap and a towel. Let rest on board 20 minutes.

Punch dough down. Divide into 40 pieces of dough; shape each around 1 apricot, prune or walnut half and seal. Dip each roll into melted butter and then into brown sugar to coat well. Arrange rolls in 2 layers in a greased 10-inch tube pan. Cover; let rise in warm place until nearly double in size, about 45 minutes.

Bake in preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) about 45 minutes. Remove from pan; cool on wire rack. Drizzle with confectioners sugar frosting. Makes 1 large bubble loaf.

Fan Tan Loaf

- | | |
|--|---|
| 2 cakes compressed or 2 packages dry yeast | 5½ to 6 cups sifted all-purpose flour |
| ½ cup lukewarm water | 1 cup wheat germ |
| 2 cups milk, heated | 1½ cups quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked |
| ¼ cup sugar | 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted |
| 1 tablespoon salt | |
| ½ cup butter or margarine | |

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. (Use warm water for dry yeast.) Pour hot milk over sugar, salt and butter. Cool to lukewarm. Stir in 1 cup flour. Add softened yeast, wheat germ and oats. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough.

Turn out dough on lightly floured board or canvas; knead until smooth and elastic, 8 to 10 minutes. Shape dough into a ball; place in greased bowl; brush lightly with melted or liquid shortening. Cover and let rise in warm place until double in size, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; cover and let rest 10 minutes. Divide dough in half. Roll out each half to form a 12x7-inch rectangle. Cut each rectangle in half lengthwise and into eighths crosswise to form sixteen 3½x1½-inch slices. Brush with the melted butter. Stand 16 slices with buttered sides facing the same direction, in each of 2 greased 8½x4½x2½-inch loaf pans. Cover and let rise in warm place until nearly double in size, about 45 minutes. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) about 45 minutes. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks. Makes 2 loaves.

Potato Yeast Rolls

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1 cake compressed or package dry yeast | ¼ cup melted or liquid shortening |
| ¼ cup lukewarm water | 4 to 4½ cups sifted all-purpose flour |
| ¼ cup hot potato water | ¼ cup mashed potatoes |
| ¼ cup sugar | 1 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked |
| 1½ teaspoons salt | |

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. (Use warm water for dry yeast.) Pour hot potato water over sugar, salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm. Stir in 1 cup flour. Add softened yeast and potatoes; mix well. Stir in oats and enough additional flour to make a soft dough.

Turn out on lightly floured board or canvas; knead until smooth and elastic, 8 to 10 minutes. Shape dough into a ball, place in a greased bowl and brush lightly with melted or liquid shortening. Cover and let rise in warm place until double in size, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down. Divide into 24 equal parts. Shape each to form a roll, making an assortment of shapes. Place on greased cookie sheets. Brush with melted or liquid shortening. Cover; let rise in warm place until nearly double in size, about 35 minutes. Bake in preheated hot oven (400 degrees) 15 to 18 minutes. Serve warm. Makes 2 dozen.

Cheesy Casserole Bread

- | | |
|----------------------------------|---|
| 4½ cups sifted all-purpose flour | 2 tablespoons shortening, soft |
| 2 packages dry yeast | 1 egg |
| 3 tablespoons sugar | 1 cup (4-ounce) shredded Cheddar cheese |
| 1 tablespoon salt | 1 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked |
| 1 cup milk | |
| 1 cup water | |

Combine 2 cups flour, yeast, sugar and salt in a large mixing bowl. Heat milk, water and shortening over low heat until warm (110 degrees to 115 degrees). (Shortening does not need to melt.) Add milk mixture to flour mixture. Beat at medium speed of electric mixer for 2 minutes, scraping sides of bowl occasionally. Add egg, cheese and ½ cup flour.

Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping sides of bowl occasionally. Stir in oats and enough additional flour to make a stiff batter. Beat until blended. Cover; let rise in warm place until double in size, about 45 minutes.

Stir batter down. Beat vigorously 30 seconds. Turn into a greased 2 quart casserole. Bake in preheated moderate oven (375 degrees) 50 to 55 minutes. Remove from pan and cool on wire rack. Makes 1 pound loaf.

Citrus Tea Bread

- | | |
|----------------------------------|---|
| 1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour | 1 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked |
| 2 teaspoons baking powder | 1 cup milk |
| 1 teaspoon salt | 2 eggs, beaten |
| 1 teaspoon cinnamon | ½ cup butter or margarine, melted |
| ½ cup firmly packed brown sugar | 3 tablespoons orange juice |
| 1 cup coarsely chopped pecans | |
| 1½ teaspoons grated orange peel | |

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and cinnamon into a large bowl. Stir in brown sugar, pecans, orange peel and oats. Combine milk, eggs and melted butter. Add to dry ingredients. Add orange juice and stir only until dry ingredients are moistened. Spoon batter into 4 greased 10¾-ounce empty soup cans; fill about ¾ full.

Bake in preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) 40 to 45 minutes. Cool on wire rack about 10 minutes. Remove from cans; cool thoroughly. Wrap cooled bread in plastic wrap and store overnight for ease in slicing. Makes 4 small loaves.

NOTE: Bread may be baked in a greased 8½x4½x2½-inch loaf pan in preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) 50 to 55 minutes, if desired.

Oatmeal Molasses Loaf

- | | |
|--|---|
| 2 cakes compressed or packages dry yeast | 4 teaspoons salt |
| ½ cup lukewarm water | ½ cup molasses |
| 1½ cups milk, heated | 7½ to 7¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour |
| 1 cup hot water | 2½ cups quick or old-fashioned oats, uncooked |
| ¼ cup shortening, soft | |

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. (Use warm water for dry yeast.) Pour hot milk and hot water over shortening, salt and molasses in a large bowl. Cool to lukewarm. Stir in 2 cups flour. Add softened yeast. Stir in oats. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff dough.

Turn out dough on a lightly floured board or canvas; knead until smooth and elastic, 8 to 10 minutes. Shape dough into a ball, place in a greased large bowl and brush lightly with melted or liquid shortening. Cover and let rise in warm place until double in size, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; cover and let rest 10 minutes. Generously grease two 9x5x3-inch loaf pans. Sprinkle bottom and sides of each pan with 2 tablespoons oats. Divide dough in half; shape to form 2 loaves. Place in prepared loaf pans. Brush lightly with milk; sprinkle each with 2 tablespoons oats. Cover; let rise until nearly double in size, about 45 minutes. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) 40 to 45 minutes. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks. Makes 2 loaves.

Diets could harm as much as help

by LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
(First of six parts)

Does that old tired feeling keep you from really enjoying life because you lack energy? Many people have this problem because they don't understand metabolism, the basis for healthy eating and living patterns.

Everyone talks about diets. Book after book is written on what you should eat. What is missing is factual information about what the body does with food after you eat it.

Doctors call the study of what the body does with foods metabolism. Metabolism is all about how the body changes, literally by using energy and chemicals from food to build body structures.

METABOLISM involves one of the most fascinating processes of nature — the process in which the steak you eat is converted into simple chemicals within the cells. Part of the food can be used to release energy for body functions. Most of it is not used for physical work. A lot of the energy in your foot will be used to build new compounds and, more important, to move uncountable numbers of chemicals into and out of your active cells.

The most active cells are not fat cells, incidentally. Every cell in your body is a chemical processing plant. There is a processing unit to tear down chemicals and another unit to assemble new compounds, such as proteins, for enzymes and hormones. Chemicals must be carried into the cell and the end products transported out of the cell. This constant massive migration requires energy.

ENERGY is also needed to build new body structures, the process that keeps you young. The steak you eat contains proteins made up of amino acids, the building blocks used by the body to manufacture new proteins. It also takes energy to hook one amino acid unit to another, much as heat energy is used to weld two pieces of metal together. Food, then must provide the building blocks for new body structures, as well as the energy to do the building. When food is not used for energy or as building blocks it is converted to a storage form for future use. A small amount is stored as animal starch, called "Glycogen," and the rest as fat.

The body makes no distinction as to whether the food is fat, carbohydrate, protein, or even alcohol. If there are excess food products available after the small amount of glycogen is formed, they will all be converted to fat. So protein you don't need for building or energy is just another way of increasing your fat deposits. Just as you can use wood, coal, gas or electricity to produce heat, the body can use fats, carbohydrates, or proteins to produce energy. When you see how the body does this you can begin to understand — and make some value judgments about — some diet fads.

IF YOU ARE overweight you need to know just what your body does with the food you eat. This is the only way you can understand what you need to do about your eating habits. It seems like almost everyone is on a diet. If you are one of those people, you may be sapping your energy. What's worse, the diet, if successful, may make it more difficult for you to avoid getting fat in the future.

The public has been brainwashed for years to diet to lose weight, or to "burn off those calories" with exercise. If you are like many thousands of moderately overweight people, you may not need to do either. And doing it may actually be dangerous. Rather than talk about treating the symptoms of being "overweight," I would like to explain the most common cause of obesity in our society and what to do about it. The result will give you a lot more energy, and you will feel better without going on a highly restricted diet that may harm you. The facts have been largely ignored because of the overemphasis on semistarvation diets and on the number of calories used in specific physical activities. That is only part of the story. The rest of the story is what happens while you are resting. I am not proposing that calories don't count.

A HOST OF mistaken ideas are accepted by the public daily because they do not understand what the body does with food. Many swallow various food preparations and supplements in the hopes that these will impart a greater level of health or energy.

Energy can be improved by improving your diet, if it needs improving. Our sense of energy and well-being is dependent on the release of energy within the cells. This requires not only the right food elements, but also adequate delivery of oxygen to the cells to accomplish the important metabolic changes. Individuals with poor circulation, lung disease, or anemia severe enough to limit the oxygen delivery, all experience fatigue. All these conditions can hinder the cells from getting the vital chemicals from the food and the oxygen needed to release food energy.

Symptomatic of the general lack of understanding about food and what the body does with it is the habit of saying that a substance is bad because "it's chemical." No foods, additives, minerals, or other substances are good or bad simply because they are chemicals. Our entire body is chemical. To stop eating because something is chemical is to stop eating entirely.

Help for bad bread

Many novice bread bakers become discouraged after only one or two unsuccessful tries. All too often they don't know what they are doing wrong, and therefore, make the same mistakes with less-than-perfect quality as a result.

Here are some common reasons for poor quality in yeast breads as suggested by the Cooperative Extension Office:

Cracks in the crust. If this is a problem, the dough might have been too stiff or it did not raise enough before baking.

The oven might have been too hot at first, the pan could have been too shallow or placed too close to another pan in the oven. And if the bread cooled in a draft, cracks might result even if the bread was made and baked properly.

Crust too thick. Too much salt might be the reason. The oven might not have been hot enough, or the bread baked too long. Some people brush the top of the shaped loaf with fat to help prevent a thick crust.

Soggy texture and grain. There might not have been enough flour or there might have been too much liquid in the batter. A more common reason is that the bread was not baked long enough.

Crumby and dry texture and grain. There could have been too much flour in the batter or the dough raised too much before the bread was baked.

Coarse grain. Many reasons could account for this problem, also. There might have been too little flour or the dough raised too long in the pans.

The dough might have also gotten too warm during the rising period or it was not thoroughly kneaded. And if those reasons aren't the right ones, the baking pan could have been too large for the amount of dough or the oven was not hot enough at first.

Research indicates new diet plan

The eternal problem of dieting someday could be solved — maybe sooner than we think. According to the Cooperative Extension Service, some encouraging results on a new approach to the study of obesity were recently reported by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture scientists.

The new diet plan calls for alternating periods of a four day restricted diet with 16 days of a normal diet.

The study was conducted by using laboratory rats to duplicate the tendency of people to gain additional weight after a strict diet. This type of repeated periods of dieting may hold promise for weight watchers.

RESEARCHERS at the USDA's Agriculture Research Service found that after the third restricted diet the rats' bodies remained at lower weights even after they resumed eating. In earlier research on humans, it was discovered that the body adapts to periodic semi-starvation by utilizing stored fat more efficiently.

Biscuits look like yeast rolls

There are lots of ways to spruce up a plain meal. The Milk Foundation has come up with a recipe for hot homemade rolls.

These sesame biscuits are made like the classic cloverleaf yeast rolls. And even novice bakers should find biscuits easy to master with a minimum of effort.

The tender dough calls for light, easy handling — kneading biscuit dough is not quite like kneading a yeast dough. The dough should be folded and turned over very gently eight or 10 times using the palm of the hand.

SESAME BISCUITS

- 1/2 cup butter
- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- 1 tablespoon toasted sesame seeds
- Dash salt
- 3 cups sifted flour
- 1 tablespoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon onion salt
- 1/2 cup soft shortening

SESAME BISCUITS

- 1 tablespoon snipped chives
- 1 cup milk
- Melt butter in small saucepan; stir in garlic, sesame seeds and dash salt. Set aside.
- Sift together flour, baking powder

Recipes for seafood, hushpuppies

We delight in bringing creamy crab and shrimp dishes to the table and here are two variations of basic recipes which you'll find are quick and easy.

Thaw a 6-ounce package of frozen crab meat and drain in a colander. Put a dozen frozen shrimp into boiling salted water and when they return to boil, cook just 1 minute, then plunge into cold water.

In a small skillet melt a tablespoon of butter and in it saute gently thin slices of half a green sweet pepper. In a large skillet melt 2 tablespoons of butter and blend with 2 tablespoons shallow baking pan, cut side up.

Cook frozen spinach (you'll need 3/4 cup chopped and drained). Mix 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion, 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley, 2 tablespoons soft margarine, and spinach. Salt and pepper to taste and add a dash or two of paprika. Spread this mixture evenly over the tomatoes. Top with 2 tablespoons bread crumbs and bake 15 minutes in a 375 oven. Serves 4 to 6.

IN ANSWER to a number of queries, here's a recipe for old-fashioned North Carolina hush puppies. Mix 2 cups white corn meal, scant 1/2 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/8 teaspoon black pepper, 1 tablespoon flour, and 1 teaspoon baking powder in a large bowl.

Add 3 tablespoons finely chopped onion, 1 cup buttermilk, 1 well beaten egg and 2 dashes of pepper sauce. Blend mixture well. In a large iron skillet heat deep fat until drop of water sizzles (400 degrees if you use a thermometer). Make a rounded ball of batter on a teaspoon and drop into hot fat. Hush puppies will brown and puff in a minute or two. Turn with fork and brown other side, then remove to drain on paper towel. Place on cookie sheet and cover with another paper towel to keep warm in oven until all are cooked and you're ready to serve. Yields 20 to 24 hush puppies.

and salts. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse corn meal. Stir in chives. Stir in milk with fork to make a soft but not sticky dough. Turn out on floured cloth or board and knead gently 8 or 10 times.

Have ready an ungreased muffin pan large enough to make 12 muffins. Roll dough out to 6 by 12-inch rectangle. Divide into 4 equal sections then cut each into 9 small sections. Roll each small piece of dough into a ball. Using a long tined fork, dip each ball into butter mixture. Place three balls in each muffin cup. Spoon any remaining butter over rolls. Bake in preheated 450-degree oven 15 to 18 minutes, until lightly browned. Yield: 12 biscuits.

Quality cue

The traditional warning against refreezing frozen food that has thawed is based on deterioration in quality, not health safety, says Walter MacInn, acting director of Rutgers University's food science department.

Thawed foods that look and smell all right can be refrozen safely, he said, but they may not taste as good as the same thing heated or cooked immediately after thawing.

flour, then stir in slowly 1 cup whole milk.

Cook and stir over low heat until sauce is smooth and thickened. Season with 1/4 teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper. Add the sauteed green peppers, drained crab meat and the shrimp. Heat thoroughly but don't boil. Stir in 1/2 cup grated parmesan cheese and serve on toast points. This makes 2 generous dinner servings or 4 smaller luncheon portions served in patty shells.

AN INTERESTING variation is called Crab Urn. Proceed as above except leave out the sliced green pepper and add a 3-ounce jar of drained whole mushrooms when crab and shrimp are mixed with cream sauce.

For a different vegetable combination to serve with this or any fish course, try tomatoes Rockefeller. Wash and core 3 large ripe tomatoes. Cut in half. Place the tomatoes in a

Herald food price survey

Pork prices continued to climb in the last month, the Herald Monday price survey of five area chains showed. The increase might be due to an estimated 20 per cent decrease in pork production from last year, as reported by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's September Food Marketing Alert.

Beef maintained its August level, but eggs gradually crept up in price by more than 10 cents a dozen over last month. Again, this increase might be attributed to a six per cent decrease in production from last year, reported by the USDA.

At Jewel pork was up 30 cents and eggs up 10 cents over last month. Poultry and beef held steady. Good buys were found in the fresh fruits and vegetables section with cabbage only 10 cents a pound and apples and pears priced in the 35-cent bracket.

Milk rose 11 cents and eggs increased 13 cents from last month at the National Food Store. But potatoes were down 30 cents in the same time period. Sugar and coffee continued to climb in price. Generally National's prices were comparable to other stores with no exceptionally high or low prices noted for the items surveyed.

At Butera beef showed marked decreases in price from last month with ground beef down about 10 cents and round steak down more than 40 cents. However, poultry and pork both increased and eggs went up 17 cents from August. Pears were a good buy at Butera in comparison with the other stores surveyed.

The A&P Food Store showed increases in poultry and pork prices over last month but other meat prices held steady. Eggs were up only 6 cents from August and other dairy prices held steady. Cabbage and potatoes were good buys, with cabbage priced at 10 cents a pound. Potatoes, at 79 cents for five pounds, dropped 50 cents from last month and were lowest of the stores surveyed.

Beef held steady at Treasure Island with pork and poultry showing the same upward swing in price as the other stores surveyed. Sugar was up 22 cents per five pounds over August prices and was the highest sugar price noted in the survey.

Cheese bread in casserole dish

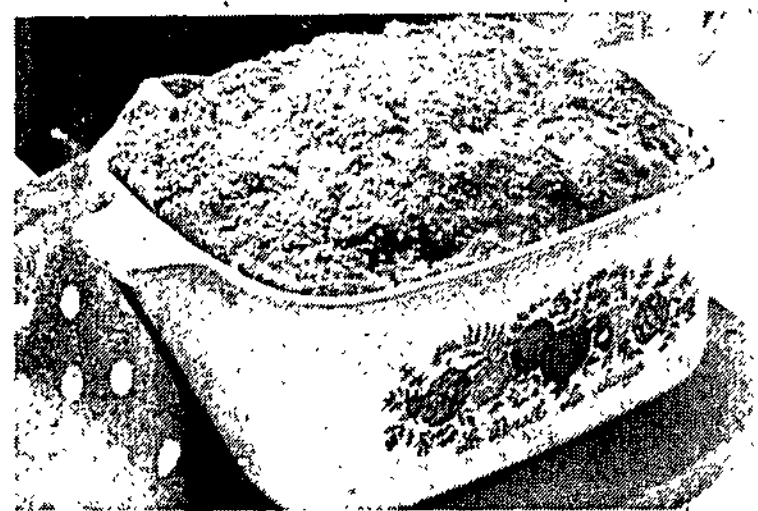

Not everyone has the time to make yeast bread. So here's a recipe from Corning Glass for short-order cheese bread.

CHEESE BREAD

¾ cups of package
butter/milk biscuit mix 1¼ cups shredded natural sharp cheddar cheese

1 egg beaten
1¼ cups milk
½ teaspoon dry mustard
Sesame, poppy or caraway seed
Preheat oven to 325 degrees.
Grease, generously, a 1½-quart baking dish (7 by 5½ by 3 inches). In large mixing bowl, mix all ingredients just to blend. Beat vigorously for one minute. Pour into prepared pan. Sprinkle top with sesame, poppy or caraway seed. Bake for 55 to 60 minutes. Cool slightly before slicing. Makes one loaf.

CHEESE BREAD

Freezing the garden

Most fresh garden vegetables freeze well. They will keep easily for eight months to a year at zero degrees.

Only green peppers and tomatoes need not be blanched or sealed before freezing. Unblanched vegetables continue to mature while frozen, and will taste old when they finally are served.

Blanching vegetables brings out their color. It also makes them more palatable and easier to pack.

An electric deep-fat fryer can double as a vegetable blancher. Allow one gallon of water per pound of vegetable, and have the water at a full, rolling boil before adding the food. Drain and cool it immediately in very cold water or ice water to prevent cooking.

Medical livestock

A steer or hog represents more than food. In addition, livestock are a source of medicines and other health aides.

One medicine is insulin, needed by many diabetics to regulate their blood sugar level. It takes 6,300 cattle to yield one pound of insulin.

Addison's disease, asthma, whooping cough, anemia and their blood ailments, certain mental disorders, rheumatoid arthritis, rheumatic fever and osteoporosis are some of the other diseases which have been treated with medicines obtained from livestock.

Lemon adds tang to pork

by LOIS SEILER

Because everyone seems to enjoy it, Baked Pork Chops is one of Jan Kallberg's favorite recipes to prepare for family and guests. According to Jan, who lives in Arlington Heights, it's not elegant, but is very tasty and easy to prepare.

She always chooses extra thick chops, and there is no browning involved. A sprinkling of brown sugar on top of each chop imparts an appealing brown color, while lemon slices add an unusual flavor. Baked in a mixture of catsup and water, the chops absorb a mild barbecue-like flavor.

Another of her specialties is a Broiled Top Round. The meat is marinated for a minimum of three days or as long as five in a mixture of soy sauce and Worcestershire sauce. It must be grilled outdoors for maximum flavor and is sliced thin on the diagonal to serve. Jan assures readers she has never been disappointed in the results, and that the meat is always tender.

BECAUSE JAN believes it is essential that her sons learn to cook, either Ken, 20, Keith, 17, or Bruce, 11, preside at the barbecue for this dinner. The boys and their dad, Bob, like the top round medium-rare.

It's essential to keep a cookie tin well-stocked for three boys with heartly appetites. Their favorite is a recipe appropriately named World's Best Sugar Cookies. For years, Jan has considered these cookies a mainstay for her sons' lunches and after school snacks. Rich and crispy, they keep well or may be frozen, if desired.

Active in the Women's Fellowship at Northwest Covenant Church, Jan is also a member of Navigators Bible Study Group and belongs to Allied Arts in Arlington Heights.

BAKED PORK CHOPS

- 4 pork chops, 1 1/2" to 2 inches thick
- 4 lemon slices, 1/4 inch thick
- Brown sugar
- 1 cup catsup
- 1 cup water

Place pork chops in baking pan. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place lemon slice on each chop and sprinkle each with one teaspoon brown sugar.

Mix catsup and water together and pour over chops until barely covered. Bake, uncovered, at 300 degrees for 2 1/2 hours or until tender. Will hold longer, if dinner is delayed. Serves 4.

Broiled Top Round

- 1 2-inch piece of top round steak
- 1 bottle soy sauce
- 1/2 cup Worcestershire sauce

Pierce meat with a fork and place in a glass bowl. Sprinkle sauces over meat, cover and place in refrigerator for 3 to 5 days. Pierce meat and turn each day.

Broil on outdoor grill over gray coals 10 to 15 minutes per side for medium-rare, longer for medium and well-done. Slice thin on the diagonal to serve.

WORLD'S BEST SUGAR COOKIES

- 1 cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup powdered sugar
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 1 cup vegetable oil
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 5 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon cream of tartar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt

Cream together the butter and sugars. Beat well. Add oil, eggs and vanilla. Combine flour with remaining ingredients and beat into batter. Mix well.

Roll into balls the size of a large walnut, or the size you desire. Press with bottom of a glass which has been dipped in granulated sugar. (Nutmeg may be added to the sugar, if desired.)

Bake on an ungreased cookie sheet at 350 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes. Yield: approximately 6 to 7 dozen cookies. Store in covered tin, or freeze, if desired.

LEMON SLICES are placed on top of Jan Kallberg's Baked Pork Chops to add an unusual flavor. She serves the chops garnished with parsley.

Indian bread now popular

by AILEEN CLAIRE

One of the latest waves of foreign food restaurants introduces the cooking of India, Pakistan and Bangladesh. And rice is not the only staple the curious diner finds to his liking on their menus. There is a wide range of dishes including those made with lentils, chicken, lamb, curry, fruits and vegetables.

Indian cooking, for example, is very popular with those who lean toward vegetarianism. There is a broad range of dishes in that country's cuisine that do not contain meat because of religious reasons.

One of the delights of dining on foods from these Eastern lands is the bread. Here is one popular pan fried Indian bread called chapatti you'll find difficult to stop eating.

CHAPATTI

(Pan Fried Indian Bread)

- 2 cups unsifted whole wheat flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons peanut oil
- 3/4 cup water

Peanut oil
Combine flour, salt, 2 tablespoons peanut oil and enough water to make a workable dough. On lightly floured board knead dough until smooth, about 5 minutes. Cover with plastic wrap; let stand 1 hour.

Break off about 2 tablespoons dough. Roll to a 6-inch round on a lightly floured board. Flip gently back and forth several times between palms of hands.

Cook in an unrolled, hot, small skillet or crepe pan until lightly browned, about 30 seconds. Flip bread over; cook 15 seconds. Flip over again; cook until evenly puffed and cooked through, pressing dough down often with heavy cloth.

Remove from pan; brush lightly with peanut oil. Repeat with remaining dough. Serve immediately. Makes 18.

Rally at Dist. 62 parking lot

Teachers cheer leaders in pay talks

by JUDY JOBBITT

The atmosphere was like a high school pep rally Wednesday night when Des Plaines Dist. 62 teachers cheered their negotiators on to a speedy settlement in contract talks.

More than 200 teachers rallied in the administration center's parking lot to show support for the union team while negotiations were taking place inside the building.

Speakers grabbed for the megaphone to give encouraging words to the crowd and buttons with sayings of "We Support Our Leaders" and "I Love Our Team" were pinned to the teachers' collars.

A SIGN STATING "Good Faith Negotiations Now" covered the door leading into the building, with another sign stating "We Support You All the Way" plastered across one wall of the center.

As members of the teachers' negotiating team drove into the parking lot, loud cheers and chants rose from the crowd. The administration negotiators, except for board member James Blue, arrived at the rear of the building and entered a side door escaping the notice of teachers.

The main issue being discussed among the teachers was the right to negotiate working conditions, such as class size, planning time, a reduction-in-force clause and personal leave days. Dennis Anderson, teachers' union president, said the board earlier said these are "administrative prerogatives" although the board has presented some proposals on these topics.

"We don't want to feel we have to threaten strike, but we feel we have the right to negotiate school conditions," said Cheryl Tatcher, a teacher at North School. She said she was at the rally because "the board doesn't feel we're behind our negotiators."

Burglars get $100 at Shell car wash

Burglars stole $100 after entering a storage room at the Shell gas station-car wash, 513 River Rd., Des Plaines police said Wednesday.

The money was taken from a cash drawer late Tuesday, police said.

She said actions such as the rally were effective two years ago when negotiations were not settled until the teachers voted to strike.

"If we don't show support for the team, the school board won't talk," said Harold Ray, teacher at Chippewa Junior High School. "Two years ago, they didn't move until we moved. We're showing solidarity among ourselves."

"WE HAVE SHOWN them numbers," said Ray Davis of Algonquin Junior High School. "This is our spring training ground. We're getting in shape for the rest of the season."

After the speeches died down, the teachers joined in a circle chanting "solidarity forever, for the group will make us strong." Most of the teachers stayed until the negotiations session broke at 9 p.m. for both sides to caucus.

Anderson came out during the break to tell the crowd the board presented alternative proposals for a gifted child study committee, discipline committee and transfer and promotion policy. He said board members did not recognize the crowd, but the board's professional negotiator, Wesley Wildman, denied he said the teachers' negotiators did not have the teachers' support.

The teachers broke to go home after a final cheer for the negotiating team. As they dragged home after the night's rally, words of support and promises to return if the board does not negotiate "right" were heard.

Strikers violate directive: Centel

Attorneys for the Central Telephone Co. Wednesday charged that striking members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 336, have violated a Circuit Court restraining order and should be held in contempt of court.

Martin Brown, a company spokesman, said Circuit Court Judge Samuel B. Epstein has scheduled a hearing for Sept. 19 and ordered a number of union officials to appear to answer the charges.

Brown said the judge's action stems from charges made by the company the union has been involved in vandalism of company property.

Sharon Romano, a union steward, said the union had no comment about the company's allegations or the hearing.

MORE THAN 900 employees have been on strike since July 1. Although a number of bargaining sessions have been held, representatives for the two sides have said no progress has been made.

Since the strike began, several incidents of vandalism to Central Telephone Co. property have been reported. Company officials have reported numerous cables have been cut, knocking out phone service to hundreds of customers, and company vehicle tires have been slashed.

Union officials have denied any involvement in the vandalism, and in several instances they have disputed company reports of property damage.

Epstein issued a temporary restraining order against the union last month, which requires the union to adhere to certain procedures when picketing company facilities.

EPSTEIN EXTENDED the order on Tuesday until Sept. 30. The restraining order limits the number of pickets the union may have at any one time. The company had asked for the order, charging picketers were harassing management employees who are crossing picket lines to keep the company in operation. The judge has warned both sides to refrain from violent acts.

In addition to the cable cuts and tire slashings, company officials also have reported vandalism to pay phones in the area. The company provides service to about 70,000 customers in Des Plaines, Park Ridge and a portion of Mount Prospect.

Negotiations reportedly have been stalled over disagreements in proposed changes in work rules. About 30 issues remain unresolved.

BUTTONS WERE WORN and cheers were heard supporting the Des Plaines Dist. 62 teachers' negotiating team Wednesday when the teachers rallied in the administration center's parking lot during a negotiations session. Berrita Galtner and Maggie Dunning were among the crowd of more than 200 teachers.

Two banks to cash teachers' checks

by DOROTHY OLIVER

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 teachers will be able to cash the special security notes being issued by the district at two banks Friday.

Mount Prospect State Bank, which is issuing the notes instead of regular paychecks, is working out an arrangement so teachers who are customers of the Bank of Elk Grove can cash the notes at that bank.

Dist. 59 teachers will be paid through teachers' orders, a type of promissory note, for six pay periods, beginning Friday. The Dist. 59 board approved issuing $1.5 million in teachers' orders to pay salaries because of an anticipated $1.5 million budget deficit this year.

James Lancaster, president of the Bank of Elk Grove, said Wednesday he has received a "verbal commitment" from Mount Prospect State Bank officials that they would be able to cash the notes.

"WE WILL ONLY be able to handle items on behalf of the customers of our bank," Lancaster said. "I would guess that right now we have in the neighborhood of 100 teachers with accounts here."

Richard Padula, president of Mount Prospect State Bank, said talks with Lancaster should be completed by Thursday so the Bank of Elk Grove can process the teachers' orders. Padula said the orders are not handled like regular paychecks by banks and therefore cannot be cashed at every bank.

"This is script in effect," Padula said. "The bank clearing system that is used for checks is not available for teachers' orders." Padula said the legal procedure for cashing the orders is to take them to the bank which originally issued them. He said special arrangements with the Bank of Elk Grove will be made, but no other bank has contacted him to become a collection point.

Probe of RTA subsidies urged

by ANNE SLAVICEK

The seven commuter railroads serving the Chicago metropolitan area urged the federal government Wednesday to investigate the Regional Transportation Authority's subsidy policies.

The railroads asked the U.S. Urban Mass Transportation Administration to "immediately commence a review of the RTA's allocations of funds among types of carriers and portions of the RTA's six-county region."

The request was contained in a letter to the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission, which gave its approval Wednesday to an RTA request for $50.5 million in operating subsidies for local transit lines.

The approval came after the commission's planning committee agreed that the RTA should be required to provide subsidies "on an equitable basis" to transit systems throughout the Chicago area.

THE RTA has been criticized by suburban officials for giving the bulk of its subsidies to the Chicago Transit Authority.

The committee also required the RTA to inform NIPC of its subsidy policies and the amounts of any subsidies it provides to transit systems. NIPC staff members had urged the two requirements to ensure "consistency with regional planning objectives."

The letter from the railroads, signed by D. H. King, vice president of Burlington Northern Inc., also asked the federal government to:

- Require that subsidies after July 1, 1976 be weighted in favor of the commuter railroads to make up for the "inequitable" allocation of funds during the last two years.

- Examine RTA subsidy policies to determine if they are consistent with federal policy and federal subsidies to the railroads for commuter cars and locomotives.

- Require the RTA to release promptly its railroad subsidy plan for the current fiscal year.

The letter dated Wednesday, will be forwarded to the federal mass transportation administration along with comments from suburban officials urging changes in RTA subsidy policies to give more funds to the suburbs.

The RTA will not provide funds to meet all the operating deficits of mass transit lines unless the lines can pay at least 65 per cent of their expenses through fares. Commuter railroads are reimbursed by the RTA for 75 per cent of their operating deficits.

RTA Chairman Milton Pikarsky, who is also a member of NIPC, succeeded Wednesday in getting the planning committee to drop a section of its report to the federal agency that was critical of current RTA spending policies.

The section said in part:

"The commission is concerned with the issue of equitable funding levels and potential effects on regional planning objectives as well as the concerns expressed by many local governments of the potentially negative consequences resulting from the present RTA policy."

PIKARSKY said the $50.5 million is only one-third of the total subsidies the RTA will hand out to bus, rail and rapid transit lines during fiscal 1976.

The money is sought specifically for subsidies to bus lines, including the Chicago Transit Authority and the North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTAN).

NORTAN Executive Director Joseph DiJohn said the district would endorse the RTA fund request if the RTA would promise to meet 100 per cent of NORTAN's deficits.

Pikarsky refused to make such a promise at the meeting. He said NORTAN would be foolish to oppose the application for federal grants for its own subsidies.

The other railroads joining in the letter were the Milwaukee Road, the Chicago and North Western Ry., the Illinois Central-Gulf R.R., the Norfolk and Western Ry., The Rock Island Line and the Chicago South Shore and South Bend R.R.

Green thumb —huge harvest

The end of summer starts the traditional harvest season and all the garden work of the past three months pays off in ripe tomatoes, beans and other vegetables.

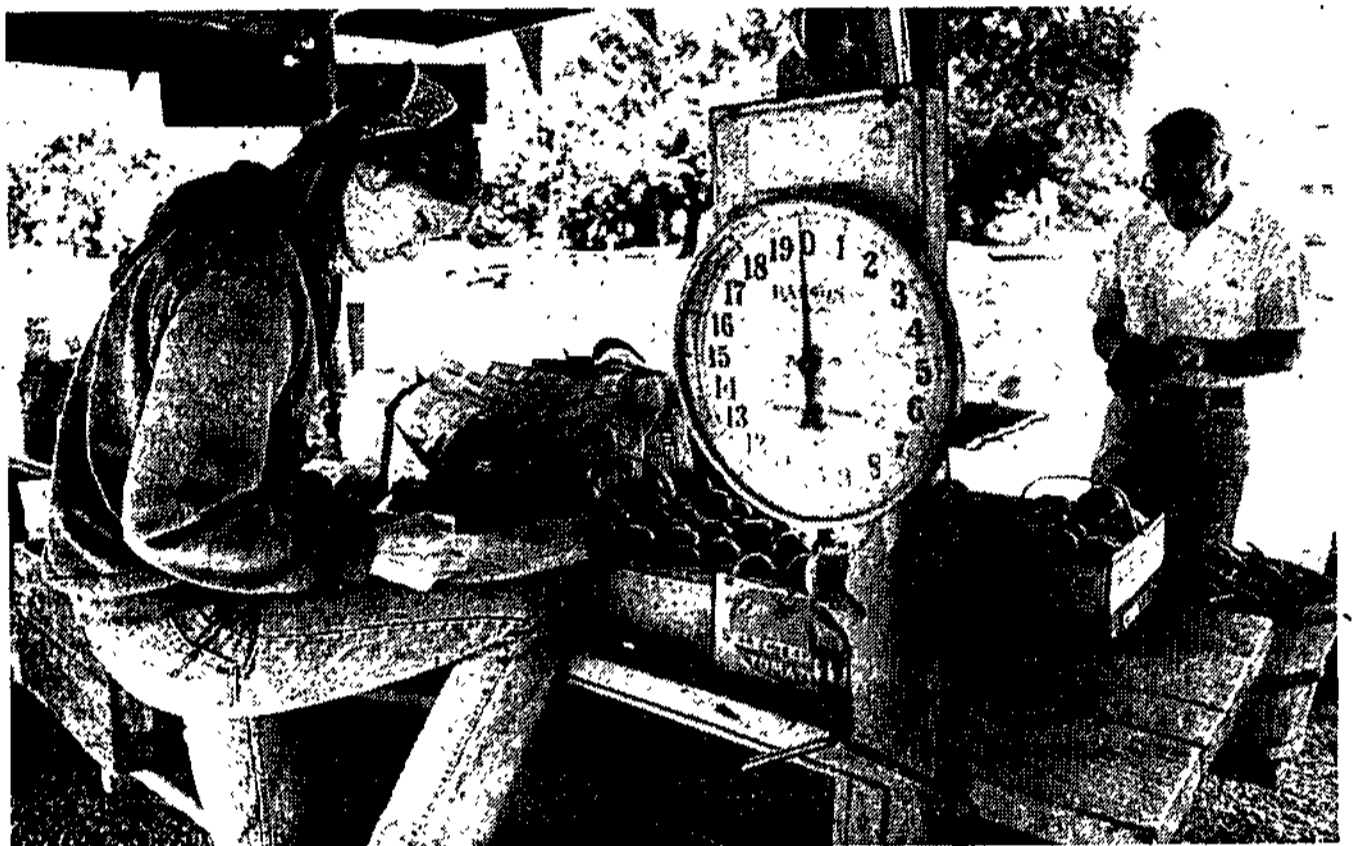

Jane Koeppen, 18, a graduate of Wheeling High School, developed a green thumb this summer working at a vegetable stand along Dundee Road in Buffalo Grove, which is now selling home grown vegetables to passing motorists.

Jane won't be working much longer at the vegetable stand, however, for when the vegetables are gone she plans to enroll in Harper College where she will take up secretarial courses.

Styling Studio for men creates a stir

Though he works with water and scissors instead of paintbrushes and oils, John Pfeifer, owner of El Cid Hairstyling, 81½ Broadway Ave., Des Plaines, considers the work he does an art. Like any other art, it has required a good deal of study and hard work, and a willingness to change his style to keep up with the times.

The idea of the neighborhood barber has changed over the years. "I don't cut hair to fit just a person's face, but to fit his whole structure," says Pfeifer, who, after 15 years of hair-cutting, teaching, study and competition is something of an expert. However, for the staff at El Cid, which includes, most recently Sandy Schuster, a female stylist, the individual is the key. Pfeifer, Sandy and Art Munzer who are all progressive and qualified in hairstyling, take the customer's preference into account when determining a hairstyle for him, whenever that preference is feasible.

When a man walks in El Cid, I can pretty much determine what style I would like for him," Pfeifer adds. He may say "I want a haircut like John Denver, or Tony Orlando." What he doesn't realize is that particular style might not be good for his facial structure, says Pfeifer. "In fact his hair might not be of the proper texture."

Hairstyling as opposed to "getting a haircut" has caught on, the staff believes, because of a recent emphasis in society on the whole concept of good, easy grooming for men and women. "It's like the difference between buying a suit off the rack or having it tailored for you. Practically no one is an average size, and most men are willing to take an investment like a good suit be tailored just for them," says Pfeifer. A hairstyle, unlike a suit, he adds, is something a person wears every day, for every occasion.

When a customer enters El Cid's Spanish style interior, his hair is washed even before a style is discussed. "It's absolutely essential," says Pfeifer. "The days of cutting a soiled head of hair are gone." Shampooing hair allows stylists at El Cid to read the growth pattern of the hair, find out where cowlicks lie, and make sure that the hairstyle will be one the customer will be able to maintain easily at home. "It used to be the practice to cut hair as it was," he adds, "but men were finding that, though the haircut looked good in the shop, when it was washed at home, it stood up, stuck out or wouldn't lie correctly."

Pfeifer recommends an acid-balanced shampoo to his clients, but insists that it be an organic variety, which the shop can supply. "The commercial brands may advertise PH balance, but the ingredients are not natural, so it does nothing for the hair. A good acid balanced shampoo is gentle and leaves the hair, after washing, in its natural state."

Pfeifer dispels the old myth that too much washing makes for early baldness. Baldness may result from too much washing with a harsh shampoo, but a natural shampoo can be used as often as the individual desires. On an active day, Pfeifer, who lives with his wife and son in Mt. Prospect, might wash his own hair three times.

Short styles are returning, Pfeifer says, because they require less care. "We used to always overdo everything," he says, "from the greasy, lacquered look to dry, flyaway styles. The happy medium doesn't suffocate the scalp, and is easy to care for."

The staff at El Cid is now equipped to cut and style women's hair also. Women, Pfeifer believes, are becoming more active and just don't want to spend long hours at home or in a beauty parlor trying to achieve an artificial style. "They want a style they can wash and dry in fifteen minutes, and be out on the tennis courts," he believes.

Total hair maintenance is also available at El Cid, in the form of permanent body waving, hair straightening, coloring and hairpieces.

El Cid is also introducing body waving for men. Pfeifer says that more and more men are asking for this service. It enables a man to wear longer styles without style collapse or constant grooming. Hair has more body and is easy to maintain. It gives thin or thinning hair more coverage and a more natural look.

With a permanent body wave a man is no longer limited to one certain style. By the nature of his hair, he can have any degree of wave he wants, even a very curly look.

The service is simple, not frilly but thorough. Five years at the same location and customers who keep coming back attest to the fact.

Behrel 'lukewarm' to Blase plan

Mayor Herbert H. Behrel said Wednesday he has given a "lukewarm" reception to a proposal by Niles Village Pres. Nicholas Blase to annex portions of unincorporated Maine Township into the cities of Niles and Park Ridge.

Behrel, during his regular weekly press conference, said he had a preliminary meeting with Blase Monday to discuss the annexation proposal.

Blase told The Herald this week he is attempting to renew interest in an annexation drive of the large unincorporated area in east Maine Township. More than 30,000 persons now live in the area.

BEHREL SAID HE has asked Michael Richardson, city director of planning and zoning, to review Blase's proposal to determine whether the move would be good for the city.

Blase said he is pushing the annexation proposal because county officials exert little control over the maintenance and construction of property in unincorporated areas. If these areas begin to deteriorate, it may have a bad effect on surrounding communities, he said.

Behrel noted a similar effort was initiated six years ago, and residents of the area then opposed the move because it would have caused an increase in taxes.

"I think this would be of great benefit for those people, but it would be difficult to implement," Behrel said.

Behrel said because of the area's size, residents would have to sign a petition requesting annexation. The major portion of the unincorporated area is bounded by Ballard Road, Greenwood Avenue, Central Road and the Tri-State Tollway.

THE MAYOR explained the earlier proposal called for Des Plaines to annex all the property west of Dee Road or west of the line which would be Dee Road if extended.

Behrel said Niles Village Mgr. Kenneth Shields has been asked to prepare a proposed annexation map.

He said Richardson will review the proposal when it is completed and make a recommendation for city action at that time.

The mayor said the city would benefit from a variety of tax revenues, including increased shares of state sales and motor fuel taxes and federal revenue-sharing funds. Those revenues are allocated on a per capita basis.

Behrel added no timetable has been established for additional meetings on the annexation proposal.

West side underpass study goes on; more facts sought

The Des Plaines City Council's streets and traffic committee will continue to study a proposal to construct an underpass on the west side of the city before a final recommendation for action is made.

Ald. Richard Ward, 8th, chairman of the committee, said he wants additional information regarding traffic flow along Algonquin Road and Oakton Street before making a final decision.

Although Ward favors construction of the underpass at Oakton Street and the Chicago and North Western Ry. outer belt tracks, other city officials prefer the Algonquin Road location because there is more land available there for the project.

WARD SAID MORE information is needed before the decision can be made on the location of the project.

He also indicated the committee has asked the city engineering department for cost estimates on the realignment of Northwest Highway S-curve. City officials have been working with representatives of the Illinois Department of Transportation to plan the project which is scheduled to begin in 1977.

Preliminary estimates for the project are in the range of $5 million. Most of the cost will be paid by the state but the city may have to pay any amount over $5 million. Ward explained he wants a more precise cost estimate before making a final recommendation.

Colitz demanded Wickes pay $50,000: attorney

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

A former official of the County Zoning Board told a Wickes Inc. representative it would cost the firm "50 big ones — $50,000" in bribes to get zoning for a furniture store in Wheeling, an assistant U.S. attorney said Wednesday.

The statement came at the beginning of the extortion trial of Ira Colitz, a former member of the County Zoning Board, and Nicholas Phillips, a land planner for the board.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Steven Kadison said during opening comments in the Phillips-Colitz trial that Colitz came up with the price tag in late 1971. A month earlier Wickes consultant Edward S. Sheldon met Colitz at a cocktail party, Kadison said, and complained about delays in obtaining zoning for the Wheeling store.

"COLITZ TOLD him that 'the Greek runs Wheeling — James Stavros. Let me check around.'"

Edward Sheldon, the architect of Wickes furniture warehouse plans in the Chicago area, will be the first government witness when testimony in the trial begins at 9:30 a.m. today before U.S. District Court Judge Prentice Marshall in Chicago.

Colitz and Phillips are charged with conspiracy and with extorting $50,000 from Wickes to influence village zoning. Stavros is serving a federal prison term in connection with other Wheeling zoning shakedowns.

The payoff was arranged by Colitz and Willard Brown Jr. of Palatine, a senior vice president of Arthur Rubloff & Co. in December 1971, Kadison said, after two applications for zoning by Wickes were denied by village officials. Brown has received immunity from prosecution to testify in the trial.

THE RUBLOFF FIRM was hired by Wickes to purchase property for furniture warehouse stores in Wheeling, Itasca and Harvey.

Kadison told the court that Wickes financed the payoff with a $50,000 check on Dec. 30, 1971; that Brown exchanged the Wickes check for a check from the Rubloff firm and then obtained $50,000 in cash from the Harris Bank for the payoff.

The money was delivered to Phillips in a cocktail lounge at the Lake Shore Holiday Inn in Chicago about 3 p.m. Dec. 30, 1971, Kadison said.

Details of the payoff meeting were revealed Wednesday during a pretrial hearing on a motion to dismiss a photographic identification by Brown of Phillips as the payoff bagman.

PHILLIPS' ATTORNEY, Louis Carbonaro, called Brown, as a defense witness during the pretrial hearing in an attempt to show the identification was improper.

Brown was shown photographs of seven males, including Phillips, in fall, 1973, after describing the bagman as "a young man, about 6 feet 2 inches, thin, with dark hair . . . maybe he was of Greek or Italian extraction."

Phillips is a cousin of Stavros. Brown said Wednesday that he "immediately picked him (Phillips) out of the stack (of photographs) and said 'That's the man.'"

USE OF THE PHOTOS was not "unreasonably suggestive," Marshall said, "not suggestive to cause Mr. Brown to identify Phillips."

During testimony Wednesday, which probably will be repeated when Brown appears as prosecution witness this week, Brown described the payoff:

"I was alone . . . we met in the lobby . . . he immediately walked up to me . . . he asked me if I was Bill Brown Jr. of Arthur Rubloff & Co. I said 'yes' . . . he suggested we retire to the cocktail lounge."

During the five-minute meeting, Brown said he handed two envelopes to Phillips. "I asked him whether he wanted to count what was inside. He said, 'No, I trust you,'" Brown said.

BROWN THEN returned to Colitz' Chicago office to report that the payoff had been completed.

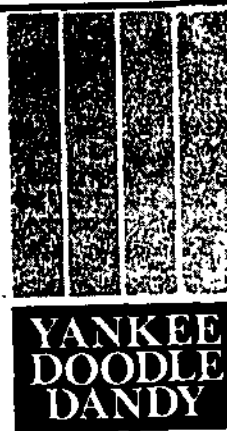

"Things suddenly began to move quickly in Wheeling" for the Wickes rezoning, Kadison said during his opening statement.

Defense attorney Harvey Slets, who represents Colitz, told Marshall in an opening statement that federal prosecutors "must prove that both Phillips and Colitz were able to and did control actions of the Village of Wheeling. The government said it doesn't know how this was done. It is the defense position that the government will not bear the burden of its proof."

PHILLIPS, 40, is a land planner for the County Zoning Board.

Colitz, 50, of Chicago, a former state representative, was a member of the County Zoning Board but resigned after his indictment. He is accused of organizing the alleged Wickes shakedown scheme.

Kadison said Wickes succumbed to the extortion because it feared economic harm if the Wheeling store opening was delayed.

Shopping center plans revised

The developers of a controversial shopping center at 850 Oakton St. have submitted a new plan to Des Plaines.

Fred Owens of O'Hare Development Corp. has asked for a Sept. 30 hearing to request approval for a planned-unit development on the 25-acre site. The new developed is called Greenhouse Point.

Owens announced plans for the shopping center project in March, but obtained several continuances on a rezoning request from the zoning board.

THE NEW PLANS for the property, near the northeast corner of Oakton Street and Webster Lane, call for the construction of four 5-story condominium apartment buildings.

The project also would include 27 single-family houses, a 50,000-square-foot shopping mall and a 5-story office building. The office building would be constructed at 700 Oakton St. That parcel was not part of the initial development plans.

The new plans also have eliminated a proposed 6.5-acre public park, which was to have served as a buffer zone between the commercial development and single family houses near the project on Forest Avenue.

Residents had complained there already are too many shopping centers in the area. Owens' initial proposal called for rezoning the land from R-2, residential, to C-1, commercial. The new proposal calls for a mixture of multiple family and commercial zoning.

THE ARCHITECT'S drawing for the project shows recreational land around the condominium apartment development, but it appears the facilities would be for the use of residents owning those units.

The original plan called for a commercial development containing 124,000 square feet, and included space for a department store, supermarket and a number of smaller shops.

The 27 single-family houses included in the project would be built around the perimeter of the development on Forest Avenue and Fourth Avenue.

The residents had called for the property to be developed as single-family houses, but Owens contended no one would purchase a house along heavily-traveled Oakton Street.

Colitz told Wickes '50 big ones': U.S.

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

A former official of the County Zoning Board told a Wickes Inc. representative it would cost the firm "50 big ones — $50,000" in bribes to get zoning for a furniture store in Wheeling, an assistant U.S. attorney said Wednesday.

The statement came at the beginning of the extortion trial of Ira Colitz, a former member of the County Zoning Board, and Nicholas Phillips, a land planner for the board.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Steven Kadison said during opening comments in the Phillips-Colitz trial that Colitz came up with the price tag in late 1971. A month earlier Wickes consultant Edward S. Sheldon met Colitz at a cocktail party, Kadison said, and complained about delays in obtaining zoning for the Wheeling store.

"COLITZ TOLD him that 'the Greek runs Wheeling — James Stavros. Let me check around.'"

Edward Sheldon, the architect of Wickes furniture warehouse plans in the Chicago area, will be the first government witness when testimony in the trial begins at 9:30 a.m. today before U.S. District Court Judge Prentice Marshall in Chicago.

Colitz and Phillips are charged with conspiracy and with extorting $50,000 from Wickes to influence village zoning. Stavros is serving a federal prison term in connection with other Wheeling zoning shakedowns.

The payoff was arranged by Colitz and Willard Brown Jr. of Palatine, a senior vice president of Arthur Rubloff & Co. in December 1971, Kadison said, after two applications for zoning by Wickes were denied by village officials.

Brown has received immunity from prosecution to testify in the trial.

THE RUBLOFF FIRM was hired by Wickes to purchase property for furniture warehouse stores in Wheeling, Itasca and Harvey.

Kadison told the court that Wickes financed the payoff with a $50,000 check on Dec. 30, 1971; that Brown exchanged the Wickes check for a check from the Rubloff firm and then obtained $50,000 in cash from the Harris Bank for the payoff.

The money was delivered to Phillips in a cocktail lounge at the Lake Shore Holiday Inn in Chicago about 3 p.m. Dec. 30, 1971, Kadison said.

Details of the payoff meeting were revealed Wednesday during a pretrial hearing on a motion to dismiss a photographic identification by Brown of Phillips as the payoff bagman.

PHILLIPS' ATTORNEY, Louis Carbonaro, called Brown as a defense witness during the pretrial hearing in an attempt to show the identification was improper.

Brown was shown photographs of seven males, including Phillips, in fall, 1973, after describing the bagman as "a young man, about 6 feet 2 inches, thin, with dark hair . . . maybe he was of Greek or Italian extraction."

Phillips is a cousin of Stavros. Brown said Wednesday that he "immediately picked him (Phillips) out of the stack (of photographs) and said 'That's the man.'"

USE OF THE PHOTOS was not "unreasonably suggestive," Marshall said, "not suggestive to cause Mr. Brown to identify Phillips."

During testimony Wednesday, which probably will be repeated when Brown appears as prosecution witness this week, Brown described the payoff:

"I was alone . . . we met in the lobby . . . he immediately walked up to me . . . he asked me if I was Bill Brown Jr. of Arthur Rubloff & Co. I said 'yes' . . . he suggested we retire to the cocktail lounge."

During the five-minute meeting, Brown said he handed two envelopes to Phillips. "I asked him whether he wanted to count what was inside. He said, 'No, I trust you,'" Brown said.

BROWN THEN returned to Colitz' Chicago office to report that the payoff had been completed.

"Things suddenly began to move quickly in Wheeling" for the Wickes rezoning, Kadison said during his opening statement.

Defense attorney Harvey Silets, who represents Colitz, told Marshall in an opening statement that federal prosecutors "must prove that both Phillips and Colitz were able to and did control actions of the Village of Wheeling. The government said it doesn't know how this was done. It is the defense position that the government will not bear the burden of its proof."

PHILLIPS, 40, is a land planner for the County Zoning Board.

Colitz, 59, of Chicago, a former state representative, was a member of the County Zoning Board but resigned after his indictment. He is accused of organizing the alleged Wickes shakedown scheme.

Kadison said Wickes succumbed to the extortion because it feared economic harm if the Wheeling store opening was delayed.

Landlord cited for code faults

by LUISA GINETTI

The owner of a building at 1111 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling, has been cited for numerous code violations almost two months after the violations were reported to Village Mgr. George Passolt by Building Director Walter Ropholz, following an inspection.

Violation notices were ordered sent Tuesday to the owner of the building, Richard Calfa. The order was issued by Passolt the same day several village officials, including Passolt, Ropholz and building inspectors Robert Kaminski and George Shields, testified in a case involving a lawsuit filed by Calfa against his former partner, George Harhen.

The lawsuit charges Harhen with breaching a lease to rent a basement office in the building after Calfa and Harhen dissolved their joint ownership in August, 1974.

Harhen said he was willing to rent the office, which was a stipulation of the sale contract, which he occupied during his ownership in the two-year-old building, but questioned if he needed a special occupancy permit since he no longer was part owner.

HARHEN CHARGED Calfa failed to produce valid occupancy permits for all seven offices in the building and said further plans on file with the building department for the office show four offices and an unfinished basement and attic.

The basement and attic currently are being used for office space.

After Calfa filed suit, Harhen initiated inquiries to the village to determine what plans and permits were on file for the building. Harhen also charged building code violations in the office were being ignored.

In a letter to the board April 2, 1975, Harhen asked trustees to order an inspection of the building. The letter apparently was ignored until several

Policeman gets suspension

Wheeling patrolman Gary Holvec was ordered suspended without pay for 30 days Wednesday night by the fire and police commission, pending on Oct. 4 public hearing.

The commission met in executive session Wednesday to determine whether charges filed against Holvec by Police Chief W. O. Horcher merited suspension. The decision was announced following a 40-minute meeting.

Commission chairman Vern Nystrom said the charges against Holvec would be revealed at the hearing, set for 10 a.m. at the village hall. He said the charges could not be revealed be-

Probe of RTA subsidies urged

by ANNE SLAVICEK

The seven commuter railroads serving the Chicago metropolitan area urged the federal government Wednesday to investigate the Regional Transportation Authority's subsidy policies.

The railroads asked the U.S. Urban Mass Transportation Administration to "immediately commence a review of the RTA's allocations of funds among types of carriers and portions of the RTA's six-county region."

The request was contained in a letter to the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission, which gave its approval Wednesday to an RTA request for $30.5 million in operating subsidies for local transit lines.

The approval came after the commission's planning committee agreed that the RTA should be required to provide subsidies "on an equitable basis" to transit systems throughout the Chicago area.

THE RTA has been criticized by suburban officials for giving the bulk of its subsidies to the Chicago Transit Authority.

The committee also required the RTA to inform NIPCO of its subsidy policies and the amounts of any subsidies it provides to transit systems. NIPCO staff members had urged the two requirements to ensure "consistency with regional planning objectives."

The letter from the railroads, signed by D. H. King, vice president of Burlington Northern Inc., also asked the federal government to:

- Require that subsidies after July 1, 1976 be weighted in favor of the commuter railroads to make up for the "inequitable" allocation of funds during the last two years.

- Examine RTA subsidy policies to determine if they are consistent with federal policy and federal subsidies to the railroads for commuter cars and locomotives.

- Require the RTA to release promptly its railroad subsidy plan for the current fiscal year.

The letter dated Wednesday, will be forwarded to the federal mass transportation administration along with comments from suburban officials urging changes in RTA subsidy policies to give more funds to the suburbs.

The RTA will not provide funds to meet all the operating deficits of mass transit lines unless the lines can pay at least 65 per cent of their expenses through fares. Commuter railroads are reimbursed by the RTA for 75 per cent of their operating deficits.

RTA Chairman Milton Pikarsky, who is also a member of NIPCO, succeeded Wednesday in getting the planning committee to drop a section of its report to the federal agency that was critical of current RTA spending policies.

The section said in part:

"The commission is concerned with the issue of equitable funding levels and potential effects on regional planning objectives as well as the concerns expressed by many local governments of the potentially negative consequences resulting from the present RTA policy."

PIKARSKY said the $50.5 million is only one-third of the total subsidies the RTA will hand out to bus, rail and rapid transit lines during fiscal 1976.

The money is sought specifically for subsidies to bus lines, including the Chicago Transit Authority and the North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTRAN).

NORTRAN Executive Director Joseph DiJohn said the district would endorse the RTA fund request if the RTA would promise to meet 100 per cent of NORTRAN's deficits.

Pikarsky refused to make such a promise at the meeting. He said NORTRAN would be foolish to oppose the application for federal grants for its own subsidies.

The other railroads joining in the letter were the Milwaukee Road, the Chicago and North Western Ry., the Illinois Central-Gulf R.R., the Norfolk and Western Ry., The Rock Island Line and the Chicago South Shore and South Bend R.R.

STORES ARE OPENING up one by one at the new Plaza Verde Shopping Center. It is expected to house 30 to 35 stores including a supermarket, drugstore, restaurant, ice cream parlor, delicatessen, cleaners, day care center, pizzeria and others.

Clean, open look predicted for Plaza Verde Center

Tree planting and strict enforcement of sign guidelines by owners of the Plaza Verde Shopping Center, Arlington Heights and Dundee roads, will give the new center a clean, open look, developers predict.

A variety of large young trees recently were planted at the plaza, which owners expect may draw as many as 35 businesses by the time it is finished.

A spokesman for Marvin Hymen, developer of the complex, said the shopping center will blend with the architecture of nearby Buffalo Grove High School.

But the developer's adherence to strict sign regulations has not met with approval of all.

No signs which carry artwork or logos are permitted in the complex, according to lease agreements. Restrictions on signs also were stipulated when Buffalo Grove annexed the property on which the center stands.

AppleGate Realty Monday night petitioned the Buffalo Grove Village Board to waive the sign regulations to permit the company's logo, a large, red apple, to appear on a sign outside the store front.

The board would not budge on the matter and neither would the developers. They said Allstate Insurance Co. has agreed to delete the company's trademark, two hands from its sign. Both the board and the developers said AppleGate must do the same.

2 sergeants head divisions

Two sergeants have been named to head the new service division and detective division in the Wheeling Police Dept.

Sgt. Eugene Wolf will serve as head of the service division, which includes the records and communications departments. Sgt. William Ralston will head the detective division.

The appointments were announced this week by Police Chief M. O. Horcher and will take effect immediately. Horcher said the men were chosen with the help of a professional consulting agency, the Police Service Bureau.

Ralston was formerly a detective when the department was headed by Lt. Ted Bracke. Ralston had been transferred back to patrol duty by former Police Chief Peter Gutilla, but the action was rescinded when patrolmen protested Gutilla failed to observe an established selection process when appointing new detectives.

Wolf was one of the men named by Gutilla to be a detective before the appointments were rescinded.

Detectives appointed last week to serve under Ralston are Clarence Trausch and Edward Theriault.

PHIA shelves cop patrol drive

by GERRY KERN

The Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. has temporarily backed down on its drive to get the Sheriff's police to step up patrols in the unincorporated community.

The 10-member PHIA board voted recently to table any further action on the police protection issue until Circuit Court Judge Harry Comerford rules Sept. 19 on whether a referendum on incorporation should be held.

Edward Bryant, vice president of the neighborhood organization, said a second petition to the county for more patrols would be useless. The county already has cited budget problems as a reason extra patrols cannot be provided, although residents have called current protection "inadequate."

"So far, we've lost," said Bryant. "There's no way around that. I think another petition would be fruitless."

BUT SOME BOARD members believe the police protection question may be moot if the referendum is approved and Prospect Heights votes to incorporate.

PHIA Pres. Richard Wolf said the organization would press the issue again if the court rules against the referendum.

Wheeling Township was the last to say no to the association. Township residents voted 32 to 11 Sept. 3 not to establish a special taxing unit to provide the extra police protection for the Prospect Heights area.

"I think we're at the point where we've got to rethink our course of action," said Wolf. "But, I think we'd be wise to wait until we know something for sure about the referendum."

ON THE INCORPORATION issue, Wolf reported the Arlington Heights Village Board recently annexed a portion of Prospect Heights between Brandenburg Avenue and Willow Road.

He said the area is within the proposed corporate boundaries of Prospect Heights.

"The board was eager to get approval on the annexation before the court ruling," Wolf said. "However, if the referendum goes through, as we expect it will, their action (Arlington Heights Village Board) will be null and void. The property would remain in Prospect Heights."

The board has continued to make plans for Prospect Heights' third annual Oktoberfest set for Sept. 21. PHIA members hope to raise money at the Oktoberfest for its Bicentennial celebration next June.

PREACHING ON HORSEBACK . . . Pastors Stephen Dahl, George Bush and William Landis reenact Kingswood and Grace United Methodist churches in early American Circuit Riders in observance of the Bicentennial. The reenactment is part of a series by Buffalo Grove and Prairie View.

Bicentennial events planned by church

Kingswood United Methodist Church will sponsor a community Bicentennial camp meeting and picnic song fest Saturday as part of Bicentennial reenactments on Methodism in America.

Methodists were said to have developed camp meetings into one of the most important social institutions of the early American frontier.

The song fest will begin at 7 p.m. under a tent in front of the sanctuary at the church, 401 W. Dundee, Buffalo Grove. The salvation Army Youth Band will accompany.

Three area clergymen rode horseback Sunday as early American Circuit Riders to dramatize the first ordination service in American Methodism in 1784.

Pastors Stephen Dahl, Bill Landis and George Bush rode horseback in costume from Grace United Methodist Church, Prairie View, to Kingswood United Methodist Church, Buffalo Grove.

The event was the first of a series of Bicentennial reenactments on Methodism in America, cosponsored by the two churches.

fore then because an investigation is under way into the matter.

Nelther Holvec nor Horcher was present when the announcement was made. Horcher is out of town attending the International Chiefs of Police Assn. Convention in Denver.

HOLVEC, A VETERAN of more than six years on the force, has been on inactive duty receiving pay since Sept. 3 as a result of an alleged incident of "trespass to a vehicle," according to a police department source. It is the first serious charge leveled at the patrolman since he has been on the force.

Officials have refused to discuss the alleged incident, and details of the matter have not been revealed.

Horcher has declined to discuss the matter because he said to do so would jeopardize the investigation. Holvec also has declined to comment on the incident, but has contacted the Combined Counties Police Assn. to represent him in any hearing or investigation into the incident.

Nystrom said the 30-day suspension takes effect today. The commission has the authority to suspend policemen or firemen and conduct a public hearing into charges of misconduct. State statutes also grant police and fire chiefs suspension authority, but only for up to five days.

THE HEARING will examine the charges against Holvec, and the commission can reverse or alter the suspension action after hearing evidence.

The commission action Wednesday upheld Horcher's charges, pending completion of a further investigation into the alleged incident.

Horcher is expected to be back in time to testify at the hearing.

Building cited after 2-month delay

new trustees asked Passolt about the matter.

Passolt was unavailable for comment on the matter Wednesday.

Repholz inspected the building in July, and in a memo to Passolt, he listed 10 violations including items cited by Harhen. The memo also pointed out plans on file with the village do not conform to the building as it exists.

The violations include such things as missing hand rails from the stairway enclosure, the basement and attic offices sharing the same staircase the lack of self-closing fire doors at the stairwell, no windows or exterior door to the attic office and the lack of more than one exit.

These items are all correctable, but Repholz said the main problem with the building is it violates the National Building Code for being a frame structure within the fire district limits.

Repholz added in his memo the permit issued for the building Aug. 1972, and signed by former Building Director William Bleber, "was not in the best interest of the village." Bleber served an eight-month prison term in 1974 for his part in a shakedown scandal of Wheeling developers.

Harhen subpoenaed village officials to appear in court Tuesday to testify about the matter. It was then that Passolt and Calfa would be formally notified of the violations, nearly two months after receipt of the memo from Repholz, dated July 28.

CALFA SAID Wednesday he has agreed to correct all the violations, but said Harhen reported trumped up charges to village officials in order to get out of his lease.

Calfa said he has valid occupancy permits for the building which were issued after an initial inspection in mid-1972. He also said Harhen was aware of all the building plans, because he designed the structure.

"He (Harhen) wants the building condemned," Calfa said. He added a private inspector whom he hired to examine the building said it is safe.

"There were no payoffs involved in this, and nothing is being hidden," Calfa said.

Harhen said he only is interested in finding out whether occupancy permits for the building are valid and why the code violations were ignored until now. He denied being in charge of designing original plans for the building and said Calfa was in charge of securing occupancy permits and business licenses for the building.

Repholz said Village Atty. John Burke will review the matter before the notice of violations is sent.

Janitor arrested in talcum powder bust

A janitor at the Wheeling police station was arrested Wednesday for allegedly stealing what he thought to be narcotics from a display board. But the contents turned out to be talcum powder.

LI. Ronald Nelson said Carl Dunlop, 19, of Buffalo Grove, was charged with theft. He was arrested after police found the substance in his cleaning cart.

Dunlop, 611 Checker Dr., had been cleaning Nelson's office Wednesday afternoon, and Nelson later noticed the powder missing from a display board of simulated narcotics police use in drug-abuse talks at local schools.

Dunlop was released on $1,000 bond pending an Oct. 7 court appearance in Arlington Heights.

On Beechwood Court

Fences finally will be moved

Three rear-yard fences on Beechwood Court finally will be moved today by the Buffalo Grove Public Works Dept.

The action apparently was spurred by criticism from Trustee Dorothy Carroll Monday night. The trustee said she was tired of "constant delays all along the line."

"I want these fences moved this week," she said.

THE FENCE ISSUE has been a controversial matter for several weeks after a village decision to move them for safety reasons.

Officials said bicyclists and pedestrians traveling on an adjacent pathway along Arlington Heights Road, north of Buffalo Grove High School, got their handlebars or clothing caught on the fences.

To complicate matters, village officials said the fences also must be removed because they were installed illegally beyond property lines.

Three property owners said the village was responsible for removing the fences because officials issued permits for them. They added a village inspector had approved the fences when they were installed.

VILLAGE OFFICIALS said they allowed the fences to stand because residents said they would maintain the easement area, which would become a garden of weeds if unkept. They told residents their fences eventually must be moved for an impending Arlington Heights Road improvement project.

The village board voted during the first week of August for the municipality to bear the cost of fence removal, but crews did not move the fences.

Officials hit another snag because one property owner planted shrubbery in the easement area. The village sent a letter saying the bushes must be removed by either the property owner or the village.

Carroll became angered during village board discussion Monday night when she was told by Village Mgr. Daniel T. Larson the resident was given until Oct. 1 for consent to move the bushes.

Carroll said she was angry because the fences were to be removed before school started. She said the "lack of response" by the village staff is affecting the relationship between the staff and trustees.

Parks say no to Strathmore model home site

Director Stanley Crosland Wednesday said the Buffalo Grove Park District is "not interested" in obtaining a circle of land 90 feet wide in Strathmore Court.

The circle of land was the site of a Levitt and Sons Inc. model home and sales office before the house was moved to Dunham Lane to be used as the new Raupp Memorial Building.

Crosland said the park district has planted grass on the property but has no intentions of accepting the deed for the property, now held by the village.

"It's just not suitable for a park," Crosland said, adding the mound of land is not even suitable to put playground equipment on. "It would be unsightly," he said.

Grass on the circle is sparse, but park officials will check growth in the spring to see if replanting is needed.

The building on the property was donated to the park district to be used as a community center complex.

The center, expected to be completed for public use soon, will be used as a museum for the Buffalo Grove Historical society.

The facility can be used as a meeting place for community organizations.

Parks mull building at meeting tonight

Buffalo Grove Park District officials tonight will review progress on the Raupp Memorial Building, the first park building in the Lake County portion of the village.

The center was projected to be finished and open to the public by Labor Day, but completion has been delayed because of a slowdown in minor contract work. Park Director Stanley Crosland said.

The majority of the building, located on Dunham Lane, is finished and should be completed soon, Crosland added.

John M. Sullivan, park district attorney, also will report on various cooperative agreements made with the district on certain property leases for park use.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at Emmerich Park, 150 Raupp Blvd.

STORES ARE OPENING up one by one at the new Plaza Verde Shopping Center. It is expected to house 30 to 35 stores including a supermarket, drugstore, restaurant, ice cream parlor, delicatessen, cleaners, day care center, pizzeria and others.

Blend with surroundings

Clean, open look for shop center

Tree planting and strict enforcement of sign guidelines by owners of the Plaza Verde Shopping Center, Arlington Heights and Dundee roads, will give the new center a clean, open look, developers predict.

A variety of large young trees recently were planted at the plaza, which owners expect may draw as many as 35 businesses by the time it is finished.

A spokesman for Marvin Hymen, developer of the complex, said the shopping center will blend with the architecture of nearby Buffalo Grove

High School.

But the developer's adherence to strict sign regulations has not met with approval of all.

No signs which carry artwork or logos are permitted in the complex, according to lease agreements. Restrictions on signs also were stipulated when Buffalo Grove annexed the property on which the center stands.

AppleGate Realty Monday night petitioned the Buffalo Grove Village Board to waive the sign regulations to permit the company's logo, a large, red apple, to appear on a sign outside the store front.

The board would not budge on the matter and neither would the developers. They said Allstate Insurance Co. has agreed to delete the company's trademark, two hands from its sign. Both the board and the developers said AppleGate must do the same.

Lake County grants sewer easement

The Lake County Board of Supervisors has taken a step to expand the Des Plaines Sewer Treatment Plant in Vernon Township by granting an easement across the Des Plaines River.

The easement was granted to the North Shore Sanitary District by the board this week.

The sewer expansion project will cost more than $4.8 million and is part of a plan by the Lake County Public Works Dept. to bring regional sewage treatment to the southeast portion of the county.

Buffalo Grove Village Mgr. Daniel T. Larson said the expansion will provide greater capacity to treat sewage and could benefit future industrial development in Buffalo Grove.

EXPANSION ALSO would provide a "great opportunity" for the development of the property affected, Larson said. Treatment service would be particularly beneficial to the area immediately north and east of Ill. Rte. 83.

The Des Plaines plant will be expanded from a two-million gallon-per-day capacity to eight million gallons.

The North Shore Sanitary District will use two million gallons of each day's capacity in a "swap" agreement, said Lake County Public Works

by ANNE SLAVICEK

The seven commuter railroads serving the Chicago metropolitan area urged the federal government Wednesday to investigate the Regional Transportation Authority's subsidy policies.

The railroads asked the U.S. Urban Mass Transportation Administration to "immediately commence a review of the RTA's allocations of funds among types of carriers and portions of the RTA's six-county region."

The request was contained in a letter to the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission, which gave its approval Wednesday to an RTA request for $50.5 million in operating subsidies for local transit lines.

The approval came after the commission's planning committee agreed that the RTA should be required to provide subsidies "on an equitable basis" to transit systems throughout the Chicago area.

THE RTA has been criticized by suburban officials for giving the bulk of its subsidies to the Chicago Transit Authority.

The committee also required the RTA to inform NIPCC of its subsidy policies and the amounts of any subsidies it provides to transit systems. NIPCC staff members had urged the two requirements to ensure "consistency with regional planning objectives."

The letter from the railroads, signed by D. H. King, vice president of Burlington Northern Inc., also asked the federal government to:

- Require that subsidies after July 1, 1976 be weighted in favor of the commuter railroads to make up for the "inequitable" allocation of funds during the last two years.

- Examine RTA subsidy policies to determine if they are consistent with federal policy and federal subsidies to the railroads for commuter cars and locomotives.

- Require the RTA to release promptly its railroad subsidy plan for the current fiscal year.

The letter dated Wednesday, will be forwarded to the federal mass transportation administration along with comments from suburban officials urging changes in RTA subsidy policies to give more funds to the suburbs.

The RTA will not provide funds to meet all the operating deficits of mass transit lines unless the lines can pay at least 65 per cent of their expenses through fares. Commuter railroads are reimbursed by the RTA for 75 per cent of their operating deficits.

RTA Chairman Milton Pikarsky, who is also a member of NIPCC, succeeded Wednesday in getting the planning committee to drop a section of its report to the federal agency that was critical of current RTA spending policies.

The section said in part:

"The commission is concerned with the issue of equitable funding levels and potential effects on regional planning objectives as well as the concerns expressed by many local governments of the potentially negative consequences resulting from the present RTA policy."

PIKARSKY said the $50.5 million is only one-third of the total subsidies the RTA will hand out to bus, rail and rapid transit lines during fiscal 1976.

The money is sought specifically for subsidies to bus lines, including the Chicago Transit Authority and the North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTRAN).

NORTRAN Executive Director Joseph DiJohn said the district would endorse the RTA fund request if the RTA would promise to meet 100 per cent of NORTRAN's deficits.

Pikarsky refused to make such a promise at the meeting. He said NORTRAN would be foolish to oppose the application for federal grants for its own subsidies.

The other railroads joining in the letter were the Milwaukee Road, the Chicago and North Western Ry., the Illinois Central-Gulf R.R., the Norfolk and Western Ry., The Rock Island Line and the Chicago South Shore and South Bend R.R.

In fall session

Swim activities offered by parks

The Buffalo Grove Park District will begin a new fall season of recreation with a variety of swim activities for the entire family.

The "learn to swim" program for children will begin Saturday at the Aquadome Pool at Buffalo Grove High School. Classes will continue each Saturday until May 29.

Pupils will be tested and assigned to groups according to abilities. The cost is $7.50 for 10 lessons.

THE GROUP LESSONS will be given to a maximum of 45 children for each 50-minute class.

Classes are open to youngsters who measure at least 40 inches from chin to the floor, through elementary school age.

Girls must bring their own bathing caps. Each student is required to furnish their own towel and suit.

Students can continue after 10 lessons in the year around program.

A similar program is planned for adults with the first lesson to begin Sept. 13 from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. The cost is $7.50 for 10 lessons.

YOUNGER CHILDREN may learn to swim in a "tiny tots and mom" program beginning Saturday. Sessions are from noon to 12:30 p.m. and from 12:30 to 1 p.m. The cost is $7.50 for 10 lessons.

The park district will sponsor a swim team to be coached by Virian Wadford.

Teams will begin practice Sept. 29 and the program will continue to April 2.

A clinic to improve competitive swim strokes is under way from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 5 to 7:30 p.m. Saturday. Children may sign up for sessions anytime now through Sept. 26.

SCUBA DIVING classes will begin Monday at the Aquadome Pool. Students must show proof of swimming proficiency in a class certificate earned through the Association of Diving.

Classes are from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. on Mondays and cost is $60, which includes the use of equipment. Persons must register at the park office, 150 Raupp Blvd.

Synchronized swimming classes will be on Thursdays beginning Sept. 18, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Persons must register in person. Cost is $7.50 for 10 lessons.

Residents can purchase pool passes for general swimming at the Aquadome pool. A family membership cost $12, each adult membership, $7 and each child membership is $5.

For more information on the swim programs, call park district at 537-0356.

New Yorker named director of health unit

Eugene Thelios will remain executive administrator of the health department.

For the last four years, Dr. Potsic has been the director of the Bureau for Handicapped Children of the New York City Health Department.

HE HAS AN extensive medical background, which includes fellowships in neurology and psychiatry from Loyola University; maternal and child health from the University of Michigan; pediatric nutrition from the University of Iowa; and executive development from Columbia University.

Dr. Potsic is a registered medical technologist, a diplomate of the National Board of Medical Examiners, and a member of the American Board of Preventive Medicine.

He has been an instructor in public health at Columbia University and has acted as consultant for the television show, "Feeling Good."

Dr. Potsic's salary will be $40,000 and he will be in charge of all aspects of the public health department.

"We are pleased that Dr. Potsic has agreed to come," said Edwin Oberst, president of the Lake County Board of Health. "We feel he is an outstanding man and we are lucky to get him."

Volunteers sought to deliver meals

Our Redeemer Lutheran Church, 304 W. Palatine Rd., Prospect Heights, is looking for volunteers to deliver meals to shut-ins in Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Prospect Heights.

The drivers will be part of the meals-on-wheels program. Each individual will be asked to spare 1½ hours per day for one week in October.

The church also is accepting applications for its Saturday School classes for grades one through eight. Grades seven and eight of the program are necessary for confirmation from the church.

A fee of about $6 per person will be charged to finance project materials. For further information on either program, call the church office at LE 7-4130.

PREACHING ON HORSEBACK . . . Pastors Stephen Dahl, George Bush and William Landis reenact early American Circuit Riders in observance of the Bicentennial. The reenactment is part of a series by Kingswood and Grace United Methodist churches in Buffalo Grove and Prairie View.

Bicentennial events planned by church

Kingswood United Methodist Church will sponsor a community Bicentennial camp meeting and picnic song fest Saturday as part of Bicentennial reenactments on Methodism in America.

Methodists were said to have developed camp meetings into one of the most important social institutions of the early American frontier.

The song fest will begin at 7 p.m. under a tent in front of the sanctuary at the church, 401 W. Dundee, Buffalo Grove. The salvation Army Youth Band will accompany.

Three area clergymen rode horseback Sunday as early American Circuit Riders to dramatize the first ordination service in American Methodism in 1784.

Pastors Stephen Dahl, Bill Landis and George Bush rode horseback in costume from Grace United Methodist Church, Prairie View, to Kingswood United Methodist Church, Buffalo Grove.

The event was the first of a series of Bicentennial reenactments on Methodism in America, cosponsored by the two churches.

Director Robert Degen.

The sanitary district will treat sewage from the Grayslake and Gages Lake area in exchange for using some capacity of the plant in Vernon Township.

Seventy-five per cent of the expansion costs will be subsidized by the Federal Environmental Protection Agency.

IN ANOTHER Lake County matter, a plan by the public works department to bring a water line from Highland Park to Buffalo Grove, Lincolnshire, Riverwoods, Bannockburn and Long Grove, is in negotiation, Degen said.

The proposed route of the water line is located west on Ill. Rte. 22 from Highland Park, south to Duffy Lane in Bannockburn, west on Duffy Lane to Saunders Road, south on Saunders Road to Aptakisic Road near Buffalo Grove and west of Aptakisic to Long Grove.

Third blood drive slated Wednesday

The Wheeling Sure Blood Program will sponsor its third blood drive of the year Wednesday at the Wheeling High School cafeteria, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd.

The drive will take place from 4 to 8 p.m. Donors should call Don Domenico, 537-7406, for an appointment and more information on the program.

The village has netted 305 pints of blood this year from two earlier drives, still far short of the goal of 720 pints.

If the village reaches its goal all residents will be assured of receiving blood for a year whenever they need it.

If the goal is not reached, persons who have donated and members of their immediate families will be guaranteed free blood replacement for one year.

The Wheeling program is connected with the North Suburban Blood Center, Northbrook.

Janitor arrested in talcum powder bust

A janitor at the Wheeling police station was arrested Wednesday for allegedly stealing what he thought to be narcotics from a display board. But the contents turned out to be talcum powder.

Lt. Ronald Nelson said Carl Dunlop, 19, of Buffalo Grove, was charged with theft. He was arrested after police found the substance in his cleaning cart.

Dunlop, 611 Checker Dr., had been cleaning Nelson's office Wednesday afternoon, and Nelson later noticed the powder missing from a display board of simulated narcotics police use in drug-abuse talks at local schools.

Dunlop was released on $1,000 bond pending an Oct. 7 court appearance in Arlington Heights.

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

A former official of the County Zoning Board told a Wickes Inc. representative it would cost the firm "50 big ones — $50,000" in bribes to get zoning for a furniture store in Wheeling, an assistant U.S. attorney said Wednesday.

The statement came at the beginning of the extortion trial of Ira Colitz, a former member of the County Zoning Board, and Nicholas Phillips, a land planner for the board.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Steven Kadison said during opening comments in the Phillips-Colitz trial that Colitz came up with the price tag in late 1971. A month earlier Wickes consultant Edward S. Sheldon met Colitz at a cocktail party, Kadison said, and complained about delays in obtaining zoning for the Wheeling store.

"COLITZ TOLD him that 'the Greek runs Wheeling — James Stavros. Let me check around.'"

Edward Sheldon, the architect of Wickes furniture warehouse plans in the Chicago area, will be the first government witness when testimony in the trial begins at 9:30 a.m. today before U.S. District Court Judge Prentice Marshall in Chicago.

Colitz and Phillips are charged with conspiracy and with extorting $50,000 from Wickes to influence village zoning. Stavros is serving a federal prison term in connection with other Wheeling zoning shakedowns.

The payoff was arranged by Colitz and Willard Brown Jr. of Palatine, a senior vice president of Arthur Rubloff & Co. In December 1971, Kadison said, after two applications for zoning by Wickes were denied by village officials.

Brown has received immunity from prosecution to testify in the trial.

THE RUBLOFF FIRM was hired by Wickes to purchase property for furniture warehouse stores in Wheeling, Itasca and Harvey.

Kadison told the court that Wickes financed the payoff with a $50,000 check on Dec. 30, 1971; that Brown exchanged the Wickes check for a check from the Rubloff firm and then obtained $50,000 in cash from the Harris Bank for the payoff.

The money was delivered to Phillips in a cocktail lounge at the Lake Shore Holiday Inn in Chicago about 3 p.m. Dec. 30, 1971, Kadison said.

Details of the payoff meeting were revealed Wednesday during a pretrial hearing on a motion to dismiss a photographic identification by Brown of Phillips as the payoff bagman.

PHILLIPS' ATTORNEY, Louis Carbone, called Brown as a defense witness during the pretrial hearing in an attempt to show the identification was improper.

Brown was shown photographs of seven males, including Phillips, in fall, 1973, after describing the bagman as "a young man, about 6 feet 2 inches, thin, with dark hair . . . maybe he was of Greek or Italian extraction."

Phillips is a cousin of Stavros. Brown said Wednesday that he "immediately picked him (Phillips) out of the stack (of photographs) and said 'That's the man.'"

USE OF THE PHOTOS was not "unreasonably suggestive," Marshall said, "not suggestive to cause Mr. Brown to identify Phillips."

During testimony Wednesday, which probably will be repeated when Brown appears as prosecution witness this week, Brown described the payoff:

"I was alone . . . we met in the lobby . . . he immediately walked up to me . . . he asked me if I was Bill Brown Jr. of Arthur Rubloff & Co. I said 'yes' . . . he suggested we retire to the cocktail lounge."

During the five-minute meeting, Brown said he handed two envelopes to Phillips. "I asked him whether he wanted to count what was inside. He said, 'No, I trust you,'" Brown said.

BROWN THEN returned to Colitz' Chicago office to report that the payoff had been completed.

"Things suddenly began to move quickly in Wheeling" for the Wickes rezoning, Kadison said during his opening statement.

Defense attorney Harvey Silets, who represents Colitz, told Marshall in an opening statement that federal prosecutors "must prove that both Phillips and Colitz were able to and did control actions of the Village of Wheeling. The government said it doesn't know how this was done. It is the defense position that the government will not bear the burden of its proof."

PHILLIPS, 40, is a land planner for the County Zoning Board.

Colitz, 59, of Chicago, a former state representative, was a member of the County Zoning Board but resigned after his indictment. He is accused of organizing the alleged Wickes shakedown scheme.

Kadison said Wickes succumbed to the extortion because it feared economic harm if the Wheeling store opening was delayed.

Action due today

Year-round racing bill awaits Walker's signature

by KURT BAER

Gov. Dan Walker is expected to act today on a bill which would legalize thoroughbred racing in Illinois year-round, including Sundays. But even if the bill becomes law, communities like Arlington Heights would still have the power to deny Sunday racing.

If Walker fails to act, the bill will become law automatically at midnight today.

The sweeping new racing legislation is opposed by the Illinois Racing Board and its chairman, Anthony Scariano, principally because it repeals the ban on political contributions from race track operators.

Charles Siragusa, chairman of the Illinois Legislative Investigating Commission and a strong backer of the bill, said Wednesday municipalities would have an option on Sunday racing.

"There can be no Sunday racing unless a local ordinance is approved, permitting the track to operate," he said.

ACCORDING TO THE bill, Sunday racing can be granted either by local ordinance or referendum.

Parks' swim team banquet Sunday

Buffalo Grove Park District's summer swim team will sponsor a banquet at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Buffalo Grove High School cafeteria.

The banquet is a potluck affair and 125 members of the team are expected to attend the event.

WFYR-FM radio personality Tony Rugero will be the guest speaker.

Siragusa met with Gov. Walker Wednesday in Springfield and said afterward the governor plans to act on the legislation today. But Siragusa said he did not know whether Walker would sign or veto the bill.

The bill is supported by major race tracks, because it would increase income to both track operators and horsemen and establish horse racing schedules for a three-year period.

Race track proprietors, including Arlington Park Race Track's president Jack Loomis, have complained about the annual scramble for racing dates and uncertainty over the length of the racing season.

Until the dates are announced in January by the racing board, track managers do not know when they will be allowed to open or how long they will be in business, Loomis said.

SNOOPY LOVES STEVE, just like Snoopy loves Charlie Brown. Steve Camilliere, 18, and his family in Schaumburg discovered a Snoopy in their midst when the family beagle gave birth

Family's got a problem —what to do with Snoopy

by TONI GINETTI

Hey, Charlie Brown, Snoopy is in Schaumburg!

Well, he's not exactly your Beagle. But he's a dead ringer for the World War I Flying Ace, and his masters have thought enough of him and your canine shortstop to christen their pup "Snoopy."

You see, Snoopy Junior is one of six puppies blessed to the James Camilliere family Beagle about nine weeks ago. For some reason the little guy seemed special, and the family figured out why when the pup started to grow.

He looks just like the Snoopy of Peanuts cartoon fame.

"WE COULD TELL from when he was born, but his nose was a little pushed in the way they are, and we had to wait until he grew a little," Mrs. Camilliere said.

Having Snoopy in your home, it's only natural to share the news with his "family," so the Camillieres wrote to Peanuts' creator Charles Schulz about their pooch.

"We had a hard time getting his address, but we finally got it from the Rival Dog Food Co. (which uses the Peanuts' characters in advertising)," she said.

Schulz replied to the family this week, saying he planned to keep photos of the Camillieres' Snoopy in his family album.

WITH A CELEBRITY in their ranks, the Camilliere brood, including Steve, 18; Jim, 16, and Jeff, 11, have felt a bit special. There's only one problem now, though. The family hasn't decided if Snoopy will stay with the Camillieres or get a new home like his litter mates.

"We've given away four already and we're down to two," Mrs. Camilliere said. How does she think the family, particularly youngest son, Jeff, whom she describes as "a real Snoopy fan," will react if the pup gets a new home?

"How does any child feel about giving away an animal?" Good grief.

2nd spraying for mosquitos nearing an end

by JERRY THOMAS

Malathion misting to kill mosquitos continues this week in Elk Grove Village as the public works department and the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District join in a cooperative spraying program.

Spraying crews have covered every industrial and residential street in the village during the first sweep of the community last week and are completing the second Malathion spraying this week.

Joseph Tomko of the village public works department said the village uses two misting machines for airborne-mosquito control and also has undertaken a larvacide control program in an effort to rid the community of mosquitos.

TOMKO SAID THE encephalitis scare is responsible for the department receiving many phone requests to have an area sprayed. Encephalitis (sleeping sickness) is spread by mosquitos which have bitten infected birds.

"Yet, our mosquito count shows very few mosquitos in the Elk Grove Village area and normally we would not even be spraying at this time of the year," he said.

Tomko said the village has been alternating with the district during the last few weeks in an attempt to have either village or district misters on the streets every night.

The village uses three gallons of Malathion to each 100 gallons of water in the misting machine to fog an area. The mist is not harmful to plants or animals and only is effective if it strikes airborne mosquitos, said Tomko.

HARVEY GOEDDEKE, public works foreman, said the district is expected to spray next week, but village officials are undecided on another cycle of spraying.

"The weather will be the deciding factor," said Goeddeke.

"It will take several frosts to kill most of the mosquitos, and in the meantime, with the village supplementing the emergency district program, I believe we have the mosquito population in good control," he said.

A 3 PER CENT solution of Malathion is mixed with water as Elk Grove Village public works department crews ready misting machines used to fog for mosquitos.

Here Carl Johnson pours the Malathion into the mixing tanks as Joe Tomko prepares the machine for street spraying.

2 banks to cash Dist. 59 teachers' notes Friday

by DOROTHY OLIVER

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 teachers will be able to cash the special security notes being issued by the district at two banks Friday.

Mount Prospect State Bank, which is issuing the notes instead of regular paychecks, is working out an arrangement so teachers who are customers of the Bank of Elk Grove can cash the notes at that bank.

Dist. 59 teachers will be paid through teachers' orders, a type of promissory note, for six pay periods, beginning Friday. The Dist. 59 board approved issuing $1.5 million in teachers' orders to pay salaries because of an anticipated $1.5 million budget deficit this year.

James Lancaster, president of the Bank of Elk Grove, said Wednesday he has received a "verbal commitment" from Mount Prospect State Bank officials that they would be able to cash the notes.

"WE WILL ONLY be able to handle items on behalf of the customers of our bank," Lancaster said. "I would guess that right now we have in the neighborhood of 100 teachers with accounts here."

Richard Padula, president of Mount Prospect State Bank, said talks with Lancaster should be completed by Thursday so the Bank of Elk Grove can process the teachers' orders. Padula said the orders are not handled like regular paychecks by banks and therefore cannot be cashed at every bank.

"This is script-in effect," Padula said. "The bank clearing system that is used for checks is not available for teachers' orders." Padula said the legal procedure for cashing the orders is to take them to the bank which originally issued them. He said special arrangements with the Bank of Elk Grove will be made, but no other bank has contacted him to become a collection point.

PADULA DISAGREED with a comment made Tuesday by the president of the Dist. 59 teachers' union that the bank is not making any special provisions to give teachers more time to cash the notes and that it is trying to get more customers by offering checking accounts to the teachers.

"The bank is taking every precaution to make sure everyone is accommodated. We are still working with our tellers on setting up how this will be handled," he said.

"The thing that I'm most concerned about is her (union president Alma Parrish) statement that the bank is insisting teachers open an account here. It's not unusual for a bank to offer its most convenient service to people. If a teacher had a checking account here, it would be most convenient for them to simply deposit the teachers' order directly into their account."

"We are not trying to capitalize on the financial situation in Dist. 59. This bank has been very responsive to the urgent financial needs of the district," Padula said.

Teachers vote Friday on pact

by KATHERINE BOYCE

High School Dist. 211 teachers will vote Friday on a two-year contract calling for salary increases of about 10.55 per cent this year and 12.35 per cent next year.

The agreement, reached Monday, has received the support of the teachers' negotiating team and the governing board of the Dist. 211 teachers' union.

George Stewart, president of the association, said teachers will attend meetings today in each of the district's schools and will vote to accept or reject the contract during lunch hour Friday.

The contract calls for a raise in the base salary of 5.9 per cent this year from $9,850 to $10,255 and an increase of 7.6 per cent next year to a base salary of $11,000. The increase is in addition to the annual increase of 4.75 per cent given to teachers for an additional year of experience.

THE AGREEMENT eliminates across-the-board salary increases proposed by the board of education. The board had offered a base salary of $10,000 this year, plus $300 and $400 across-the-board increases for teachers at the lower end of the schedule and $400 for teachers at the top of the schedule. Next year, the base was to be raised to $10,350, plus $250 and $350 increases.

Teachers had been asking for a $10,100 base the first year and a $10,400 base the second year, with $300 and $400 across-the-board increases.

Stewart said teachers asked the across-the-board increases be incorporated into the base salary. He said the negotiating team felt the across-the-board increases would be difficult to manage and would present a problem "as far as negotiations in the future." Negotiators normally use the base salary as a starting point on which both sides base their salary requests.

The agreement represents a compromise on salary. Teachers would receive less total dollars than the board's original offer for this year, but next year's figure would be higher than the board's offer.

THE CONTRACT also includes:

- Pay for teachers' chaperone duty.

- Long-term disability benefits for teachers. After 180 days of sick leave, teachers would receive 60 per cent of their base salary up to $1,500 per month.

- Leave from school for officers of the association who wish to attend committee meetings of the Illinois Education Association, the statewide teachers union of which Dist. 211 is a member.

- Payroll deduction of association union dues.

- A maternity leave clause to conform to recent court rulings, giving pregnant teachers the option of taking a long-term leave of absence, without pay, or a short-term sick leave, with pay.

- A $215 annual increase in pay for media chairman in the school libraries.

- A clause giving administrators the right to appoint teachers to sponsor student activity clubs.

- A regrouping of coaching salaries so that men and women coaches are paid on the same salary schedule. Women's sports were placed in a category with clubs and activities but will now become part of athletics.

Dist. 54 meeting on text books today

Parents and teachers will meet tonight with members of the board of education in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 to discuss textbook selection policies.

Last year, the board formed a committee to develop a policy for textbook selection, hoping to eliminate some of the problems which arose when textbooks were adopted for the current school year. The instructional materials committee gave suggested guidelines to the board last month and set tonight's meeting to hear teacher and parent reaction.

Parents and teachers have been sent notices of the meeting, and copies of the committee report are available at each of the district's schools. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the learning center of Keller Junior High School, 820 Bode Rd.,

Schaumburg.

The committee has suggested the board receive the following information before purchasing a textbook or series of books:

- A reason for needing the next text, including a critique of current books, an assessment of test scores under old materials and a list of problems with old materials which need to

Parks discuss flood problems

Discussion of potential stormwater problems from a multi-family development proposed north of Lindbergh Park is scheduled for today's 8 p.m. meeting of the Elk Grove Park District Board.

The meeting will be at the park office, 499 Blesterfield Rd., Elk Grove Village.

The proposed development, known as the Roundtree property, lies west of West Glenn Trail and north of Blesterfield Road extended. The original owner, at time of annexation to the village, was Gerald DeBruyne.

The developers have asked the park district if part of the project's land dedication, which is to be used for a park, can be used as part of the project's dry retention area.

The park board has expressed concern over this and also has asked how the development will affect storm water running onto Lindbergh Park.

Probe of RTA subsidies urged

by ANNE SLAVICEK

The seven commuter railroads serving the Chicago metropolitan area urged the federal government Wednesday to investigate the Regional Transportation Authority's subsidy policies.

The railroads asked the U.S. Urban Mass Transportation Administration to "immediately commence a review of the RTA's allocations of funds among types of carriers and portions of the RTA's six-county region."

The request was contained in a letter to the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission, which gave its approval Wednesday to an RTA request for $50.5 million in operating subsidies for local transit lines.

The approval came after the commission's planning committee agreed that the RTA should be required to provide subsidies "on an equitable basis" to transit systems throughout the Chicago area.

THE RTA has been criticized by suburban officials for giving the bulk of its subsidies to the Chicago Transit Authority.

The committee also required the RTA to inform NIPIC of its subsidy policies and the amounts of any subsidies it provides to transit systems. NIPIC staff members had urged the two requirements to ensure "consistency with regional planning objectives."

The letter from the railroads, signed by D. H. King, vice president of Burlington Northern Inc., also asked the federal government to:

- Require that subsidies after July 1, 1976 be weighted in favor of the commuter railroads to make up for the "inequitable" allocation of funds during the last two years.

- Examine RTA subsidy policies to determine if they are consistent with federal policy and federal subsidies to the railroads for commuter cars and locomotives.

- Require the RTA to release promptly its railroad subsidy plan for the current fiscal year.

The letter dated Wednesday, will be forwarded to the federal mass transportation administration along with comments from suburban officials urging changes in RTA subsidy policies to give more funds to the suburbs.

The RTA will not provide funds to meet all the operating deficits of mass transit lines unless the lines can pay at least 65 per cent of their expenses through fares. Commuter railroads are reimbursed by the RTA for 75 per cent of their operating deficits.

RTA Chairman Milton Pikarsky, who is also a member of NIPIC, succeeded Wednesday in getting the planning committee to drop a section of its report to the federal agency that was critical of current RTA spending policies.

The section said in part:

"The commission is concerned with the issue of equitable funding levels and potential effects on regional planning objectives as well as the concerns expressed by many local governments of the potentially negative consequences resulting from the present RTA policy."

PIKARSKY said the $50.5 million is only one-third of the total subsidies the RTA will hand out to bus, rail and rapid transit lines during fiscal 1976.

The money is sought specifically for subsidies to bus lines, including the Chicago Transit Authority and the North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTRAN).

NORTRAN Executive Director Joseph DiJohn said the district would endorse the RTA fund request if the RTA would promise to meet 100 per cent of NORTRAN's deficits.

Pikarsky refused to make such a promise at the meeting. He said NORTRAN would be foolish to oppose the application for federal grants for its own subsidies.

The other railroads joining in the letter were the Milwaukee Road, the Chicago and North Western Ry., the Illinois Central-Gulf R.R., the Norfolk and Western Ry., The Rock Island Line and the Chicago South Shore and South Bend R.R.

PAINTING A MOCK STREET. William Kerschke and Dave Cupel, a volunteer from Forest View High School, paint the bicycle safety course at Disney Park, Elk Grove Village. Some 7,000 Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 students will be taught on the course this school year. The program begins Monday and is being sponsored by the Elk Grove Park District and Elk Grove Township.

To teach safety

Bike program starts Monday

The newly expanded Elk Grove Township-Elk Grove Park District cooperative bike-safety program will begin operating Monday out of Lively Junior High School and Disney Park.

An estimated 2,100 children from Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 schools will attend bike-safety sessions this fall, with another 4,900 attending next spring.

The first schools to participate in the program, for kindergarten through fifth grades, will be Grant Wood and Clearmont, Elk Grove Village; Devonshire and High Ridge Knolls, Des Plaines; Juliette Low, Arlington Heights, and Robert Frost, Mount Prospect.

THE TRAINING course is being painted this week on a section of parking lot at Disney Park, west of Lively Junior High School, 999 Leicester Rd. The class sessions will be in the school's cafeteria.

In the training course, children will be able to ride 16 bicycles donated Tuesday by Schwinn Sales Midwest, and 16 pedal cars, which will be used to simulate car traffic. The pedal cars have been ordered.

Allen Singer, president of Schwinn Sales Midwest, said he was happy to see the program in operation and so successful. The 20-inch bikes were donated, he said, because "we are part of the community, and we are doing a community service."

Children will be transported by bus to Lively for the bike training sessions said Elizabeth Coleman, instructor for the program. She said no more than 25 to 30 children would be instructed at any one time.

THE CLASSROOM work will include films, in addition to safety and rules of the road instruction. Outside on the course, the children will be able to practice what they have learned in class. The course includes street signs, lane markers and other features of actual road conditions.

Upon completion of the course, each student will be given a certificate, except for those in the fifth grade who will receive patches, she said. The program will be repeated each year, with class material geared at each grade level.

A pilot bike-safety program for 300 Elk Grove Village children from Ridge and Queen of the Rosary schools was conducted last spring with good results park district and township officials said. There was a temporary training course at Queen of the Rosary.

The township has underwritten the cost of the cooperative program with the eventual goal of providing bike-safety instruction for all children within the township, including school districts 54 and 57.

Zoning changes draw opposition

by JERRY THOMAS

Elk Grove Township property owners in the extreme northern portion of the township made it clear to County Zoning Board members Wednesday they wanted neither commercial nor multi-family rezoning of the single-family housing area.

Objections to the proposed zoning change came during one of several public hearings held on a proposed county zoning map, which indicated four changes for Elk Grove Township.

Property owners objecting to the change from single to multi-family zoning live mostly east of Arlington Heights Road in an area bounded on the north by Cypress Street and by Lincoln Avenue on the south.

THAT PORTION OF unincorporated area between Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect is being proposed by county zoning consultants for multi-family zoning.

Properties along Arlington Heights Road further south of Lincoln to Ill. Rte. 58 are proposed for office transitional.

Several residents told the zoning board they would prefer the restrictive commercial development as the best of two evils, rather than multi-family development of their area.

Alex Selth, chairman of the zoning board, assured about 25 property owners and officials of several township communities attending the hearing that the board would take their opinions into consideration when it reviewed the consultants' recommendations.

Another area slated for a zoning change is the northern portion of the Magnus Farm, just south of Central Road, which is proposed for multi-family development. Single-family housing is proposed further north. The site is undeveloped and a portion zoned institutional.

PEOPLE PRESENT AT the hearing were told their individual questions would be answered by letter in several weeks if they would return questionnaires distributed that night.

They were encouraged by Selth to inspect the maps on display, showing present usage and proposed changes, or to come to the civic center to review them.

Selth added the county is interested in following municipal plans as close as possible, and he also urged residents to tell the county what zoning they want.

A second series of hearings will be held in November on the revised maps.

Mental health center opens branch

The Schaumburg branch office of the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center opened this week.

Four full-time and three part-time therapists will work out of the new facility, 1155 Tower Rd. in the Tower Industrial Park, said Jordan Rosen, executive director of the center.

The branch office, for which a five-year lease has been signed, has seven counseling rooms and a large room for group therapy sessions.

Approximately two-fifths of the center's 700 patients are from Schaumburg Township, and the new facility will enable the center to serve them more easily, Rosen said.

ROSEN SAID THE Schaumburg branch therapists would be assigned mostly Schaumburg Township residents as new cases, although they would continue to serve Elk Grove Township residents who already are on their caseloads.

Persons seeking help from the center for the first time or who are not now receiving help from the center should contact the main office first, however. The main office is at 700 Blesterfield Rd., Elk Grove Village. The telephone number is 593-6800.

Plans for a large permanent facility to house all of the center's facilities still are in the preliminary stage, with a fund-raising drive set to begin soon. Elk Grove Village has donated two acres west of Ill. Rte. 53 for a proposed $600,000 building. Construction is not scheduled for several years.

- How well the materials meet the district's goals.
- How well the series develops skills and concepts in the subject area.
- Flexibility of the materials for a variety of classroom situations.
- How well the materials stimulate learning and promote a good attitude toward learning.
- Whether the materials are free of information reflecting adversely on people because of their race, color, sex, national origin, religious beliefs, age of lifestyle.

Plan commission chief McGrenera resigns job

Elk Grove Village Plan Commission Chairman Richard McGrenera has resigned. He cited the pressing demands of his job as the reason for his resignation.

McGrenera is division manager for Fischer-Calo, a chemical solvents firm.

He has served as an elected or appointed official for the village in several capacities for the last 15 years.

His service to the community began when he was appointed a member of the joint zoning board of appeals and plan commission in 1961.

Later that year, when it was split into a board of appeals and a plan commission, McGrenera was appointed to the commission.

He served until his election as a village trustee in 1967. At the end of that term, he ran and was elected as village clerk, a post he held until the end of the term in 1973. He decided not to seek reelection.

He accepted an appointment to the plan commission in 1973 and has served as a member or chairman since that time.

Village Pres. Charles Zetek is expected to appoint a new chairman this month.

McGrenera said he felt it was unfair to retain his chairmanship of the plan commission since he was not able to give the position enough of his time.

Reports burglary, nabbed by cops

Michael Dirlinger went to Hoffman Estates police to report a burglary Tuesday night, but he was arrested when police discovered he was wanted by Rolling Meadows police for deceptive practice.

Dirlinger, 23, was in the process of moving from his home at 178 Jamison Ln., Hoffman Estates, to his new one at 7500 Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines, when he noticed a burglar had taken 24 bottles of red wine from his home, police said.

Dirlinger was turned over to Rolling Meadows police. Bond has been set at $2,000.

Wickes paid off $50,000: attorney

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

A former official of the County Zoning Board told a Wickes Inc. representative it would cost the firm "50 big ones — $50,000" in bribes to get zoning for a furniture store in Wheeling, an assistant U.S. attorney said Wednesday.

The statement came at the beginning of the extortion trial of Ira Colitz, a former member of the County Zoning Board, and Nicholas Phillips, a land planner for the board.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Steven Kadison said during opening comments in the Phillips-Colitz trial that Colitz came up with the price tag in late 1971. A month earlier Wickes consultant Edward S. Sheldon met Colitz at a cocktail party, Kadison said, and complained about delays in obtaining zoning for the Wheeling store.

"COLITZ TOLD him that 'the Greek runs Wheeling — James Stavros. Let me check around.'"

Edward Sheldon, the architect of Wickes furniture warehouse plans in the Chicago area, will be the first government witness when testimony in the trial begins at 9:30 a.m. today before U.S. District Court Judge Prentice Marshall in Chicago.

Colitz and Phillips are charged with conspiracy and with extorting $50,000 from Wickes to influence village zoning. Stavros is serving a federal prison term in connection with other Wheeling zoning shakedowns.

The payoff was arranged by Colitz and Willard Brown Jr. of Palatine, a senior vice president of Arthur Rubloff & Co. in December 1971, Kadison said, after two applications for zoning by Wickes were denied by village officials. Brown has received immunity from prosecution to testify in the trial.

THE RUBLOFF FIRM was hired by Wickes to purchase property for furniture warehouse stores in Wheeling, Itasca and Harvey.

Kadison told the court that Wickes financed the payoff with a $50,000 check on Dec. 30, 1971; that Brown exchanged the Wickes check for a check from the Rubloff firm and then obtained $50,000 in cash from the Harris Bank for the payoff.

The money was delivered to Phillips in a cocktail lounge at the Lake Shore Holiday Inn in Chicago about 3 p.m. Dec. 30, 1971, Kadison said.

Details of the payoff meeting were revealed Wednesday during a pretrial hearing on a motion to dismiss a photographic identification by Brown of Phillips as the payoff bagman.

PHILLIPS' ATTORNEY, Louis Carbonaro, called Brown as a defense witness during the pretrial hearing in an attempt to show the identification was improper.

Brown was shown photographs of seven males, including Phillips, in fall, 1973, after describing the bagman as "a young man, about 6 feet 2 inches, thin, with dark hair . . . maybe he was of Greek or Italian extraction."

Phillips is a cousin of Stavros. Brown said Wednesday that he "immediately picked him (Phillips) out of the stack (of photographs) and said 'That's the man.'"

USE OF THE PHOTOS was not "unreasonably suggestive," Marshall said, "not suggestive to cause Mr. Brown to identify Phillips."

During testimony Wednesday, which probably will be repeated when Brown appears as prosecution witness this week, Brown described the payoff:

"I was alone . . . we met in the lobby . . . he immediately walked up to me . . . he asked me if I was Bill Brown Jr. of Arthur Rubloff & Co. I said 'yes' . . . he suggested we retire to the cocktail lounge."

During the five-minute meeting, Brown said he handed two envelopes to Phillips. "I asked him whether he wanted to count what was inside. He said, 'No, I trust you,'" Brown said.

BROWN THEN returned to Colitz' Chicago office to report that the payoff had been completed.

"Things suddenly began to move quickly in Wheeling" for the Wickes rezoning, Kadison said during his opening statement.

Defense attorney Harvey Silts, who represents Colitz, told Marshall in an opening statement that federal prosecutors "must prove that both Phillips and Colitz were able to and did control actions of the Village of Wheeling. The government said it doesn't know how this was done. It is the defense position that the government will not bear the burden of its proof."

PHILLIPS, 40, is a land planner for the County Zoning Board.

Colitz, 59, of Chicago, a former state representative, was a member of the County Zoning Board but resigned after his indictment. He is accused of organizing the alleged Wickes shakedown scheme.

Kadison said Wickes succumbed to the extortion because it feared economic harm if the Wheeling store opening was delayed.

Year-round racing bill awaits Walker's signature

by KURT BAER

Gov. Dan Walker is expected to act today on a bill which would legalize thoroughbred racing in Illinois year-round, including Sundays. But even if the bill becomes law, communities like Arlington Heights would still have the power to deny Sunday racing.

If Walker fails to act, the bill will become law automatically at midnight today.

The sweeping new racing legislation is opposed by the Illinois Racing Board and its chairman, Anthony Scariano, principally because it repeals the ban on political contributions from race track operators.

Charles Siragusa, chairman of the Illinois Legislative Investigating Commission and a strong backer of the bill, said Wednesday municipalities would have an option on Sunday racing.

"There can be no Sunday racing unless a local ordinance is approved, permitting the track to operate," he said.

ACCORDING TO THE bill, Sunday racing can be granted either by local ordinance or referendum.

Siragusa met with Gov. Walker Wednesday in Springfield and said afterward the governor plans to act on the legislation today. But Siragusa said he did not know whether Walker would sign or veto the bill.

The bill is supported by major race tracks, because it would increase income to both track operators and horsemen and establish horse racing schedules for a three-year period.

Race track proprietors, including Arlington Park Race Track's president Jack Loomer, have complained about the annual scramble for racing dates and uncertainty over the length of the racing season.

Until the dates are announced in January by the racing board, track managers do not know when they will be allowed to open or how long they will be in business, Loomer has said.

Correction

Elk Grove Village Trustees Edward Kenna and Ronald Chernick Tuesday approved a $175 expenditure to send six members of the board of health to a Nov. 16-20 health convention in Chicago.

The Herald incorrectly reported Wednesday that the vote voted against that convention expense.

Kenna and Chernick did vote against paying another $634 convention registration, transportation and lodging bill for two public works employees to attend the American Public Works conference in New Orleans.

Teachers to vote Friday on contract

by KATHLEEN BOYCE

High School Dist. 211 teachers will vote Friday on a two-year contract calling for salary increases of about 10.65 per cent this year and 12.35 per cent next year.

The agreement, reached Monday, has received the support of the teachers' negotiating team and the governing board of the Dist. 211 teachers' union.

George Stewart, president of the association, said teachers will attend meetings today in each of the district's schools and will vote to accept or reject the contract during lunch hour Friday.

The contract calls for a raise in the base salary of 5.9 per cent this year from $9,650 to $10,255 and an increase of 7.6 per cent next year to a base salary of $11,000. The increase is in addition to the annual increase of 4.75 per cent given to teachers for an additional year of experience.

THE AGREEMENT eliminates across-the-board salary increases proposed by the board of education. The board had offered a base salary of $10,000 this year, plus $300 and $400 across-the-board increases for teachers at the lower end of the schedule and $400 for teachers at the top of the schedule. Next year, the base was to be raised to $10,350, plus $250 and $350 increases.

Teachers had been asking for a $10,100 base the first year and a $10,400 base the second year, with $300 and $400 across-the-board increases.

Stewart said teachers asked the across-the-board increases be incorporated into the base salary. He said the negotiating team felt the across-the-board increases would be difficult to manage and would present a problem "as far as negotiations in the future." Negotiators normally use the base salary as a starting point on which both sides base their salary requests.

The agreement represents a compromise on salary. Teachers would receive less total dollars than the boards original offer for this year, but next year's figure would be higher than the board's offer.

THE CONTRACT also includes:

- Pay for teachers' chaperone duty.

- Long-term disability benefits for teachers. After 100 days of sick leave, teachers would receive 60 per cent of their base salary up to $1,500 per month.

- Leave from school for officers of the association who wish to attend committee meetings of the Illinois Education Association, the statewide teachers union of which Dist. 211 is a member.

- Payroll deduction of association union dues.

- A maternity leave clause to conform to recent court rulings, giving pregnant teachers the option of taking a long-term leave of absence, without pay, or a short-term sick leave, with pay.

- A $215 annual increase in pay for media chairman in the school libraries.

- A clause giving administrators the right to appoint teachers to sponsor student activity clubs.

- A regrouping of coaching salaries so that men and women coaches are paid on the same salary schedule. Women's sports were placed in a category with clubs and activities but will now become part of athletics.

Builder, village near accord in zoning case

by TONI GINETTI

Attorneys for both sides in the long-standing lawsuit against Hoffman Estates by Kaufman and Broad Homes Inc. are reportedly near a settlement proposal to present for approval.

Village Atty. Edward Hofert late Tuesday said he is preparing a new draft of an agreement to present to village officials, possibly at the next village board meeting scheduled Monday.

Donald Storino, attorney for K&B, Wednesday confirmed the latest development, adding he is "confident" the final settlement of the litigation will come shortly.

THE K&B SUIT against the village is one of two actions which has been pending for more than a year in the wake of the 1973 convictions of six former village officials on bribery charges in connection with the 1968 zoning of K&B's Barrington Square development.

The village refused in June of 1974 to issue more building permits for the Barrington Square development on Higgins and Barrington roads because of the allegedly obtained zoning. K&B filed suit against the village because of the action.

The village had threatened a count-suit which would seek money from K&B to compensate for what the village charged were "unfair profits" earned by the company from Barrington ton Square sales, but that suit has not been filed.

A hearing before Circuit Court Judge Walter P. Dalt had been scheduled Wednesday, but both sides requested another continuance on the matter as settlement negotiations continue.

HOFERT and Storino declined to comment on terms of the settlement, but reportedly they include a $100,000 cash payment to the village, $250,000 in improvements to the Barrington Square complex and the dedication of 12.5 acres of K&B-owned land to the village park district in exchange for village building permits.

"We're trying to negotiate a settlement," Storino said. "Hopefully, it will be resolved by the end of the month. I'm very confident that we'll be able to settle the matter."

Storino conceded the negotiations "have taken a long time, but the nature of the negotiations were such that it had to take a long time."

"I think in six weeks it will be washed out," he added. "At least I'm hopeful it will be settled by then."

A related court matter, filed by the Barrington Square Improvement Assn. against K&B, has reached a settlement which is awaiting court approval. That suit by the homeowners charged K&B inflated the sale price of their units to pay for the bribes to village officials.

Family's got a problem —what to do with Snoopy

by TONI GINETTI

Hey, Charlie Brown, Snoopy is in Schaumburg!

Well, he's not exactly your Beagle. But he's a dead ringer for the World War I Flying Ace, and his masters have thought enough of him and your canine shortstop to christen their pup "Snoopy."

You see, Snoopy Junior is one of six puppies blessed to the James Camilliere family Beagle about nine weeks ago. For some reason the little guy seemed special, and the family figured out why when the pup started to grow.

He looks just like the Snoopy of Peanuts cartoon fame.

"WE COULD TELL from when he was born, but his nose was a little pushed in the way they are, and we had to wait until he grew a little," Mrs. Camilliere said.

Having Snoopy in your home, it's only natural to share the news with his "family," so the Camillieres wrote to Peanuts' creator Charles Schulz about their pooch.

"We had a hard time getting his address, but we finally got it from the Rival Dog Food Co. (which uses the Peanuts' characters in advertising)," she said.

Schulz replied to the family this week, saying he planned to keep photos of the Camillieres' Snoopy in his family album.

WITH A CELEBRITY in their ranks, the Camilliere brood, including Steve, 18; Jim, 16, and Jeff, 11, have felt a bit special. There's only one problem now, though. The family hasn't decided if Snoopy will stay with the Camillieres or get a new home like his litter mates.

"We've given away four already and we're down to two," Mrs. Camilliere said. How does she think the family, particularly youngest son, Jeff, whom she describes as "a real Snoopy fan," will react if the pup gets a new home?

"How does any child feel about giving away an animal?"

Good grief.

by ANNE SLAVICEK

The seven commuter railroads serving the Chicago metropolitan area urged the federal government Wednesday to investigate the Regional Transportation Authority's subsidy policies.

The railroads asked the U.S. Urban Mass Transportation Administration to "immediately commence a review of the RTA's allocations of funds among types of carriers and portions of the RTA's six-county region."

The request was contained in a letter to the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission, which gave its approval Wednesday to an RTA request for $50.5 million in operating subsidies for local transit lines.

The approval came after the commission's planning committee agreed that the RTA should be required to provide subsidies "on an equitable basis" to transit systems throughout the Chicago area.

THE RTA has been criticized by suburban officials for giving the bulk of its subsidies to the Chicago Transit Authority.

The committee also required the RTA to inform NIPCA of its subsidy policies and the amounts of any subsidies it provides to transit systems. NIPCA staff members had urged the two requirements to ensure "consistency with regional planning objectives."

The letter from the railroads, signed by D. H. King, vice president of Burlington Northern Inc., also asked the federal government to:

- Require that subsidies after July 1, 1976 be weighted in favor of the commuter railroads to make up for the "inequitable" allocation of funds during the last two years.

- Examine RTA subsidy policies to determine if they are consistent with federal policy and federal subsidies to the railroads for commuter cars and locomotives.

- Require the RTA to release promptly its railroad subsidy plan for the current fiscal year.

The letter dated Wednesday, will be forwarded to the federal mass transportation administration along with comments from suburban officials urging changes in RTA subsidy policies to give more funds to the suburbs.

The RTA will not provide funds to meet all the operating deficits of mass transit lines unless the lines can pay at least 65 per cent of their expenses through fares. Commuter railroads are reimbursed by the RTA for 75 per cent of their operating deficits.

RTA Chairman Milton Pikarsky, who is also a member of NIPCA, succeeded Wednesday in getting the planning committee to drop a section of its report to the federal agency that was critical of current RTA spending policies.

The section said in part:

"The commission is concerned with the issue of equitable funding levels and potential effects on regional planning objectives as well as the concerns expressed by many local governments of the potentially negative consequences resulting from the present RTA policy."

PIKARSKY said the $50.5 million is only one-third of the total subsidies the RTA will hand out to bus, rail and rapid transit lines during fiscal 1976.

The money is sought specifically for subsidies to bus lines, including the Chicago Transit Authority and the North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTTRAN).

NORTTRAN Executive Director Joseph DiJohn said the district would endorse the RTA fund request if the RTA would promise to meet 100 per cent of NORTTRAN's deficits.

Pikarsky refused to make such a promise at the meeting. He said NORTTRAN would be foolish to oppose the application for federal grants for its own subsidies.

The other railroads joining in the letter were the Milwaukee Road, the Chicago and North Western Ry., the Illinois Central-Gulf R.R., the Norfolk and Western Ry., the Rock Island Line and the Chicago South Shore and South Bend R.R.

Green thumb —huge harvest

The end of summer starts the traditional harvest season and all the garden work of the past three months pays off in ripe tomatoes, beans and other vegetables.

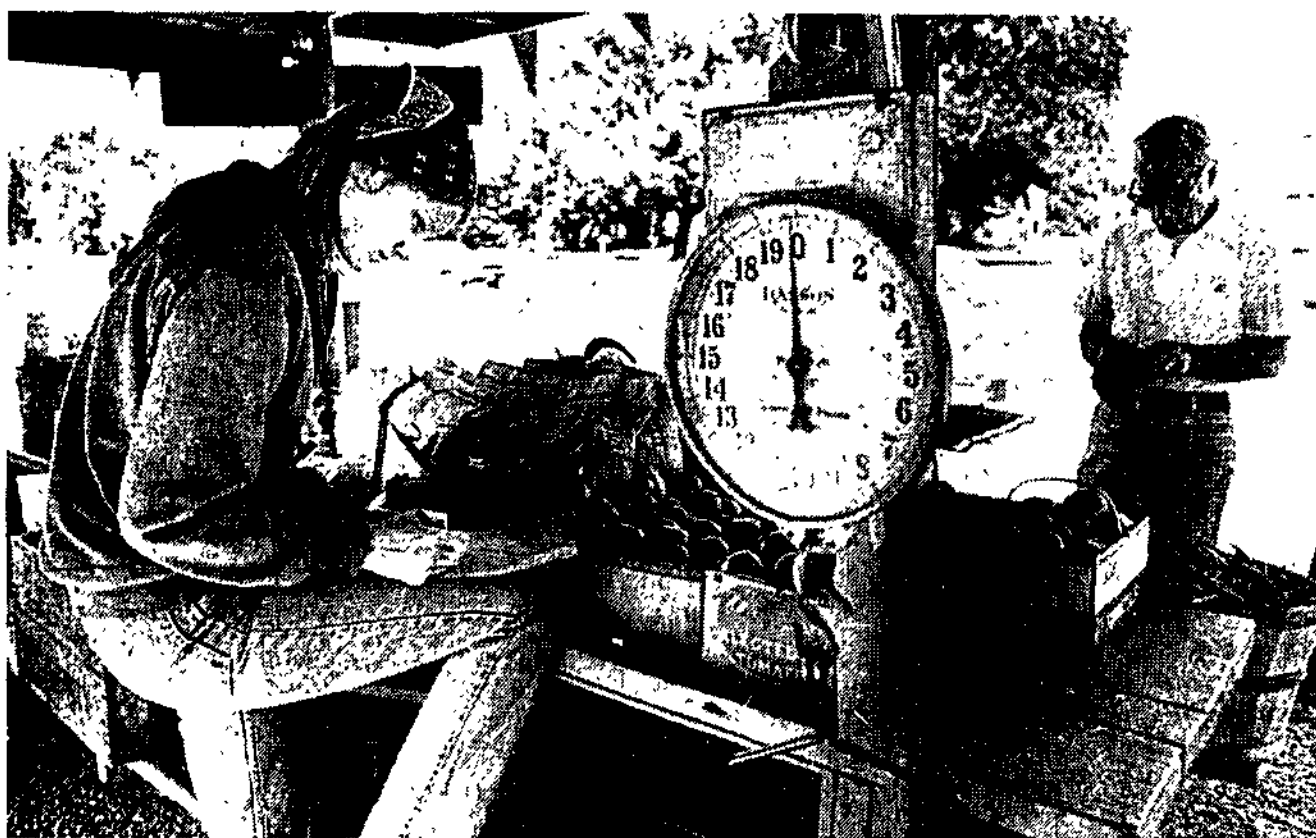

Jane Koeppen, 18, a graduate of Wheeling High School, developed a green thumb this summer working at a vegetable stand along Dundee Road in Buffalo Grove, which is now selling home grown vegetables to passing motorists.

Jane won't be working much longer at the vegetable stand, however, for when the vegetables are gone she plans to enroll in Harper College where she will take up secretarial courses.

Wickes shaken down for $50,000, lawyer tells court

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

A former official of the County Zoning Board told a Wickes Inc. representative it would cost the firm "50 big ones — $50,000" in bribes to get zoning for a furniture store in Wheeling, an assistant U.S. attorney said Wednesday.

The statement came at the beginning of the extortion trial of Ira Colitz, a former member of the County Zoning Board, and Nicholas Phillips, a land planner for the board.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Steven Kadison said during opening comments in the Phillips-Colitz trial that Colitz came up with the price tag in late 1971. A month earlier Wickes consultant Edward S. Sheldon met Colitz at a cocktail party, Kadison said, and complained about delays in obtaining zoning for the Wheeling store.

"COLITZ TOLD him that 'the Greek runs Wheeling — James Stavros. Let me check around.'"

Edward Sheldon, the architect of Wickes furniture warehouse plans in the Chicago area, will be the first government witness when testimony in the trial begins at 9:30 a.m. today before U.S. District Judge Prentice Marshall in Chicago.

Colitz and Phillips are charged with conspiracy and with extorting $50,000 from Wickes to influence village zoning. Stavros is serving a federal prison term in connection with other Wheeling zoning shake-downs.

The payoff was arranged by Colitz and Willard Brown Jr. of Palatine, a senior vice president of Arthur Rubloff & Co. In December 1971, Kadison said, after two applications for zoning by Wickes were denied by village officials, Brown has received immunity from prosecution to testify in the trial.

trial.

THE RUBLOFF FIRM was hired by Wickes to purchase property for furniture warehouse stores in Wheeling, Itasca and Harvey.

Kadison told the court that Wickes financed the payoff with a $50,000 check on Dec. 30, 1971; that Brown exchanged the Wickes check for a check from the Rubloff firm and then obtained $50,000 in cash from the Harris Bank for the payoff.

The money was delivered to Phillips in a cocktail lounge at the Lake Shore Holiday Inn in Chicago about 3 p.m. Dec. 30, 1971, Kadison said.

Details of the payoff meeting were revealed Wednesday during a pretrial hearing on a motion to dismiss a photographic identification by Brown of Phillips as the payoff bagman.

PHILLIPS' ATTORNEY, Louis Carbone, called Brown as a defense witness during the pretrial hearing in an attempt to show the identification was improper.

Brown was shown photographs of seven males, including Phillips, in full, 1973, after describing the bagman as "a young man, about 6 feet 2 inches, thin, with dark hair . . . maybe he was of Greek or Italian extraction."

Phillips is a cousin of Stavros.

Brown said Wednesday that he "immediately picked him (Phillips) out of the stack (of photographs) and said 'That's the man.'"

USE OF THE PHOTOS was not "unreasonably suggestive," Marshall said, "not suggestive to cause Mr. Brown to identify Phillips."

During testimony Wednesday, which probably will be repeated when Brown appears as prosecution witness this week, Brown described the payoff:

"I was alone . . . we met in the lobby . . . he immediately walked up to me . . . he asked me if I was Bill Brown Jr. of Arthur Rubloff & Co. I said 'yes' . . . he suggested we retire to the cocktail lounge."

During the five-minute meeting, Brown said he handed two envelopes to Phillips. "I asked him whether he wanted to count what was inside. He said, 'No, I trust you,'" Brown said.

BROWN THEN returned to Colitz' Chicago office to report that the payoff had been completed.

"Things suddenly began to move quickly in Wheeling" for the Wickes rezoning, Kadison said during his opening statement.

Defense attorney Harvey Silets, who represents Colitz, told Marshall in an opening statement that federal prosecutors "must prove that both Phillips and Colitz were able to and did control actions of the Village of Wheeling. The government said it doesn't know how this was done. It is the defense position that the government will not bear the burden of its proof."

PHILLIPS, 40, is a land planner for the County Zoning Board. Colitz, 59, of Chicago, a former state representative, was a member of the County Zoning Board but resigned after his indictment. He is accused of organizing the alleged Wickes shake-down scheme.

Kadison said Wickes succumbed to the extortion because it feared economic harm if the Wheeling store opening was delayed.

Village board wrapup

Homeowners' arts, crafts fair OK'd

A temporary land-use variation which will allow members of Schaumburg Township South Unincorporated Homeowners Assn. to hold a two-day arts and crafts fair was approved by the village board this week.

The event is scheduled for Oct. 25 and 26 at Town Square Shopping Center, Roselle and Schaumburg roads, said Ray Rosenkoetter, 1500 Greenbriar Ln., who represents the association.

Rosenkoetter said 50 to 60 exhibitors are expected to display handcrafted items at the fair, adding commercial merchandise will not be offered for sale.

Proceeds, Rosenkoetter said, will be used for a Christmas party and spring picnic for 350 families who are members of the homeowners association.

Charity tag day Friday

Have A Heart Charities of Chicago has been granted village approval to hold a tag day Friday in Schaumburg.

Proceeds of the tag day will be used to support a children's home sponsored by the Have A Heart Charities board of directors, said spokeswoman Martha Dahlstrom, Des Plaines.

$2,000 Bicentennial budget

A $2,000 budget for Schaumburg's Bicentennial committee was approved by the village board this week.

Funds will be used to purchase commemorative Bicentennial decals for resale to interested Schaumburg residents and businesses, said Thomas Kosin, committee chairman.

Remaining money and profits from the proposed sale will be used to assist minor projects planned by Scout groups and other community organizations having insufficient funds to finance activities, said Trustee Raymond LeBeau.

LeBeau noted any money left in the Bicentennial committee treasury on Dec. 31, 1976, when the committee is dissolved, will revert to the village for use in similar community projects.

Proclamations honor groups

Proclamations recognizing groups which range from working women to conservationists were issued this week by Schaumburg Pres. Raymond Kessell.

Kessell has designated the month of November as Pioneer Woman's Month in the village at the request of the Women's Labor Zionist Organization of America, an international group.

In other action, Kessell recognized the week of Oct. 19 as the 11th Annual Chicago Law Enforcement Week, designated Sept. 27 as Hunting and Fishing Day at the request of the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry and set aside the week of Oct. 5 as Parent Teacher Association Membership week, at the suggestion of Schaumburg Area Council of Parent Teacher Associations.

County zoning maps examined

by PAT GERLACH

Revised county zoning maps showing proposed future use of nearly 4,000 acres of unincorporated land in Schaumburg Township were examined at a public hearing Wednesday by some 35 local residents, including officials of Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates.

The maps are part of a revised comprehensive county zoning plan prepared over the last two years by Rolf C. Campbell Associates, county planning consultants.

At the hearing, Campbell and County Zoning Board members urged citizens to comment on suggested changes before a final hearing to be scheduled in late October.

They added the plan is tentative and subject to County Board approval after a full series of public hearings.

THE REVISED PLAN calls for eight residential districts, ranging from one unit on five acres to a maximum of 29 units per acre in townhouse and apartment districts.

Also included are eight commercial, four industrial and two public-use land districts.

Schaumburg Trustee Alan Larson asked how conflicts in the county and village zoning maps could be resolved quickly after it was learned a 238-acre Golf Road site north of Woodfield Shopping Center was shown as unincorporated land. The property was annexed last year and zoned for the proposed $250 million Woodfield '76 metro center.

Also shown as unincorporated territory was one acre at Schaumburg and Springinguth roads annexed to the village and zoned for a gas station in 1959, along with a 20-acre site south of Schaumburg Road and east of Roselle Road recently taken over by Matanky and Associates from former owners Mor-Well Builders Inc.

"WE VERIFY THESE properties through records of annexation filed in the county recorder's office," Campbell said, suggesting the parcels may have been "annexed but not recorded" by the village.

Both the consultant and county zoning officials stressed they are "anxious" to work with municipal officials in clearing up any discrepancies in the maps.

Village Clerk Sandy Carsello later said the gas station property was recorded with the county on May 12, 1959, and the Woodfield '76 property was recorded May 5, 1975.

Mrs. Carsello said she currently is searching for village records on the Matanky (Mor-Well) land.

Other proposed county zoning changes call for a large project of townhouses, apartments and houses under a planned unit development zoning district the maps propose on about 500 acres north and south of Bode Road near Springinguth Road. The land is now being farmed by private owners, which include the Fred Volkening family and Mary Casey.

CAMPBELL SAID THE housing mix, which requires approval of a specific land plan prior to zoning, is being recommended for the large parcel because of "extremely bad soil conditions" in some areas.

Increased density also is called for on 40 acres north and south of Higgins Road owned by the Winkelhaake family, with the county proposing general residential zoning which would allow 17.4 units per acre. The site is now in a county single-family district.

Hoffman Estates Mgr. George Longmeyer said Wednesday he "was not shocked" by the proposed zonings.

"I haven't had a chance to study them that closely. Most of the land will eventually be annexed to either Schaumburg or Hoffman Estates anyway," Longmeyer said.

GEORGE J. PAVICH, the owner of land at the southeast corner of Irving Park Road and Long Avenue, told Alex Seith Jr., county zoning board president, he objects to proposed residential zoning on the land.

"The location is too noisy, traffic is too heavy and there's too much noise pollution for a residential project," Pavich said.

Campbell assured Pavich and other residents concerned about zoning changes he would "go out into the field and examine the property and then make a final decision."

Contracts for post office to be awarded next spring

Contracts for construction of Schaumburg's long-awaited post office are expected to be awarded late next spring, a U.S. postal official said Wednesday.

Chicago architects Wilton Becket and Associates have been selected for the 9.9-acre project northeast of Illinois Boulevard and Schaumburg Road, said Walter Dyer of the U.S. Postal Service.

Dyer said contracts should be awarded in "about eight months, with construction expected for completion approximately one year later."

HE SAID EARLIER cost estimates of $1.8 million "still stand" for the 42,000-square-foot facility.

News of the proposed construction timetable was furnished to the village board Tuesday by Village Mgr. John E. Coste, who said postal authorities contacted him by telephone to advise selection of an architectural firm for the project.

Earlier this year, village officials approved the sale of the Schaumburg Road site to the U.S. Postal Service for $1 and agreed to subdivide the original 19.3-acre site, deeding the second 9.4-acre parcel to the Schaumburg Park District.

Developer J. Emil Anderson and sons donated the site to the village, and it was proposed as the location for a branch hospital of Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center.

HOSPITAL officials later abandoned the site in favor of 40 acres at Schaumburg and Barrington roads, although branch hospitals were shelved later because of rapidly spiraling building costs.

The post office originally was planned on a portion of the village police station site just east of Schaumburg High School, but the location was changed after village officials feared there might be too much building coverage on the 13 acres.

Hospital officials decided to abandon the postal site because of poor soil conditions for construction, though postal authorities contend the land is suitable for the post office.

Dealer's car stolen in credit card fraud

Schaumburg police were investigating three car thefts Tuesday including one in which a man drove off with a car from Larry Paul Oldsmobile after renting it with a stolen credit card.

The man never returned the $4,720 vehicle to the auto dealership at 1230 E. Golf Rd. and has apparently left the area, police said.

Also reported stolen Tuesday were two cars from Woodfield Shopping Center.

Edward Fischer, 4431 Dawngate Ln., Rolling Meadows, told police his 1975 Buick was stolen from the parking lot. The value of the car was reported at $6,000.

Terry McGuire, St. Louis, Mo., reported his 1974 Chevrolet, valued at $4,500, also was taken from the parking lot.

Dist. 54 meeting on text books today

Parents and teachers will meet tonight with members of the board of education in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 to discuss textbook selection policies.

Last year, the board formed a committee to develop a policy for textbook selection, hoping to eliminate some of the problems which arose when textbooks were adopted for the current school year. The instructional materials committee gave suggested guidelines to the board last month and set tonight's meeting to hear teacher and parent reaction.

Parents and teachers have been sent notices of the meeting, and copies of the committee report are available at each of the district's schools. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the learning center of Keller

Junior High School, 820 Bode Rd., Schaumburg.

The committee has suggested the board receive the following information before purchasing a textbook or series of books:

- A reason for needing the next text, including a critique of current books, an assessment of test scores under old materials and a list of problems with old materials which need to be corrected.

- An analysis on the procedure used to test the recommended materials.

- A rating of the recommended books in relation to the district's goals and problems with current textbooks.

- The cost of the textbooks and additional materials needed for the series.

- A list of possible problems with the recommended series and ways to supplement the proposed series to correct those problems.

In selecting a series for adoption, the administration and staff would be required to rate the textbooks on a scale of one to 10 in the following areas:

- How well the materials meet the district's goals.

- How well the series develops skills and concepts in the subject area.

- Flexibility of the materials for a variety of classroom situations.

- How well the materials stimulate learning and promote a good attitude toward learning.

- Whether the materials are free of information reflecting adversely on people because of their race, color, sex, national origin, religious beliefs, age of lifestyle.

Village OKs Powell zoning appointment

The appointment of Bernard J. Powell to Schaumburg's zoning board of appeals was ratified Tuesday by the village board.

Joyner honored by Jaycees

John Joyner, 1122 Bradford Ln., Schaumburg, was recently presented with a Jaycee International Scholarship at the Illinois Jaycee Summer State General Assembly held in Palatine.

Joyner was one of the original founders of the Schaumburg Jaycees. He lives in Schaumburg with his wife Joan and their four children, Michael, Suzy, Mary and Scotty.

Powell, an optometrist with offices at 105 S. Roselle Rd., will fill the vacancy created in April when Alan Larson was elected to a four-year term as village trustee.

A long-time resident of the village, Powell is a member of the executive board of the Incumbent Schaumburg United Party and served as rules chairman at the 1972 and 1974 party conventions. His wife, Elaine, serves as secretary of the SUP Women's Auxiliary.

A graduate of the University of Illinois and Northern Illinois College of optometry, Powell is a charter member of Schaumburg Rotary Club and is active in several professional organizations.

After serving as village liaison to Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 for several years, Powell was an unsuccessful candidate for election to the elementary district board of education in April 1971.

Schaumburg office

Mental health unit branch opens

The Schaumburg branch office of the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center opened this week.

Four full-time and three part-time therapists will work out of the new facility, 1155 Tower Rd. in the Tower Industrial Park, said Jordan Rosen, executive director of the center.

The branch office, for which a five-year lease has been signed, has seven counseling rooms and a large room for group therapy sessions.

Approximately two-fifths of the center's 700 patients are from Schaumburg Township, and the new facility will enable the center to serve them more easily, Rosen said.

ROSEN SAID THE Schaumburg branch therapists would be assigned mostly Schaumburg Township residents as new cases, although they would continue to serve Elk Grove Township residents who already are on their caseloads.

Persons seeking help from the center for the first time or who are not now receiving help from the center should contact the main office first, however. The main office is at 700 Blesterfield Rd., Elk Grove Village.

The telephone number is 593-6600. Plans for a large permanent facility to house all of the center's facilities still are in the preliminary stage, with a fund-raising drive set to begin soon. Elk Grove Village has donated two acres west of Ill. Rte. 53 for a proposed $600,000 building. Construction is not scheduled for several years.

Salary enters school talks for 1st time

Teachers and board members in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 began talking about salary for the first time this year in contract talks this week.

The two sides met for two hours Tuesday and plan another evening session today.

Richard Zweiback, Dist. 15 school board's professional negotiator, said the board offered teachers a two-year salary and fringe benefit package Tuesday. He would not reveal the amount of that offer.

Maurice Sapoznik, chief spokesman for the union team, said teachers "are quite disappointed" with the board's first money offer. Aside from that, teachers still want to talk about a number of working conditions now in the contract, Sapoznik said.

BOARD NEGOTIATORS are willing to discuss any contract language issues if teachers agree to a two-year financial package, Sapoznik said. But the board wants only a "list of priority" language items from teachers if they insist on a one-year contract, he said.

Teachers met Wednesday in building meetings to discuss the latest board proposals and plan their counter-proposal on salary and benefits.

That counter-proposal will be presented today at the bargaining table.

"Hopefully on Thursday, some kind of resolution will be made," Sapoznik said.

Teachers and board members in Dist. 15 have been negotiating since April but have held only sporadic meetings. Sapoznik said both sides now plan to meet more frequently.

Hoffman woman named to fill Dist. 15 vacancy

Irene Sjustedt, 31, was seated Wednesday to fill a board of education vacancy in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 created by the resignation of Robert Bliss.

Bliss resigned from the board last month after accepting the presidency of Morris Harvey College, Charleston, W. Va.

Mrs. Sjustedt, 314 Suffolk Ct., Hoffman Estates, becomes the only woman on the Dist. 15 school board. She was the first of nine applications to file for the board vacancy and expressed an interest in seeing a woman on the board at that time.

"I'm delighted. I have a great deal to learn," she said after being informed of her appointment Wednesday.

MRS. SJOSTEDT is a resident of the Winston Knolls subdivision where Dist. 15 is now building its newest building, the Thomas Jefferson School. She and her husband Lennart have a child at Hunting Ridge School, Palatine.

As secretary of the Winston Knolls Homeowners' Assn., Mrs. Sjustedt began attending Dist. 15 board meetings several months ago. She also is active in the Hunting Ridge PTA and the Palatine League of Women Voters.

In other action, the board announced it will hold a public hearing on the district's proposed $18.6 million budget for 1975-76 at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 17 at the district offices, 505 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine. The board will hold a brief meeting after the hearing to approve the budget.

New facility bonds .

Library rejects spreading debt

The Palatine Library Board Wednesday night voted unanimously against spreading the bond debt on the new library among all library district residents in an attempt to settle the issue before an Oct. 4 referendum.

Library officials agreed library district and Inverness Village residents should know the library board's decision on the bond debt before voting to include Inverness in the library district next month.

Library officials said there seemed to be no immediate or legal way for the district to assume payment of the $1.3 million bond debt on the new library, near completion at Northwest Highway and Benton Street.

Michael Foley, library board member, said, "If we want a successful referendum, the board must vote not to use its current operating funds and not to increase its present tax levy to retire the library bonds. It must also commit itself to not changing its tax levy ability to cover the bond payment."

"IT'S TIME WE put an end to this. We're clouding up the referendum with an issue that is politically, rather than economically, motivated," he said.

Palatine village officials requested the library board spread the bond debt among all library district residents. Palatine village residents currently pay a special tax on the 20-year library bond that other library district residents do not pay.

The additional library tax rate is 8 cents extra on a 23 cents per $100 valuation.

The library board said it would no longer consider two proposals, one of which was made by the Palatine village board that suggested ways to spread the bond debt across the entire district.

The board's action was in opposition to a finance committee recommendation, made last week after a meeting with village officials, that a legal study be made of the two proposals before the library board made a decision on a bond debt.

"WE CAN'T AFFORD to wait for a study. We've got to decide now," said Judith Gamoran, library board member.

Mrs. Gamoran said Palatine residents voted in a June 28 referendum to allow other unincorporated township residents to enter the library district, knowing the new residents would not assist in paying off the library bonds.

"This is a mandate from village residents, and the same hopefully will hold true in the Inverness referendum," she said.

Watson out as city manager by Oct. 1

by JILL BETTNER

Rolling Meadows City Mgr. James Watson will leave his post Oct. 1, The Herald has learned. Meanwhile city hall sources disagree on whether Watson resigned or was fired by Mayor Roland J. Meyer.

The forthcoming departure of Watson, 58, who has held the position of top city administrator for the past six years, apparently was discussed by aldermen in an executive session of the city council Tuesday night.

No public announcement was made following the closed-door meeting, but three council members who were in attendance said they were told by Meyer that Watson will be out by Oct. 1 and that he will be replaced by a professional city manager.

Watson, 2700 Owl Ln., was an alderman and a corporate supply manager for Chicago Rawhide Manufacturing Co., Elgin, when Meyer appointed him to the Rolling Meadows job in 1969. He had no previous experience in municipal administration prior to the appointment.

WATSON IS on vacation out of town and could not be reached for comment. Meyer refused to confirm or deny the city manager is leaving his position and declined to answer any questions about what was discussed in the executive session.

"As far as I know, Mr. Watson is still employed by the city," Meyer said. "Information discussed in our closed meeting was confidential and I will not breach that confidence."

James Watson

Charles Green, administrative assistant, is expected to be appointed acting city manager until a new chief administrator is named. A full-time city finance officer also is likely to be hired to assume duties that were previously carried out by Watson, including preparation of the annual city budget.

City Treasurer Robert Cole has recommended the addition of a full-time finance officer for some time, saying he feels it is unfair to ask any city manager to handle both jobs.

ONE SOURCE, who contends that Watson was fired, said he suspects that Watson's error in drawing up the current budget which resulted in a $200,000 tax loss and other mistakes involving finances prompted Meyer to remove him.

"I think this has been coming for some time," he commented. "The budget fiasco was probably just the last straw."

Other city officials speculate, however, that Watson has been seeking employment elsewhere for the past several months and offered to resign after being publicly chastised more than once by Meyer and other councilmen. It has been rumored that Watson has applied for the new post of executive director of the Northwest Municipal Conference.

The mayor appoints department heads, including the city manager, with the consent of the city council following each mayoral election. Meyer did not reappoint Watson last May, along with Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty and City Prosecutor John Rafferty.

WATSON MOVED to the city in 1957 from McHenry County, where he had been active in school and county affairs. He made his first successful bid for an aldermanic seat in 1961 from the First Ward and was re-elected for another four years.

Meyer picked him in 1969 to serve as city manager, with the proviso he would remain in the job only until aldermen decided to seek a professionally-trained administrator.

Green, 25, became Watson's assistant two years ago, after working one summer for the city as an administrative intern in conjunction with a graduate study program in public administration at Northern Illinois University.

Decision near on racing bill

by KURT DAER

Gov. Dan Walker is expected to act today on a bill which would legalize thoroughbred racing in Illinois year-round, including Sundays. But even if the bill becomes law, communities like Arlington Heights would still have the power to deny Sunday racing.

If Walker fails to act, the bill will become law automatically at midnight today.

The sweeping new racing legislation is opposed by the Illinois Racing Board and its chairman, Anthony Scariano, principally because it repeals the ban on political contributions from race track operators.

Charles Siragusa, chairman of the Illinois Legislative Investigative Commission and a strong backer of the bill, said Wednesday municipalities would have an option on Sunday racing.

"There can be no Sunday racing unless a local ordinance is approved, permitting the track to operate," he said.

ACCORDING TO THE bill, Sunday racing can be granted either by local ordinance or referendum.

Siragusa met with Gov. Walker Wednesday in Springfield and said afterward the governor plans to act on the legislation today. But Siragusa said he did not know whether Walker would sign or veto the bill.

The bill is supported by major race tracks, because it would increase income to both track operators and horsemen and establish horse racing schedules for a three-year period.

Race track proprietors, including Arlington Park Race Track's president Jack Loomie, have complained about the annual scramble for racing dates and uncertainty over the length of the racing season.

Until the dates are announced in January by the racing board, track managers do not know when they will be allowed to open or how long they will be in business, Loomie has said.

Probe of RTA subsidies urged

by ANNE SLAVICKER

The seven commuter railroads serving the Chicago metropolitan area urged the federal government Wednesday to investigate the Regional Transportation Authority's subsidy policies.

The railroads asked the U.S. Urban Mass Transportation Administration to "immediately commence a review of the RTA's allocations of funds among types of carriers and portions of the RTA's six-county region."

The request was contained in a letter to the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission, which gave its approval Wednesday to an RTA request for $50.5 million in operating subsidies for local transit lines.

The approval came after the commission's planning committee agreed that the RTA should be required to provide subsidies "on an equitable basis" to transit systems throughout the Chicago area.

THE RTA has been criticized by suburban officials for giving the bulk of its subsidies to the Chicago Transit Authority.

The committee also required the RTA to inform NIPCC of its subsidy policies and the amounts of any subsidies it provides to transit systems. NIPCC staff members had urged the two requirements to ensure "consistency with regional planning objectives."

The letter from the railroads, signed by D. H. King, vice president of Burlington Northern Inc., also asked the federal government to:

- Require that subsidies after July 1, 1976 be weighted in favor of the commuter railroads to make up for the "inequitable" allocation of funds during the last two years.

- Examine RTA subsidy policies to determine if they are consistent with federal policy and federal subsidies to the railroads for commuter cars and locomotives.

- Require the RTA to release promptly its railroad subsidy plan for the current fiscal year.

The letter dated Wednesday, will be forwarded to the federal mass transportation administration along with comments from suburban officials urging changes in RTA subsidy policies to give more funds to the suburbs.

The RTA will not provide funds to meet all the operating deficits of mass transit lines unless the lines can pay at least 65 per cent of their expenses through fares. Commuter railroads are reimbursed by the RTA for 75 per cent of their operating deficits.

RTA Chairman Milton Pikarsky, who is also a member of NIPCC, succeeded Wednesday in getting the planning committee to drop a section of its report to the federal agency that was critical of current RTA spending policies.

The section said in part:

"The commission is concerned with the issue of equitable funding levels and potential effects on regional planning objectives as well as the concerns expressed by many local governments of the potentially negative consequences resulting from the present RTA policy."

PIKARSKY said the $50.5 million is only one-third of the total subsidies the RTA will hand out to bus, rail and rapid transit lines during fiscal 1976.

The money is sought specifically for subsidies to bus lines, including the Chicago Transit Authority and the North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTRAN).

NORTRAN Executive Director Joseph DiJohn said the district would endorse the RTA fund request if the RTA would promise to meet 100 per cent of NORTRAN's deficits.

Pikarsky refused to make such a promise at the meeting. He said NORTRAN would be foolish to oppose the application for federal grants for its own subsidies.

The other railroads joining in the letter were the Milwaukee Road, the Chicago and North Western Ry., the Illinois Central-Gulf R.R., the Norfolk and Western Ry., The Rock Island Line and the Chicago South Shore and South Bend R.R.

Family's got a problem —what to do with Snoopy

by TONI GINETTI
Hey, Charlie Brown, Snoopy is in Schaumburg!
Well, he's not exactly your Beagle. But he's a dead ringer for the World War I Flying Ace, and his masters have thought enough of him and your canine shortstop to christen their pup "Snoopy."
You see, Snoopy Junior is one of six puppies blessed to the James Camilliere family Beagle about nine weeks ago. For some reason the little guy seemed special, and the family figured out why when the pup started to grow.
He looks just like the Snoopy of Peanuts cartoon fame.
"WE COULD TELL from when he was born, but his nose was a little pushed in the way they are, and we had to wait until he grew a little," Mrs. Camilliere said.

Having Snoopy in your home, it's only natural to share the news with his "family," so the Camillieres wrote to Peanuts' creator Charles Schulz about their pooch.
"We had a hard time getting his address, but we finally got it from the Rival Dog Food Co. (which uses the Peanuts' characters in advertising)," she said.
Schulz replied to the family this week, saying he planned to keep photos of the Camillieres' Snoopy in his family album.
WITH A CELEBRITY in their ranks, the Camilliere brood, including Steve, 18; Jim, 18, and Jeff, 11, have felt a bit special. There's only one problem now, though. The family hasn't decided if Snoopy will stay with the Camillieres or get a new home like his litter mates.

"We've given away four already and we're down to two," Mrs. Camilliere said. How does she think the family, particularly youngest son, Jeff, whom she describes as "a real Snoopy fan," will react if the pup gets a new home?
"How does any child feel about giving away an animal?" Good grief.

Salary enters Dist. 15 pact talks for first time

Teachers and board members in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 began talking about salary for the first time this year in contract talks this week.
The two sides met for two hours Tuesday and plan another evening session today.
Richard Zweiback, Dist. 15 school board's professional negotiator, said the board offered teachers a two-year salary and fringe benefit package Tuesday. He would not reveal the amount of that offer.
Maurice Sapoznik, chief spokesman for the union team, said teachers "are quite disappointed" with the board's first money offer. Aside from that, teachers still want to talk about a number of working conditions now in the contract, Sapoznik said.

BOARD NEGOTIATORS are willing to discuss any contract language issues if teachers agree to a two-year financial package, Sapoznik said. But the board wants only a "list of priority" language items from teachers if they insist on a one-year contract, he said.
Teachers met Wednesday in building meetings to discuss the latest board proposals and plan their counter-proposal on salary and benefits. That counter-proposal will be presented today at the bargaining table.

"Hopefully on Thursday, some kind of resolution will be made," Sapoznik said.
Teachers and board members in Dist. 15 have been negotiating since April but have held only sporadic meetings. Sapoznik said both sides now plan to meet more frequently.

Inverness group protests 10-acre baseball diamond

A group of Inverness residents is protesting a proposed Little League baseball diamond in a 10-acre park behind their homes at the end of Highland Road.

Inverness Assn. board member Edward Gunderson said his organization drafted a five-year contract with the Palatine South Little League Assn., which would use the baseball field for its week-night games next season.

Residents who live on Highland and Cumstock roads have attended Inverness Assn. meetings to protest construction of the Little League backstop, saying it would create a traffic and vandalism problem and children from out of the area would be using the facilities.

THE INVERNESS Assn. is developing the 10-acre park, which already includes a fieldhouse, parking lot, tennis courts and an outdoor ice rink. Gunderson said the association plans to construct the backstop in the northwest corner of the park this fall and a playground in another part of the park later.

Under the agreement with the Inverness Assn., the Little League group would pay $3,500 for construction of the backstop.

Nineteen area residents have signed a statement presented to the association in protest, said Mrs. Martin Keller, 223 N. Highland Rd.

Woman named to Dist. 15 seat

Dist. 15 is now building its newest building, the Thomas Jefferson School. She and her husband Leonard have a child at Hunting Ridge School, Palatine.

As secretary of the Winston Knolls Homeowners' Assn., Mrs. Sjostedt began attending Dist. 15 board meetings several months ago. She also is active in the Hunting Ridge PTA and the Palatine League of Women Voters.

In other action, the board announced it will hold a public hearing on the district's proposed $18.8 million budget for 1975-76 at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 17 at the district offices, 503 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine. The board will hold a brief meeting after the hearing to approve the budget.

4-H Club meeting scheduled Sept. 17

The Palatine Pros and Panthers 4-H Club will hold its first meeting for the new club year Wednesday, Sept. 17, at 7:30 p.m. at the home of the leader, Mrs. James Vogt.

Membership in the club is open to youth ages 8 to 19. For further information about joining the club, call Mrs. Vogt at the University of Illinois Cooperative Extension service, 991-1160.

"We presented the statement to the association board so they will realize our objection. The use of the backstop by the Palatine Little League teams will bring heavy traffic into the area, and the cars will park along the streets because the parking lot isn't big enough," Mrs. Keller said.

Gunderson said some residents object to the backstop because children other than those from Inverness will be using the park five nights each week for games.

GUNDERTSON SAID the Little League teams include children up to 12 years of age and 14.8 per cent of the participants in the Palatine South Little League teams are from Inverness.

Other residents who live near the park are also concerned about vandalism and noise which would occur with a heavy influx of people, he said.

"The games will be in the evenings when fathers are home and would like to play with their own kids in the park. There won't be any room for them to do this now," Mrs. Keller said.

Gunderson said the Inverness Assn. plans to send out informational newsletters this month to all Inverness residents on the park development and backstop construction.

RESIDENTS WILL be asked to vote "yes" or "no" on the backstop construction by sending a return addressed, stamped envelope to the association with their ballot enclosed.

A majority vote in favor of the proposal will determine whether the backstop will be constructed, he said.

"The backstop should be judged on what is good for the children. There is nothing for kids under 12 around here, and this would be the first positive facility made available to them," Gunderson said.

The 10-acre park development is being paid for with resident contributions, Inverness Park District funds and mosquito abatement funds. The total development is estimated to cost $10,000.

Girl Scout visits England, Scotland

Janice Mephram, a member of Palatine Girl Scout Senior Troop 347, recently spent 2½ weeks overseas as part of a Region Four program.

Miss Mephram visited parts of England and Scotland as part of her tour. She is the third girl from Palatine who has been chosen to attend an international event.

The highlight of the trip was a week of camping at Camp Windwhistle near Crewkerne, England. Miss Mephram's knowledge of French enabled her to act as an interpreter for several French and Belgian guides.

She received a $150 campership from the Girl Scout Council of Northwest Cook County and a $400 grant from the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund to help finance her trip.

Racquetball has been added to the list of sports activities provided by the park district this year. Lessons in the sport will be offered Monday through Saturday afternoons plus Monday and Wednesday evenings at the Woodfield Racquet Club, Schaumburg. All classes will begin the week of Sept. 22. The fee is $20.

clude preschool classes, tot ballet and tumbling and kiddle crafts. The first session of preschool classes for 3 and 4-year-olds begins Monday.

Numerous activities for elementary and junior high school students include archery, ballet, basketball, bowling, creative dramatics, horseback riding and tennis. The park district also will continue to operate a youth center for boys and girls in sev-

Valuation up in Salt Creek

Decline seen in levies

Residents of the Salt Creek Park District may pay less in park district real estate taxes next year because of increasing assessed valuation of the district, said Park Director James DeVos.

The park board Tuesday approved the 1975 tax levy ordinance which calls for the maximum tax rate of 24.9 cents per $100 of assessed valuation to remain unchanged.

However, DeVos said the tax rate likely will decrease, possibly to about 23 cents per $100, because of expected increases in the district's assessed valuation, or total taxable worth.

The exact tax rate will be computed by the county next year.

The lower rate would mean residents whose homes are assessed at $10,000 would pay about $23 to the park district. The rate is one portion of the total property tax bill.

DeVos SAID development within the district's boundaries should increase the district's assessed valuation. That would mean taxes could be distributed more evenly throughout the district, resulting in the lower individual tax rate.

The district hopes to receive about $115,764 in taxes next year, up about $9,000 from the $104,000 total expected this year.

In a related matter, the district board agreed Tuesday to consider issuing up to $12,000 in tax anticipation warrants to provide for present expenses. The money is needed because the county has been slow to send tax money due the district.

ONLY ABOUT $33,000 of the expected $104,000 has been sent to date, DeVos said.

New facility bonds

Library rejects spreading debt

The Palatine Library Board Wednesday night voted unanimously against spreading the bond debt on the new library among all library district residents in an attempt to settle the issue before an Oct. 4 referendum.

Library officials agreed library district and Inverness Village residents should know the library board's decision on the bond debt before voting to include Inverness in the library district next month.

Library officials said there seemed to be no immediate or legal way for the district to assume payment of the $1.3 million bond debt on the new library, near completion at Northwest Highway and Benton Street.

Michael Foley, library board member, said, "If we want a successful referendum, the board must vote not to use its current operating funds and not to increase its present tax levy to retire the library bonds. It must also commit itself to not changing its tax levy ability to cover the bond payment."

"IT'S TIME WE put an end to this. We're clouding up the referendum with an issue that is politically, rather than economically, motivated," he said.

Palatine village officials requested the library board spread the bond debt among all library district residents. Palatine village residents currently pay a special tax on the 20-year library bond that other library district residents do not pay.

The additional library tax rate is 8 cents extra on a 23 cents per $100 valuation.

The library board said it would no longer consider two proposals, one of which was made by the Palatine village board that suggested ways to spread the bond debt across the entire district.

The board's action was in opposition to a finance committee recommendation, made last week after a meeting with village officials, that a legal study be made of the two proposals before the library board made a decision on a bond debt.

"WE CAN'T AFFORD to wait for a study. We've got to decide now," said Judith Gamoran, library board member.

Mrs. Gamoran said Palatine residents voted in a June 28 referendum to allow other unincorporated township residents to enter the library district, knowing the new residents would not assist in paying off the library bonds.

"This is a mandate from village residents, and the same hopefully will hold true in the Inverness referendum," she said.

Hoffman woman named to fill Dist. 15 vacancy

Irene Sjostedt, 31, was seated Wednesday to fill a board of education vacancy in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 created by the resignation of Robert Bliss.

Bliss resigned from the board last month after accepting the presidency of Morris Harvey College, Charleston, W.Va.

Mrs. Sjostedt, 314 Suffolk Ct., Hoffman Estates, becomes the only woman on the Dist. 15 school board. She was the first of nine applications to file for the board vacancy and expressed an interest in seeing a woman on the board at that time.

"I'm delighted. I have a great deal to learn," she said after being informed of her appointment Wednesday.

MRS. SJOSTEDT is a resident of the Winston Knolls subdivision where Dist. 15 is now building its newest building, the Thomas Jefferson School. She and her husband Lennart have a child at Hunting Ridge School, Palatine.

As secretary of the Winston Knolls Homeowners' Assn., Mrs. Sjostedt began attending Dist. 15 board meetings several months ago. She also is active in the Hunting Ridge PTA and the Palatine League of Women Voters.

In other action, the board announced it will hold a public hearing on the district's proposed $18.6 million budget for 1975-76 at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 17 at the district offices, 505 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine. The board will hold a brief meeting after the hearing to approve the budget.

Teachers vote Friday on pact

High School Dist. 211 teachers will vote Friday on a two-year contract calling for salary increases of about 10.65 per cent this year and 12.35 per cent next year.

The agreement, reached Monday, has negotiated the support of the teachers' negotiating team and the governing board of the Dist. 211 teachers' union.

George Stewart, president of the association, said teachers will attend meetings today in each of the district's schools and will vote to accept or reject the contract during lunch hour Friday.

The contract calls for a raise in the base salary of 5.9 per cent this year from $9,650 to $10,255 and an increase of 7.6 per cent next year to a base salary of $11,000. The increase is in addition to the annual increase of 4.75 per cent given to teachers for an additional year of experience.

THE AGREEMENT eliminates across-the-board salary increases proposed by the board of education. The board had offered a base salary of $10,000 this year, plus $300 and $400 across-the-board increases for teachers at the lower end of the schedule and $400 for teachers at the top of the schedule. Next year, the base was to be raised to $10,350, plus $250 and $350 increases.

Teachers had been asking for a $10,100 base the first year and a $10,400 base the second year, with $300 and $400 across-the-board increases.

Stewart said teachers asked the across-the-board increases be incorporated into the base salary. He said the negotiating team felt the across-the-board increases would be difficult to manage and would present a problem "as far as negotiations in the future." Negotiators normally use the base salary as a starting point on which both sides base their salary requests.

The agreement represents a compromise on salary. Teachers would receive less total dollars than the boards original offer for this year, but next year's figure would be higher than the board's offer.

THE CONTRACT also includes:

- Pay for teachers' chaperone duty.

- Long-term disability benefits for teachers. After 180 days of sick leave, teachers would receive 60 per cent of their base salary up to $1,500 per month.

- Leave from school for officers of the association who wish to attend committee meetings of the Illinois Education Association, the statewide teachers union of which Dist. 211 is a member.

- Payroll deduction of association union dues.

- A maternity leave clause to conform to recent court rulings, giving pregnant teachers the option of taking a long-term leave of absence, without pay, or a short-term sick leave, with pay.

- A $215 annual increase in pay for media chairman in the school libraries.

- A clause giving administrators the right to appoint teachers to sponsor student activity clubs.

by ANNE SLAVICEK

The seven commuter railroads serving the Chicago metropolitan area urged the federal government Wednesday to investigate the Regional Transportation Authority's subsidy policies.

The railroads asked the U.S. Urban Mass Transportation Administration to "immediately commence a review of the RTA's allocations of funds among types of carriers and portions of the RTA's six-county region."

The request was contained in a letter to the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission, which gave its approval Wednesday to an RTA request for $50.5 million in operating subsidies for local transit lines.

The approval came after the commission's planning committee agreed that the RTA should be required to provide subsidies "on an equitable basis" to transit systems throughout the Chicago area.

THE RTA has been criticized by suburban officials for giving the bulk of its subsidies to the Chicago Transit Authority.

The committee also required the RTA to inform NIPCO of its subsidy policies and the amounts of any subsidies it provides to transit systems. NIPCO staff members had urged the two requirements to ensure "consistency with regional planning objectives."

The letter from the railroads, signed by D. H. King, vice president of Burlington Northern Inc., also asked the federal government to:

- Require that subsidies after July 1, 1976 be weighted in favor of the commuter railroads to make up for the "inequitable" allocation of funds during the last two years.

- Examine RTA subsidy policies to determine if they are consistent with federal policy and federal subsidies to the railroads for commuter cars and locomotives.

- Require the RTA to release promptly its railroad subsidy plan for the current fiscal year.

The letter dated Wednesday, will be forwarded to the federal mass transportation administration along with comments from suburban officials urging changes in RTA subsidy policies to give more funds to the suburbs.

The RTA will not provide funds to meet all the operating deficits of mass transit lines unless the lines can pay at least 65 per cent of their expenses through fares. Commuter railroads are reimbursed by the RTA for 75 per cent of their operating deficits.

RTA Chairman Milton Pikarsky, who is also a member of NIPCO, succeeded Wednesday in getting the planning committee to drop a section of its report to the federal agency that was critical of current RTA spending policies.

The section said in part:

"The commission is concerned with the issue of equitable funding levels and potential effects on regional planning objectives as well as the concerns expressed by many local governments of the potentially negative consequences resulting from the present RTA policy."

PIKARSKY said the $50.5 million is only one-third of the total subsidies the RTA will hand out to bus, rail and rapid transit lines during fiscal 1976.

The money is sought specifically for subsidies to bus lines, including the Chicago Transit Authority and the North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTRAN).

NORTRAN Executive Director Joseph DiJohn said the district would endorse the RTA fund request if the RTA would promise to meet 100 per cent of NORTRAN's deficits.

Pikarsky refused to make such a promise at the meeting. He said NORTRAN would be foolish to oppose the application for federal grants for its own subsidies.

The other railroads joining in the letter were the Milwaukee Road, the Chicago and North Western Ry., the Illinois Central-Gulf R.R., the Norfolk and Western Ry., The Rock Island Line and the Chicago South Shore and South Bend R.R.

Village board wrapup

Balcony barbecues raise some smoke

Palatine officials are putting the heat on outdoor barbecuing by apartment dwellers.

The board Monday, in response to complaints about outdoor barbecuing by apartment dwellers, has asked the board of health, environmental control board and Palatine Advisory Board to study whether barbecuing on apartment balconies should be banned. Some apartment dwellers have complained the smoke from lower level apartment balconies gets into their apartments and is a health hazard.

Graesser on advisory board

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones has appointed Paul Graesser as vice chairman of the Palatine Advisory Board.

Graesser lives at 1330 St. James Ct., Palatine. A motion by Trustee Bryan P. Coughlin Jr. to have all candidates for appointment screened by village board committees failed 4-2, with only Coughlin and Trustee Philip E. Stern voting in favor of the screening.

2 bids on 5 new police cars

Two bids were received by the village board Monday for five new Cass Ford of Des Plaines submitted the low bid of $23,848.26 and police cars.

Chalet Ford of Arlington Heights bid $24,001.31. The bids have been referred to the administration, finance and legislation committee for review and a recommendation.

Schaumburg court supported

Officials have adopted a resolution supporting the Village of Schaumburg's attempt to locate a juvenile court.

The proposed juvenile court would not serve Palatine, because Schaumburg and Palatine are in different branches of the Circuit Court.

Flood report review today

A preliminary flood control report on the village will be reviewed by the village's flood committee at 3 p.m. today at village hall, 54 S. Brockway St.

The report is being prepared by Consoer and Townsend, consulting engineers and will identify steps the village should take to resolve its flooding problems.

4-way stop signs OK'd

Four-way stop signs have been approved for the intersection of Ventura and Juniper drives. The stop signs are being installed at the request of residents in the area.

Budget review proposed

Trustee Richard W. Fonte has asked the administration to prepare a mid-year review of the village's budget.

Fonte said a preliminary review of the budget he made indicated the village had a surplus of about $30,000.

Park lot paving urged

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones has asked for a review of the 1975-76 budget to see whether funds are available to pave the parking lot of the Colfax Street Fire Station.

The nearly $300,000 addition and remodeling of the Colfax Street Fire Station is expected to be completed this month, but funds were not budgeted for the paving of the parking lot.

Village gets county grant to upgrade master plan

The Village of Palatine has received a $15,000 grant from the county under the 1975 Community Development Program for the updating of the village's 1974 master plan.

The grant agreement was approved by the village board Monday. The board also approved the hiring of Barton-Aschman Associates Inc., planning consultants, to do the work.

Barton-Aschman was one of four planning consultant firms interviewed by a special committee of the village board consisting of Trustees Robert J. Guss, Ralph Deger, chairman of the plan commission, and Steven Lenel, planning and zoning administrator.

THE PROPOSED updating will include defining community goals and objectives in planning, identifying every parcel in the village and a recommendation on changes in the village's zoning ordinances.

Guss said the hiring of Barton-Aschman was recommended because they proposed to tie in pertinent planning data the village has on file and have a diverse staff available to work on the project.

SEVERAL TRUSTEES questioned whether this grant would finally furnish the village with a complete master plan and whether it wasn't just a duplication of work that had been done in the past.

"We have been through this process before and it never seems to culminate into something we can get our teeth into," Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said.

Several of the items Barton-Aschman will be doing were supposed to be done by Rolf Campbell and Associates Inc. in the 1974 master plan but were never received by the village, according to village officials.

The trustees asked Barton-Aschman to prepare a contract for board approval that would outline in detail what the firm will be doing.

Salary enters Dist. 15 pact talks for first time

Teachers and board members in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 began talking about salary for the first time this year in contract talks this week.

The two sides met for two hours Tuesday and plan another evening session today.

Richard Zweiback, Dist. 15 school board's professional negotiator, said the board offered teachers a two-year salary and fringe benefit package Tuesday. He would not reveal the amount of that offer.

Maurice Sapoznik, chief spokesman for the union team, said teachers "are quite disappointed" with the board's first money offer. Aside from that, teachers still want to talk about a number of working conditions now in the contract, Sapoznik said.

BOARD NEGOTIATORS are willing to discuss any contract language issues if teachers agree to a two-year financial package, Sapoznik said. But the board wants only a "list of priority" language items from teachers if they insist on a one-year contract, he said.

Teachers met Wednesday in building meetings to discuss the latest board proposals and plan their counter-proposal on salary and benefits. That counter-proposal will be presented today at the bargaining table.

"Hopefully on Thursday, some kind of resolution will be made," Sapoznik said.

Teachers and board members in Dist. 15 have been negotiating since April but have held only sporadic meetings. Sapoznik said both sides now plan to meet more frequently.

Valuation up in Salt Creek

Decline seen in parks tax levies

Residents of the Salt Creek Park District may pay less in park district real estate taxes next year because of increasing assessed valuation of the district, said Park Director James DeVos.

The park board Tuesday approved the 1975 tax levy ordinance which calls for the maximum tax rate of 24.9 cents per $100 of assessed valuation to remain unchanged.

However, DeVos said the tax rate likely will decrease, possibly to about 23 cents per $100, because of expected increases in the district's assessed valuation, or total taxable worth.

The exact tax rate will be computed by the county next year.

The lower rate would mean residents whose homes are assessed at $10,000 would pay about .23 to the park district. The rate is one portion of the total property tax bill.

DeVos SAID development within the district's boundaries should increase the district's assessed valuation. That would mean taxes could be distributed more evenly throughout the district, resulting in the lower individual tax rate.

The district hopes to receive about $15,764 in taxes next year, up about $9,000 from the $104,000 total expected this year.

In a related matter, the district board agreed Tuesday to consider issuing up to $12,000 in tax anticipation warrants to provide for present expenses. The money is needed because the county has been slow to send tax money due the district.

ONLY ABOUT $33,000 of the expected $104,000 has been sent to date, DeVos said.

Tax anticipation warrants are a type of loan which taxing bodies can secure. The warrants are paid back with interest when tax monies arrive. The board voted to issue the warrants unless a cheaper financing alternative is possible.

Coughlin asked to head panel again

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones has asked Trustee Bryan P. Coughlin Jr. to resume the chairmanship of the building, planning and zoning committee when his health permits.

Coughlin, who missed several board meetings this summer because of ill health, responded that his decision to resign as chairman "had nothing to do with my health."

Coughlin resigned as chairman June 23 in a dispute with Jones who he accused of interfering with his committee and attempting to rush through action on the proposed 365-acre Plum Grove Hills development.

"If that is the only thing bothering you, I do not plan to interfere with the committee system," Jones said. "I have not waived the (committee) rules prior to or since then."

Jones added that he preferred to have all trustees carry their weight on the board and chair a committee. Trustee Robert J. Guss Jr. has been serving as temporary chairman of the committee since Coughlin's resignation.

Coughlin said he would like to discuss the chairmanship with Jones in more detail and would give him an answer next Monday.

10-acre baseball diamond

A group of Inverness residents is protesting a proposed Little League baseball diamond in a 10-acre park behind their homes at the end of Highland Road.

Inverness Assn. board member Edward Gunderson said his organization drafted a five-year contract with the Palatine South Little League Assn., which would use the baseball field for its week-night games next season.

Residents who live on Highland and Cumstock roads have attended Inverness Assn. meetings to protest construction of the Little League backstop, saying it would create a traffic and vandalism problem and children from out of the area would be using the facilities.

THE INVERNESS Assn. is developing the 10-acre park, which already includes a fieldhouse, parking lot, tennis courts and an outdoor ice rink. Gunderson said the association plans to construct the backstop in the northwest corner of the park this fall and a playground in another part of the park later.

Under the agreement with the Inverness Assn., the Little League group would pay $3,500 for construction of the backstop.

Nineteen area residents have signed a statement presented to the association in protest, said Mrs. Martin Keller, 223 N. Highland Rd.

Two participate in Scout programs

Two Girl Scouts from Palatine Cadette troops participated in out-of-state national Girl Scout programs this summer.

Lynne Lavalie, a member of Cadette Troop 31, joined 74 Scouts from more than 30 states, Japan and Puerto Rico at Sanibel Island, Fla., for "Sanibel Shelling." Besides shelling, Miss Lavalie also took time to visit a bird sanctuary and was involved in conservation programs.

Chris Pedersen of Cadette Troop 811 participated in "Saddle Straddle" in Tensleep, Wyo., with 36 other Girl Scouts from all over the United States. The 2½-week trip included a three-day tour of Yellowstone National Park and a six-day pack trip.

4-H Club meeting scheduled Sept. 17

The Palatine Pros and Panthers 4-H Club will hold its first meeting for the new club year Wednesday, Sept. 17, at 7:30 p.m. at the home of the leader, Mrs. James Vogt.

Membership in the club is open to youth ages 8 to 19. For further information about joining the club, call Mrs. Vogt at the University of Illinois Cooperative Extension service, 691-1160.

"We presented the statement to the association board so they will realize our objection. The use of the backstop by the Palatine Little League teams will bring heavy traffic into the area, and the cars will park along the streets because the parking lot isn't big enough," Mrs. Keller said.

Gunderson said some residents object to the backstop because children other than those from Inverness will be using the park five nights each week for games.

GUNDERSON SAID the Little League teams include children up to 12 years of age and 14.8 per cent of the participants in the Palatine South Little League teams are from Inverness.

Other residents who live near the park are also concerned about vandalism and noise which would occur with a heavy influx of people, he said.

"The games will be in the evenings when fathers are home and would like to play with their own kids in the park. There won't be any room for them to do this now," Mrs. Keller said.

Gunderson said the Inverness Assn. plans to send out informational newsletters this month to all Inverness residents on the park development and backstop construction.

RESIDENTS WILL be asked to vote "yes" or "no" on the backstop construction by sending a return addressed, stamped envelope to the association with their ballot enclosed.

A majority vote in favor of the proposal will determine whether the backstop will be constructed, he said.

"The backstop should be judged on what is good for the children. There is nothing for kids under 12 around here, and this would be the first positive facility made available to them," Gunderson said.

The 10-acre park development is being paid for with resident contributions, Inverness Park District funds and mosquito abatement funds. The total development is estimated to cost $10,000.

Girl Scout visits
England, Scotland

Janice Mephram, a member of Palatine Girl Scout Senior Troop 347, recently spent 2½ weeks overseas as part of a Region Four program.

Miss Mephram visited parts of England and Scotland as part of her tour. She is the third girl from Palatine who has been chosen to attend an international event.

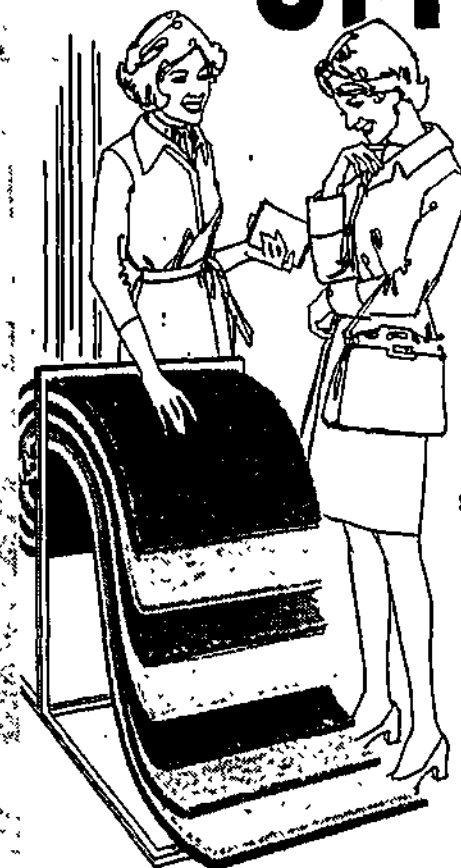

The highlight of the trip was a week of camping at Camp Windwhistle near Crewkerne, England. Miss Mephram's knowledge of French enabled her to act as an interpreter for several French and Belgian guides.

She received a $150 campership from the Girl Scout Council of Northwest Cook County and a $400 grant from the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund to help finance her trip.

Village complains to state

C&NW starts 'routine' work at major crossing

Repairs were under way Wednesday at the railroad crossing at Central Road and Northwest Highway after Mount Prospect officials complained about the rough crossing.

Glenn Kerbs, assistant division manager of engineering for the Chicago and North Western Ry., said the repairs are part of routine maintenance.

"I understand from the roadmaster down there that he had a couple of crossings that are getting old," Kerbs said, comparing the repairs with the replacement of a rung on a ladder.

Kerbs said no major repairs are planned for the Central Road crossing or any crossings in Mount Prospect. "There is no other repair work more than normal maintenance at this time," he said.

BUT VILLAGE officials view the crossing problem as more serious and have complained to the state about problems caused by the deteriorating condition of the tracks. They charge that while most of the crossings in the village are in bad shape, the one at Central Road has been in the worst condition.

"The roadbed there is in really bad shape," said Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppey. "Spikes have worked up from the ties. Mufflers and bumpers have been torn off of passing cars."

Last week the village posted "rough crossing" signs at Central Road, although the state has control of that right-of-way.

Kerbs said he is aware of village complaints about the crossings. "I have some correspondence," he said. Kerbs said the state is investigating the village's complaints.

We can cope with cash woes: mayor

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert Tuesday said he is not worried about village financial problems because the village has emergency sources of revenue.

"The ability to react to an emergency is there," Teichert said. "The community has a solid tax base. If there is an emergency, hell, they (village board members) have the ability of, let's say, a utility tax."

Teichert admitted, however, that last week's defeat of proposed water rate increases will add to the village's financial worries. He said these problems will be resolved after the board resolves its political differences.

"THE PROBLEM isn't, 'can you get the money?'" Teichert said. "The problem is 'how do you get the money?' You can't get the money when everyone is running in a different direction with a different idea."

Teichert said he voted against the water rate increases, despite his previous support of the proposal, because he did not think the water system would be threatened if improvements were delayed. The water rate increase would have made funds available for new wells and pumping stations.

Village financial considerations did not enter into his decision, Teichert said.

The mayor said the village always has had an adequate water supply, since the tendency is to "overprotect to take care of the crisis situation." He said the current furor over water rates provides a good opportunity to test the system to see if it actually does overprotect the village.

"THE WORST catastrophe we could have would be to have to restrict sprinkling," Teichert said, noting the village has never had to take such steps before. He said residents will have to accustom themselves to a different life style in exchange for lower

Decisions leading to 'crisis': trustee

by LYNN ASINOF

Trustee Edward B. Rhea Jr. Tuesday said Mount Prospect is headed toward a financial crisis as a result of a series of board decisions which have played havoc with village finances.

Rhea, finance committee chairman, previously had maintained the village financial problems were nowhere near the crisis level, but he changed his position after the board unexpectedly rejected proposed water rate increases last week.

"We are headed now for a crisis," Rhea said. "And I suspect before this fiscal year is over, we will be in a crisis situation."

Rhea said the village's problems started when the board decided to use its financial cushion to cover $371,000 in employee pay increases. A recent change in tax collections make tax bills previously paid in June and July due in March and April, thus moving payments ahead one fiscal year.

THIS QUIRK IN the tax collection procedure will provide the village with an additional $287,696. But use of this money will deplete village cash reserves needed to operate the government during the first four months of fiscal year 1976-77, Rhea said.

Rhea said he had planned to borrow this needed money from the additional revenue which would have been generated by his proposed 40 per cent water rate hike.

"Certainly a person can't say much until we get a little further into the year," Rhea said. "But I would say that in about six months, it will become apparent that we will not have enough cash flow to get through this year."

Most board members at a previous meeting on the matter had indicated their support for the water rate increase, but they rejected the proposal in a 5-2 vote last week. Mayor Robert D. Teichert, who earlier had warned the village would run out of water without the increase, was among those who voted against it.

Trustees E. F. Richardson and Michael H. Minton, who also had spoken in favor of the rate increase, voted against it, saying the matter was unpopular with residents.

"THEY SAID THEY knew it was the right thing to do, but that it was too unpopular with the people right now," Rhea said. He said the board appears unwilling to take any positive action to solve its financial problems.

water rates. But he said, he had no fear there would be insufficient water for drinking, bathing or fire protection.

Teichert said the village financial problems are compounded because the board is still debating the 1975-76 budget, rather than involving itself in long-range planning. He said the political bickering among the board members will fade gradually, making it possible for the board to work together.

"We have truly independent people running independently and not bothering to work on a common platform," Teichert said, estimating it will take another two to four months before political battles begin to subside.

STRUMMIN' ALONG. Shawna Lewis, 8, and her classmates at MacArthur Junior High School, are learning to play the guitar in regular music classes this year. The guitars were added as a result of a federal grant to the district which enabled them to purchase 24 six-string guitars.

Readin', writin', math and a little guitar pickin'

A whole new generation of Simons and Garfunkles is in the making at MacArthur Junior High School this year.

Guitar instruction has been added to the general music classes that all 700 MacArthur students take, thanks to a recent federal grant which enabled the school to purchase 25 six-string guitars.

But if C chords seem hard for preadolescent fingers to handle, teacher Paulette Hanhart will understand. She has never played the guitar.

"I elected to go through their frustration with them," Miss Hanhart said. She and former principal Gerald McGovern planned the guitar instruction last spring, but Miss Hanhart turned down the chance to take summer instruction in guitar so she and her students could begin together.

Right now, students are going "whole hog" learning chords and notes, Miss Hanhart said. Sixth graders spend three 45-minute periods per week with the instruments, and eighth graders practice two sessions per week.

Seventh graders will begin instruction second semester.

As skills improve, Miss Hanhart said individual and group selections will be chosen for everyone to learn. She would like to feature the guitarists in some sort of recital later in the year.

Miss Hanhart said the guitar grant was applied for because "our general music program lacked any instrumental instruction."

The choice apparently was a wise one. "The children just love it," Miss Hanhart said.

by ANNE SLAVICEK

The seven commuter railroads serving the Chicago metropolitan area urged the federal government Wednesday to investigate the Regional Transportation Authority's subsidy policies.

The railroads asked the U.S. Urban Mass Transportation Administration to "immediately commence a review of the RTA's allocations of funds among types of carriers and portions of the RTA's six-county region."

The request was contained in a letter to the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission, which gave its approval Wednesday to an RTA request for $50.5 million in operating subsidies for local transit lines.

The approval came after the commission's planning committee agreed that the RTA should be required to provide subsidies "on an equitable basis" to transit systems throughout the Chicago area.

THE RTA has been criticized by suburban officials for giving the bulk of its subsidies to the Chicago Transit Authority.

The committee also required the RTA to inform NIPIC of its subsidy policies and the amounts of any subsidies it provides to transit systems. NIPIC staff members had urged the two requirements to ensure "consistency with regional planning objectives."

The letter from the railroads, signed by D. H. King, vice president of Burlington Northern Inc., also asked the federal government to:

- Require that subsidies after July 1, 1976 be weighted in favor of the commuter railroads to make up for the "inequitable" allocation of funds during the last two years.

- Examine RTA subsidy policies to determine if they are consistent with federal policy and federal subsidies to the railroads for commuter cars and locomotives.

- Require the RTA to release promptly its railroad subsidy plan for the current fiscal year.

The letter dated Wednesday, will be forwarded to the federal mass transportation administration along with comments from suburban officials urging changes in RTA subsidy policies to give more funds to the suburbs.

The RTA will not provide funds to meet all the operating deficits of mass transit lines unless the lines can pay at least 65 per cent of their expenses through fares. Commuter railroads are reimbursed by the RTA for 75 per cent of their operating deficits.

RTA Chairman Milton Pikarsky, who is also a member of NIPIC, succeeded Wednesday in getting the planning committee to drop a section of its report to the federal agency that was critical of current RTA spending policies.

The section said in part:

"The commission is concerned with the issue of equitable funding levels and potential effects on regional planning objectives as well as the concerns expressed by many local governments of the potentially negative consequences resulting from the present RTA policy."

PIKARSKY said the $50.5 million is only one-third of the total subsidies the RTA will hand out to bus, rail and rapid transit lines during fiscal 1976.

The money is sought specifically for subsidies to bus lines, including the Chicago Transit Authority and the North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTTRAN).

NORTTRAN Executive Director Joseph DiJohn said the district would endorse the RTA fund request if the RTA would promise to meet 100 per cent of NORTTRAN's deficits.

Pikarsky refused to make such a promise at the meeting. He said NORTTRAN would be foolish to oppose the application for federal grants for its own subsidies.

The other railroads joining in the letter were the Milwaukee Road, the Chicago and North Western Ry., the Illinois Central-Gulf R.R., the Norfolk and Western Ry., The Rock Island Line and the Chicago South Shore and South Bend R.R.

Railroad crossing OK'd for west side of village

The Village of Arlington Heights has received state approval to build a new railroad grade crossing at McKinley Avenue.

The Illinois Commerce Commission approved the village's 1974 application for the crossing which will improve access to eastern Arlington Heights and western Mount Prospect.

The crossing that will link Northwest Highway and Davis Street will cost nearly $70,000 to construct. The cost will be shared by the village and the state. It is unlikely the work will start before next year.

Tied in with the new street across the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks is the resurfacing of Arthur Avenue, one block east of McKinley, north to Davis.

The question of whether the village will pay the railroad for right-of-way across the tracks still must be answered.

VILLAGE ATTY. Jack M. Siegel said he will try to reach an agreement with the North Western to put the money in an escrow account until the controversy is settled in circuit court.

An escrow agreement was made for the planned Ridge-Walnut avenues crossing where the railroad is asking for $18,000 right-of-way compensation. The village is contesting the demand in court.

A railroad spokesman said Wednesday the company still plans to build the Ridge-Walnut crossing this year, although no definite construction date has been set.

Residents of the Stonegate subdivision, north of the McKinley crossing site, have voiced concern that the new street link will cause heavier traffic in their neighborhood.

Plans call for closing Wilshire Lane at Northwest Highway when the crossing is built. But residents are worried that traffic will build up on Windsor Drive.

VILLAGE OFFICIALS expect most of the cars will use Dryden Place to get to the new crossing and there are plans to install traffic signals at Dryden and Northwest Highway and at Dryden Place and Kensington Road.

If traffic problems do turn up in Stonegate, village officials say they will consider further controls.

The McKinley crossing will be important for emergency vehicles traveling north and south on the eastern side of town. There now is no grade crossing between Central Road in Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights Road — a distance of about two miles.

The McKinley crossing also may take some traffic off of heavily-traveled Central Road.

Plans for a grade crossing in the vicinity of McKinley Avenue date back as far as 1938. Modern plans were made in 1966 when the crossing was proposed for Arthur Avenue.

The site was moved one block to McKinley because of engineering problems at the Arthur Street location.

Village still short $19,000 for pay raises

Mount Prospect is still short $9,000 needed to cover $371,000 in employee pay increases as a result of the village board's rejection of proposed water rate increases.

The water rate increases would have enabled the village to double the current $36,000 service charge to the water department for the use of village equipment and personnel. A plan by Trustee E. F. Richardson stated the additional $36,000 would be used, with some $362,000 in other revenue to cover the employee pay hikes approved this spring.

The village board previously had approved nine of the 10 points in Richardson's plan, but had withheld approval of the water department service charge hike until after water rate increases came to a vote. Richardson voted against the water rate hike.

Trustee Michael H. Minton, who also voted against the 40 per cent water rate increase, said he was not worried about finding the money to cover the raises.

"I'M SURE WE'LL come up with that one way or another," Minton said. "I don't have a definite proposal on how to come up with the money. I think with a budget our size, we will definitely come up with the money to cover it."

The bulk of the money to cover the raises will come from a quirk in the tax collection procedure. A recent change in tax collections makes tax bills previously paid in June and July due in March and April, moving payments ahead one fiscal year.

This quirk will make available about $287,700 with other funds coming from increased fines, liquor licenses and business licenses.

Two men arrested in $80 drug bust

Two men were arrested Wednesday on charges they sold $80 worth of narcotics to undercover agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG).

Arrested were Robert Marturana, 20, 2710 Goebbert Rd., Arlington Heights, and David J. Stevens, 20, 1986 Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect. Both were charged in warrants alleging they sold 10 capsules of Biphedamine in an undercover deal Aug. 25.

They were freed on $7,500 bond each, pending an Oct. 14 court appearance.

'Enjoy life,' beauty queen advises elderly

Advising senior citizens to "stop worrying about getting old and enjoy life," 80-year-old Ruth Erickson walked off with the Golden Ages Beauty Pageant crown Saturday at Randhurst Shopping Center.

Mrs. Erickson, an Arlington Heights resident, not only won the crown, an armload of roses and a trophy — she got a kiss from Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert for her performance.

The senior beauty queen convinced the judges with answers to a series of questions put to her and other contestants.

She said she considered "faith, hope and love to be the three most important words in our language."

Runner-up in the contest was Dorothy Christensen, 79, of Glenview. Also placing in the contest were Irm Haines, 70, of Arlington Heights, and Laura Foxgrover, 76, of Palatine.

Wickes paid off $50,000: attorney

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

A former official of the County Zoning Board told a Wickes Inc. representative it would cost the firm "50 big ones — $50,000" in bribes to get zoning for a furniture store in Wheeling, an assistant U.S. attorney said Wednesday.

The statement came at the beginning of the extortion trial of Ira Colitz, a former member of the County Zoning Board, and Nicholas Phillips, a land planner for the board.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Steven Kadison said during opening comments in the Phillips-Colitz trial that Colitz came up with the price tag in late 1971. A month earlier Wickes consultant Edward S. Sheldon met Colitz at a cocktail party, Kadison said, and complained about delays in obtaining zoning for the Wheeling store.

"COLITZ TOLD him that 'the Greek runs Wheeling — James Stavros. Let me check around.'"

Edward Sheldon, the architect of Wickes furniture warehouse plans in the Chicago area, will be the first government witness when testimony in the trial begins at 9:30 a.m. today before U.S. District Court Judge Prentice Marshall in Chicago.

Colitz and Phillips are charged with conspiracy and with extorting $50,000 from Wickes to influence village zoning. Stavros is serving a federal prison term in connection with other Wheeling zoning shakedowns.

The payoff was arranged by Colitz and Willard Brown Jr. of Palatine, a senior vice president of Arthur Rubloff & Co. in December 1971, Kadison said, after two applications for zoning by Wickes were denied by village officials. Brown has received immunity from prosecution to testify in the trial.

THE RUBLOFF FIRM was hired by Wickes to purchase property for furniture warehouse stores in Wheeling, Itasca and Harvey.

Kadison told the court that Wickes financed the payoff with a $50,000 check on Dec. 30, 1971; that Brown exchanged the Wickes check for a check from the Rubloff firm and then obtained $50,000 in cash from the Harris Bank for the payoff.

The money was delivered to Phillips in a cocktail lounge at the Lake Shore Holiday Inn in Chicago about 3 p.m. Dec. 30, 1971, Kadison said.

Details of the payoff meeting were revealed Wednesday during a pretrial hearing on a motion to dismiss a photographic identification by Brown of Phillips as the payoff bagman.

PHILLIPS' ATTORNEY, Louis Carbonaro, called Brown as a defense witness during the pretrial hearing in an attempt to show the identification was improper.

inches, thin, with dark hair . . . maybe he was of Greek or Italian extraction."

Phillips is a cousin of Stavros. Brown said Wednesday that he "immediately picked him (Phillips) out of the stack (of photographs) and said 'That's the man.'"

USE OF THE PHOTOS was not "unreasonably suggestive," Marshall said, "not suggestive to cause Mr. Brown to identify Phillips."

During testimony Wednesday, which probably will be repeated when Brown appears as prosecution witness this week, Brown described the payoff:

"I was alone . . . we met in the lobby . . . he immediately walked up to me . . . he asked me if I was Bill Brown Jr. of Arthur Rubloff & Co. I said 'yes' . . . he suggested we retire to the cocktail lounge."

During the five-minute meeting, Brown said he handed two envelopes to Phillips. "I asked him whether he wanted to count what was inside. He said, 'No, I trust you,'" Brown said.

BROWN THEN returned to Colitz' Chicago office to report that the payoff had been completed.

"Things suddenly began to move quickly in Wheeling" for the Wickes rezoning, Kadison said during his opening statement.

Defense attorney Harvey Silets, who represents Colitz, told Marshall in an opening statement that federal prosecutors "must prove that both Phillips and Colitz were able to and did control actions of the Village of Wheeling. The government said it doesn't know how this was done. It is the defense position that the government will not bear the burden of its proof."

PHILLIPS, 40, is a land planner for the County Zoning Board.

Colitz, 59, of Chicago, a former state representative, was a member of the County Zoning Board but resigned after his indictment. He is accused of organizing the alleged Wickes shakedown scheme.

Kadison said Wickes succumbed to the extortion because it feared economic harm if the Wheeling store opening was delayed.

Faulty engine cause of plane crash?

A faulty engine may have been responsible for the crash of a single-engine airplane Sept. 3 at Palwaukee Airport which claimed the lives of two men, investigators report.

Jack Harrington, an investigator for the National Transportation Safety Board, said witnesses have told his staff the Piper Comanche's engine quit shortly before it slammed into a soybean field.

Killed in the mid-afternoon crash were Eugene McDaniel, 11010 W. Grand Ave., Melrose Park, and Irving J. Medlinger, Marengo.

HARRINGTON SAID a search of the plane's wreckage revealed a screw lodged in the combustion chamber of the engine's number one cylinder. But Harrington would not blame the loose screw for causing the crash.

"We have not yet determined how it got there," said Harrington. "However, if the screw lodged itself in the intake valve, it may have caused a backfire throughout the entire induction system. That could have caused the engine to stop, but we don't know what for sure, nor will we for some time."

Harrington said the screw is only an indication of what might have happened to the airplane and not necessarily the true cause.

Witnesses said they heard a loud bang or backfire shortly after the plane left the runway at Palwaukee. The plane turned left, nosed up and crashed into a field at 1114 S. Wolf Rd.

THE CRAFT BURST into flames shortly after the crash but investigators believe the two men were killed on impact, not from the fire.

The plane had taken off earlier that day from Dacy Airport, Harvard, Ill., about 40 miles northwest of Wheeling. Officials said the plane probably was returning to Dacy Airport when it crashed.

It was the second fatal crash at Palwaukee this year.

When asked when a final report on the crash would be completed, Harrington could not say for sure.

"We're making a complete review of our findings from the wreckage," he said. "It may be a matter of months before we have a finished report."

75 fall programs, events offered by park district

More than 75 programs and events will highlight fall activities for residents of the Mount Prospect Park District.

Registration for the programs is set for Saturday, starting at 9 a.m. at 411

S. Maple St., Mount Prospect. The district serves portions of Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

The district will sponsor two trips this fall. One, a journey to the Quet-ico-Superior wilderness area in Minnesota, features a three-day canoe trip. Needed equipment will be supplied by a professional outfitter. The second trip is a five-day theatre tour of New York City scheduled for the end of November. Highlights of the New York trip include round-trip air fare, accommodations, tours and tickets to theaters and the Staten Island Ferry at a cost of $237 per person.

CLOSER TO HOME, the Girls' Recreation Club has been introduced for girls in Grade 4, and above. The program enables members to participate in a wide variety of programs from fall through spring for a single fee.

The $20 registration cost covers an identification card, which allows girls to enroll in gymnastics, aerobics, basketball, cheerleading, floor hockey ey, track and field and girls' recreation.

The district also plans to offer arts and crafts programs, ranging from holiday crafts to ceramics and adult art. A special all-day Bicentennial Art Workshop, featuring traditional American art and craft techniques, also is planned.

The district has entered the Northwest Suburban Park District Recreational Ice Hockey League for boys age 8 to 16. Registration closes Sunday for the program so games at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex can be planned.

FOR CHILDREN, the Lions Park Recreation Center gymnasium will be open until 5:30 p.m. daily after school for youths in Grades 1 through 6. Floor hockey will be offered again this year, with Fridays set aside for girls.

Fall open swimming is scheduled for 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Monday through Friday; 1 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 9:30 p.m. Saturday, and 1 to 6 p.m. Sunday at Kopp Pool, Des Plaines. Part of the Thursday night session, 8:30 to 9:30 p.m., will be reserved for an adults-only swim.

After Saturday, registration will continue from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 5 p.m. at the recreation center. Waiting lists will be kept for filled classes.

In Dist. 57

Teacher pact talks resume

Mount Prospect Dist. 57 board and teacher negotiators returned to the bargaining table this week to resume talks on the 1975-76 teacher contract.

Robert Novy, a board negotiator, said the teams met Tuesday night for about three hours to discuss salary proposals.

"We had received a proposal from teachers and offered a counter-proposal Tuesday night. The teachers will take it back to the staff in the next day or so to get some idea of how they react to the (board) proposal," Novy said.

DANIEL VONDRAN, Dist. 57 teacher negotiator, said Tuesday's talks "went pretty well."

"We will bring it to a vote of the teachers as soon as we can," he said.

Neither Novy nor Vondran would release details of the salary proposal, but Novy indicated it is less than the 8 per cent increase recently approved by neighboring Elk Grove Township Dist. 59.

"We think our offer is fair based on the economical conditions in our district," Novy said. "It's hard to compare our situation to surrounding districts because they vary so much financially."

"The teachers have brought up their arguments and they do compare themselves with surrounding districts. They want their pay scale to be equitable with their counterparts in other districts," Novy said. "We feel we have a very fine teaching staff and would like to pay them as much as we can afford. We do not want to be looking at deficit spending and don't want to eliminate some of the advantages in our district."

NOVY SAID the teams also are negotiating several items that relate to working conditions, including a clause which would determine the procedure used to terminate tenured teachers in the event declining enrollment forces staff cuts. Also at issue are insurance benefits and extra-duty pay for lunchroom and playground supervision, he said.

"We have come to some tentative agreements on some of the items — particularly those that are not financial in nature," Novy said.

Teachers returned to work last week without a contract. Vondran said teachers were "acting in good faith" by returning to work under last year's contract. Teachers will be receiving their annual raise for work experience in their first paycheck Friday.

The next negotiating session will be held at 8 p.m. Sept. 18.

Decision leading

who supported Rhea's proposal, roundly criticized the board's vote, saying it was "the easy way out."

"It is a cop out," Wattenberg said. "Nobody likes to be unpopular. Everybody likes to be liked. On the other hand, life is brutal. Postponing it just does not work in this cruel world."

The water rate increase was the second revenue-generating proposal to be defeated by the board after board members indicated tentative endorsement. The board earlier rejected a garbage collection fee also designed to ease financial troubles.

RHEA, WHO supported both proposals, said he does not plan to make any new suggestions for producing new revenue.

"I was shot down pretty good," he said.

"I strongly supported the garbage revenue business and I proposed and supported this (water rate increase), and so far the rest of the board has done nothing more than vote no," Rhea said.
